The materials for this edition of the Epistle to the Ephesians were left by my Father in a condition which called for very careful editing. This task I entrusted to my friend the Rev. J. M. Schulhof, M.A., of Clare College, Cambridge, Fellow of St Augustine's College, Canterbury, and sometime Scholar of Trinity College, Cambridge: who has brought to bear on the work not only the loyal zeal of a very faithful disciple, who for long years has studied my Father's writings and, while it was still given, sat at his feet; but also a care and discrimination truly worthy of the best Cambridge traditions. To him all readers of the book will owe a deep debt of gratitude for the infinite pains that he has bestowed on this labour of love.

F. B. WESTCOTT.

PREFACE

A DELAY of four years—which have elapsed since the duty was committed to me of preparing for the press the late Bishop Westcott's work on the Epistle to the Ephesians—may be thought to demand some explanation.

My original mandate, as given by the Bishop's Executors, involved a twofold responsibility,—first that of editing the Commentary on the Epistle, left in manuscript by Dr Westcott, and secondly that of constructing, on the basis of such materials as might be found among his papers, an Introduction, and an Appendix of Essays and Additional Notes.

The former task appeared to present no other difficulties than those which attach to the determination, here and there, of the purport of an unfinished sentence, the treatment of an occasional lacuna in the notes, and the verification of references. But it was early interrupted, and for the space of some eighteen months, by the discovery that the notes on Chapter II were missing: a circumstance which was variously interpreted; one opinion, very confidently expressed, being that for some cause no notes had ever been written by Dr Westcott on that portion of the Epistle,—in other words, that the expected posthumous Commentary was after all in no sense complete. I make no apology for having obstinately resisted an urgent recommendation, addressed to me at that time, to presume the non-existence of these notes and publish the Commentary 'as it was.'

Eventually the missing notes were discovered by the Reverend Henry Westcott between the pages of a volume which he had inherited from his father's library.

Meanwhile the heavier and more delicate task of constructing an Introduction, and an Appendix, had been begun on the lines proposed.

It was attended, however, with unusual difficulties owing to the unexpected scantiness of the materials actually extant from the hand of the Bishop. In point of fact those materials consisted mainly of fragmentary notes and jottings, a few summary analyses of projected sections or dissertations, lists of occurrences in the New Testament or elsewhere of words or phrases requiring investigation, and other brief indications of topics to be discussed. Accordingly it soon became evident that only a very small proportion of the language or argument of any such Introduction and supplementary Essays would be of Dr Westcott's workmanship. And the immediate question came to be whether the pen of a disciple might usefully and acceptably provide the desired Prolegomena and Appendix, incorporating all that could be found of Dr Westcott's own conclusions and hints, but without pretence of offering anything less or more than a disciple's elucidation of problems opened, but not continuously treated or always finally resolved, by the departed master.

At this point and on the issue thus declared the judgment of four or five representative exponents of academic opinion in Cambridge was emphatically adverse to the plan originally proposed.

That plan was accordingly abandoned.

The book, as now published, may probably be less useful to the general student than it might otherwise have been; Dr Westcott's unfinished work being, like a classic document, of a quality to need, and to justify, ancillary interpretation and focussing. But, if less generally useful, the book, as it stands, will, we have reason to hope, be specifically more acceptable to scholars, at any rate in the University which owes so much to the great teacher, whose 'vanished hand' no other can simulate, even as no pupil, or follower, can re-awaken, however he may yearn once again to hear, the tones of the 'voice that is still.'

It remains to indicate, as briefly as may be, the lines on which the present volume has been compiled.

In place of the full Introduction originally contemplated, I have prefixed to the Text and Notes a nominal Introduction, formally analogous to that which Dr Westcott has given us in his edition of the Epistle to the Hebrews, but, as regards matter, essentially, though unequally, defective in every part.

The section on 'Text' reproduces, with such modification as was necessary or appropriate, the statistical matter of the corresponding section in Hebrews.

Under the section-headings 'Title and Destination' and 'Date and Place of Writing,' a few relevant paragraphs, from original authorities or from Dr Westcott's papers, are printed, and, for the rest, reference is made to Lightfoot's 'Colossians' and 'Biblical Essays,' Hort's 'Prolegomena' and Professor T. K. Abbott's 'Introduction.'

For the section on 'Canonicity and External Evidence' it has seemed reasonable, and sufficient, to print in parallel columns the chief early patristic passages and the portions of the text of Ephesians, which they appear to presuppose; leaving it to the reader to estimate, as he may, in each instance, the alternative probabilities of purposed citation, reminiscence or coincidence. For guidance he can always refer to the published views of the scholars above named or others.

But in so far as the parallel presentation of the canonical and patristic texts may be held to imply the view, that the Epistle was known to and used by the early Christian witnesses adduced, the section, thus regarded, has Dr Westcott's authority: all the patristic passages given being cited in the footnotes and appendix to his History of the Canon; of which, therefore, this section may be accounted an excerpt printed 'in extenso.'

The Section 'Internal Evidence of Authorship' is made up almost entirely of matter drawn from Dr Hort's Prolegomena, and arranged under the subdivisions adopted in the 'Abstract of Lectures on Ephesians' printed at the end of that volume.

In view of the long and memorable service of collaboration which has linked together indissolubly the names of Westcott and of Hort, it will, I hope, be felt to be fitting that where in this Epistle the one is silent and the other happily has left a record, already published, of his conclusions, appeal should be made to the latter to supplement the unfinished work, now edited, of the former.

With regard to the Section 'Style and Language' I regret that, owing to an error of marking on my part, the fragmentary notes left by Dr Westcott appear in smaller, instead of in larger, type than the lexical statistics appended. The oversight, however, when discovered, did not seem to me of sufficiently grave importance to demand correction, which would have meant disturbance of several pages of proof.

The three following Sections on the relation of this Epistle to the Colossian Letter, to other Pauline documents, and to certain other, non-Pauline, Apostolic writings respectively, will, I think, speak for themselves.

The 'References to the Gospel History' constituting the tenth Section are Dr Westcott's own.

For Section XI, 'Characteristics' of the Epistle, I have ventured to bring together the judgments of four writers, all sometime (and at the same time) Fellows of Trinity College, Cambridge, namely, Dr Westcott himself, and his three lifelong friends, Bishop Lightfoot, Dr Hort, and Dr Llewelyn Davies—of whom now the last alone survives.

The twelfth and last Section, exhibiting the ‘Plan of the Epistle,’ is, again, Dr Westcott’s own, and is printed exactly as it stands in his manuscript.

The Text of the Epistle is reprinted from the last edition of Westcott and Hort’s ‘New Testament.’

The few critical notes are gathered mainly from the ‘Notes on Select Readings’ in the Appendix to Westcott and Hort’s Introduction; a small residue being adapted from Dr Sanday’s Delectus Lectionum in the Clarendon Press Appendices ad Novum Testamentum, or from Tregelles’s Apparatus Criticus.

One note, partly critical, partly exegetical (on iv. 21), is taken, at the instance and by the kind cooperation of Dr Murray, Warden of St Augustine’s College, Canterbury, from the private correspondence of Dr Westcott with Dr Hort.

After the Greek Text and Notes, and before the Appendix, I have printed the texts of the Latin Vulgate version of the Epistle and of two early English versions, namely, those of Wiclif, as revised by Purvey (c. 1386), and of Tyndale (1525).

The English versions will, I think, be felt to be an appropriate addition to a volume containing the latest exegetical labours of a theologian who is also the author of the ‘History of the English Bible.’ Both versions are reprinted from Messrs Bagster’s English Hexapla, and as regards the earlier I have ventured, for the sake of brevity, to retain in the title-heading the inexact description, ‘Wiclif, 1380,’ although it is now the opinion of, I believe, all expert authorities that the version here given is Purvey’s revision, made in or about 1386 (after Wiclif’s death), of Wiclif’s own translation of 1380. The technical inaccuracy is lessened by the fact that in ‘Ephesians’ the difference between Wiclif and his reviser amounted to very little.

The Appendix is made up of (i) an analytical conspectus of the theology of the Epistle, (ii) a series of Additional Notes on particular words or topics, (iii) a Greek Vocabulary of the Epistle.

The title 'Heads of Doctrine,' given to the first of these divisions, is taken from a Summary, or Table of proposed Contents, prepared by Dr Westcott for a projected work, which he eventually abandoned, on 'Christian Doctrine.' And nearly all the subject-headings given are selected from that Summary; that is to say, those subjects in the list have been taken, which admitted of illustration from the Epistle to the Ephesians. But in the treatment of them no uniform rule has been observed. In some cases nothing has been set down beyond the mere words of those verses of the Letter which contain reference to the subject in hand. In other cases brief comment has been interposed either by repetition from one or more of the notes in the text or by citation from one or other of Dr Westcott's published works. And in a few cases, when this was suggested by anything from Dr Westcott's pen, the occurrence of a term or topic has been traced through other Pauline Epistles or even throughout the New Testament.

But for the most part any such treatment of a subject has been reserved for the Additional Notes.

In these, with the exception of a few sentences from Dr Hort's posthumously edited works and a few editorial observations enclosed in square brackets, nothing has been introduced which is not either (a) Biblical Text, (β) statistical matter drawn and digested from Text and Concordance, (γ) express quotation from works actually cited, or used, by Dr Westcott in connexion with this Epistle, or (δ) comment of his own, gathered partly from extant manuscript material, partly from relevant passages in his published Commentaries and other writings.

With regard to the several subjects treated the facts are these. In most cases an Additional Note on the subject was definitely projected by Dr Westcott. In many cases prospective reference to the intended Note had been made in the Commentary. More often than not the general outline of the Note existed in the form of classified groups of instances or brief summary statements with or without accessory matter. In no case had it been brought into a form that could be regarded as final.

It thus became necessary either to leave these collectanea infertile or to supplement them. In adopting the latter course I have observed the restrictions stated above. Scriptural and other testimonies, cited by reference, have been verified and given in full: outlines left by Dr Westcott have been filled in and illustrated, where this was practicable, from his own writings or from sources quoted by him elsewhere.

The few titles not expressly emanating from Dr Westcott cover topics which he has indicated as calling for separate treatment. There is therefore no need to specify or defend them.

For the Vocabulary or Index of Greek Words used in the Epistle, and also for the short Index of Subjects, I am solely responsible.

The foregoing explanation may, I am inclined to hope, suffice to justify the Introduction and the Appendix.

But, if not, it is no great matter. Disapproval signifies merely that, in the judgment of those who disapprove, the 'Addenda' would have been better unpublished than thus arranged, filled in, and edited. It may be so.

After all, it is the Commentary which matters. And in this none can fail to recognise the unalloyed expression of the author's mind and heart; a last, clear word of consolation, strong and unfaltering, from one who through many years had ever, in the intervals of official work, turned with loving joy to the task of the interpretation of this Epistle.

In conclusion I desire to make grateful acknowledgment to those who in one way or another have helped me to make this book less imperfect than otherwise it would have been and less unworthy of him whose name it bears. More particularly I am indebted to the Rev. Professor T. K. Abbott, Litt.D., of Trinity College, Dublin, for kind permission to use a note (v. inf. p. 194) from his Commentary on the Epistle; to the Rev. J. Llewelyn Davies, D.D., Vicar of Kirkby Lonsdale, and sometime Fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge, for a most courteous letter cordially assenting to the incorporation in this edition of the Epistle of some paragraphs from his own Introduction; to the Rev. J. H. Moulton, Lit.D., late Fellow of King's College, Cambridge, and now Tutor of Didsbury College, Manchester, for assistance in verifying a reference to the works of the late Dr Dale; to H. M. Chadwick, Esq., M.A., Fellow and Librarian of Clare College, Cambridge, for facilities, kindly accorded me, of access to and use of books from the College Library, as well as for advice regarding early English versions; to the Rev. J. O. F. Murray, D.D., Warden of St Augustine's College, Canterbury, formerly Fellow and Dean of Emmanuel College, Cambridge, for valuable aid and counsel in several points of detail; to the Rev. Arthur Westcott, M.A., Rector of Crayke, for information regarding papers left by the Bishop; to the Rev. F. B. Westcott, M.A., Head Master of Sherborne School and Hon. Canon of Salisbury, for his prolonged forbearance and patience with the slowness of my handiwork; to my relative, the Rev. H. Brereton Jones, M.A., Senior Curate of St Giles-in-the-Fields, for his kindness and extreme care in reading great part of the proofs; and, not least, to the officials of the Pitt Press for the unfailing courtesy with which they have met my requests and fulfilled their part in the printing of the book.

And last of all there is one to whom my purposed word of thanks can never now be rendered.

After long delays, due largely to causes explained above, though partly to pressure of other work, I had at length, in the early autumn of last year, fully determined that nothing should prevent the immediate completion of the book with a view to its publication at latest by the day of the Feast of St John the Evangelist. So I proposed. But the Angel of Death forbade.

For in the meantime the gentle hand, which not long since had copied out for me with a mother's wonted care two passages from Ruskin now printed in the Appendix, had ceased to write; and the beloved voice, which had so often made kindly enquiry as to the progress of the work, had been stilled for ever. And so it befell that other and sadder thoughts and duties intervened, disabling me from these, and compelling me to relinquish for a while the task of final revision.

Now that I have been enabled to resume and in a manner finish this work of editing, I can but trust that, notwithstanding the many faults by which (as I am deeply conscious) it is marred, it may yet, by the mercy of God, not wholly fail of the end to which it has been directed, that of presenting, clearly and truthfully, the total ascertainable result of Bishop Westcott's meditation on 'the Epistle of Paul the Apostle to the Ephesians.'

POSTSCRIPT TO PREFACE

TO the foregoing acknowledgments of help received I have now, on the eve of publication, to add my very sincere thanks to two eminent Cambridge scholars, who have given me the benefit of their judgment on certain parts of the section 'Text,' as printed in the proof, of the Introduction; namely, to the Regius Professor of Divinity, Dr Swete, for a valuable criticism of my reference to Theodore of Mopsuestia, which I have amended accordingly; and to Professor Burkitt for a note which he has most kindly contributed on the lost text of the Old Syriac and also for information regarding the Sahidic Version.

One other avowal I would make in anticipation of a comparison that may not improbably be instituted.

I have purposely refrained from looking at the Dean of Westminster's edition of the Epistle, published since the death of Bishop Westcott.

INTRODUCTION TO THE EPISTLE

I. TEXT.

THE Epistle is contained in whole or in part in the following sources :

I. GREEK MSS.

(i) Primary uncials :

Σ, Cod. Sin., saec. iv. Complete.

A, Cod. Alex., saec. v. Complete.

B, Cod. Vatic., saec. iv. Complete.

D₂, Cod. Claromontanus, saec. vi. Complete. (Graeco-Latin.)

G₃, Cod. Boernerianus, saec. ix. Complete. (Graeco-Latin.)

(ii) Secondary uncials :

K₂, Cod. Mosquensis, saec. ix. Complete.

L₂, Cod. Angelicus, saec. ix. Complete.

P₂, Cod. Porphyrianus, saec. ix. Complete.

O^b, Cod. Mosquensis, saec. vi. Contains Eph. iv. 1—18.

Ψ, Cod. Athous Laurae, saec. viii.—ix. Complete.

[To these must be added the Damascus Palimpsest of Eph. iv. 21 ἀλλήθεια—v. 4, described by Von Soden, Schr. d. N. T. i. 244.]

(a) Of Σ.

- i. 18 τῆς κληρονομίας τῆς δόξης.
- ii. 1 τ. ἀμαρτίας ἐαυτῶν.
4 om. ἐν.
7 θεοῦ γάρ ἐσμεν.
- v. 7 τὸ φρόνημα τ. κυρίου.

(b) Of Λ.

- i. 10 κατὰ τὴν οἰκονομίαν.
- vi. 23 κ. ἔλεος.

(c) Of Β.

- i. 13 ἐσφραγίσθη.
21 ἐξουσίας κ. ἀρχῆς.
- ii. 1 κ. τ. ἐπιθυμίαις ὑμῶν.
5 τ. παραπτώμασιν + καὶ ταῖς ἐπιθυμίαις.
- v. 17 τ. κυρίου + ἡμῶν.

(d) Of Δ.

- i. 6 δόξης praef. τῆς.
16 παύσομαι.
- ii. 15 καταρτίσας.
- iii. 12 ἐν τῷ ἐλευθερωθῆναι.

(iii) Cursives :

Some four hundred [Von Soden, Schr. d. N.T. 1. 102 ff.] are known more or less completely, including 17 (Cod. Colb., saec. XI., = 33 Gosp.), 37 (Cod. Leicestr., saec. XIV., = 69 Gosp.), 47 (Cod. Bodl., saec. XI.), 67 (saec. XI.).

2. VERSIONS.

i. Latin :

The Epistle is preserved in two Latin texts.

- r*, Fragm. Freisingensia, saec. v. vel vi. Contain i. 1—13, i. 16—ii. 3, ii. 5—16, vi. 24.
- m*, 'Speculum' pseudo-Augustini, saec. ix. Contains excerpts.

(b) The Vulgate.

[v. inf. pp. 103 ff.]

ii. Syriac:

(a) The Peshito.

(b) The Harclean (Philoxenian) Syriac.

[A Version which if it survived would be among our most valuable authorities is the Old Syriac. For the Old Syriac text of the Pauline Epistles our chief extant authority is the running Commentary of S. Ephraim, preserved only in an Armenian translation: a Latin translation of this Armenian was issued by the Mechitarists in 1893. In using this text for critical purposes allowance must always be made for the influence of the Armenian Vulgate upon the Armenian translator of S. Ephraim.¹ F. C. B.]

iii. Egyptian:

(a) Memphitic or Bohairic.

Complete.

(b) Thebaic or Sahidic.

Complete save for minor lacunae in c. vi.

(c) Bashmuric.

The Epistle is found in the later versions, Armenian, Ethiopic, and (with lacunae v. 11—16, v. 30—vi. 8) Gothic.

3. PATRISTIC COMMENTARIES AND QUOTATIONS.

Ante-Nicene Commentaries.

'A small portion of Origen's Commentaries is virtually all that remains to us of the continuous commentaries on the New Testament belonging to this period; they include—many verses of—Ephesians.' (Westcott and Hort, Introduction, p. 88.)

¹ [For this note on the lost text of the Old Syriac Version I am indebted to the kindness of Professor Burkitt, who adds: 'Ephesians will be found in the Armenian edition of S. Ephraim's Works, vol. III. pp. 138—153.' J. M. S.]

Post-Nicene Commentaries and continuous series of homilies written before the middle of the fifth century:—

- ‘Theodore of Mopsuestia’—‘in a Latin translation.’
 ‘Chrysostom’s Homilies.’
 ‘Theodoret’ :—founded on Theodore and Chrysostom.
 ‘Cyril of Alexandria’ :—fragments.
 ‘Fragments by other writers’—in Catena. (id. ib.)

Account is also taken of Quotations made by Marcion (as reported by Tertullian or Epiphanius); Irenaeus, Hippolytus, Clement of Alexandria, and Origen; Tertullian, Cyprian and Novatian; Peter of Alexandria, Methodius, and Eusebius; Lucifer, Hilary, and Victorinus Afer.

[The Latin version of the Epistle incorporated in the Latin translation of the Commentary of Theodore of Mopsuestia contains many ‘ante-Hieronymian renderings’ (Swete, Theodore of Mopsuestia on the Minor Epistles of St Paul, vol. i. Intr. p. xlv), and is illustrated by the following ‘Old Latin renderings’ collected by Dr Swete.

i.	4 coram eo.	Vulg. in conspectu eius.

To these may be added

- iii. 18 profundum et altitudo. ” sublimitas et profundum.
 iv. 16 incrementum. ” augmentum.]

II. TITLE AND DESTINATION.

[On the subject of the Title and Destination of the Epistle reference may be made to: Additional Note on i. 1. The words ἐν Ἐφέσῳ (inf. p. 19); Lightfoot, Biblical Essays; Hort, Prolegomena to St Paul's Epistles to the Romans and the Ephesians (pp. 75—98); T. K. Abbott, Introduction to the Epistle to the Ephesians, § 1, pp. i—ix (in International Critical Commentary); Lightfoot, Destination of the Epistle to the Ephesians in Biblical Essays, pp. 377 sq.].

Origen († A.D. 253):

Ἐπὶ μόνων Ἐφεσίων εὔρομεν κείμενον τὸ τοῖς ἁγίοις τοῖς οὖσι· καὶ ζητοῦμεν, εἰ μὴ παρέλκει προσκείμενον τὸ τοῖς ἁγίοις τοῖς οὖσι, τί δύναται σημαίνειν· ὅρα οὖν εἰ μὴ ὡσπερ ἐν τῇ Ἐξόδῳ ὄνομα φησὶν ἑαυτῷ ὁ χρηματίζων Μωσεί τὸ ὄν, οὕτως οἱ μετέχοντες τοῦ ὄντος γίνονται ὄντες, καλούμενοι οἰονεὶ ἐκ τοῦ μὴ εἶναι εἰς τὸ εἶναι· ἐξεδέξατο γὰρ ὁ θεὸς τὸ μὴ ὄντα, φησὶν ὁ αὐτὰ Παῦλος, ἵνα τὰ ὄντα καταργήσῃ κ.τ.λ.

Should the position of τὸ be altered—προσκ. τοῖς ἁγίοις τὸ τοῖς οὖσι? At all events Origen's reasoning seems to be 'unless τοῖς οὖσι attached to τοῖς ἁγίοις is redundant or superfluous.' (Lightfoot, Biblical Essays, p. 378 n.)

'Origen could not possibly have said that this statement is made of the Ephesians alone, if he had read the words as they stand in the common texts. In this case he would have found several parallels in the Epistles of St Paul. Cf. Rom. i. 7, 1 Cor. i. 2, 2 Cor. i. 1, Phil. i. 1.' (Lightfoot, B. E., p. 378.)

Basil, contr. Eunom. ii. 19 (ed. Gam. i. p. 254):

ἀλλὰ καὶ τοῖς Ἐφεσίοις ἐπιστέλλων ὡς γησίως ἠνωμένοις τῷ ὄντι δι' ἐπιγνώσεως, ὄντας αὐτοὺς ἰδιαζόντως ὠνόμασεν, εἰπὼν· τοῖς ἁγίοις τοῖς οὖσι καὶ πιστοῖς ἐν Χριστῷ Ἰησοῦ. οὕτω γὰρ καὶ οἱ πρὸ ἡμῶν παραδεδώκασι, καὶ ἡμεῖς ἐν τοῖς παλαιοῖς τῶν ἀντιγράφων εὐρήκαμεν.

Tertullian, adv. Marc. v. 11 (A.D. 207):

'Prætereo hic et de alia epistola, quam nos ad Ephesios præscriptam habemus, hæretici vero ad Laodicenos.'

ib. v. 17: 'Ecclesiae quidem veritate epistolam istam ad Ephesios habemus emissam, non ad Laodicenos, sed Marcion ei titulum aliquando interpolare gestiit, quasi et in isto diligentissimus explorator. Nihil autem de titulis interest, cum ad omnes apostolus scripsit, dum ad quosdam.'

Eriphan. (Hæres. xlix.):

οὐ γὰρ ἔδοξε τῷ ἐλεεινοτάτῳ Μαρκίῳ ἀπὸ τῆς πρὸς Ἐφεσίοις ταύτην τὴν μαρτυρίαν λέγειν, ἀλλὰ τῆς πρὸς Λαοδικέας, τῆς μὴ οὖσης ἐν τῷ ἀποστόλῳ.

‘Of all St Paul’s letters it is the most general, the least personal. In this respect it more nearly resembles the Epistle to the Romans than any other.’ (Lightf. B. E. p. 388.)

‘Scribit Ephesiis hanc epistolam beatus Paulus eo modo quo et Romanis dudum scripserat quos necdum ante viderat.’ (Theod. Mops., Argum. ad Eph. i. p. 112, ed. Swete.)

‘Yet though this Epistle so little fulfils our expectation of what St Paul would have written to his converts, it is beyond a question that the early Church universally regarded it as an Epistle to the Ephesians. It is distinctly referred to as such by the writer of the Muratorian Canon, by Irenaeus, by Tertullian, by Clement of Alexandria, even by Origen himself, in whose text, as we have seen, there was no direct mention of Ephesus.’

III. DATE AND PLACE OF WRITING.

[For discussion see Lightfoot, Philippians, Introd. pp. 29—45. ‘Order of the Epistles of the Captivity’; Hort, Prolegomena, pp. 99—110; T. K. Abbott, Introduction to the Epistle to the Ephesians (International Critical Commentary), § 6, pp. xxix—xxxii.]

THE HISTORICAL SITUATION IMPLIED BY THE LANGUAGE OF THE EPISTLE TO THE EPHESIANS.

There is in the Epistle no charge to spread, no sign of anxiety for spreading the message of the Gospel.

That message, it is felt here as in the First Epistle of St John, will vindicate itself.

Again there is no sign of persecution of Christians by the Roman power. St Paul’s ‘bonds’ were due to Jewish hostility evoked by his activity on behalf of Gentiles (ἐγὼ Παῦλος ὁ δέσμιος τοῦ χριστοῦ Ἰησοῦ ὑπὲρ ὑμῶν τῶν ἐθνῶν, iii. 1). His afflictions (iii. 13) were all connected with his preaching to the Gentiles.

In this respect the Epistle presents a contrast to the situation implied in the First Epistle of St Peter.

e. xviii. ὁ γὰρ θεὸς ἡμῶν Ἰ. ὁ χρ. ἐκνοφορήθη ὑπὸ Μαρίας κατ' οἰκονομίαν ἐκ σπέρματος μὲν Δαυεὶδ, πνεύματος δὲ ἁγίου.

'The word οἰκονομία came to be applied more especially to the Incarnation (as here and below, § 20, ἧς ἡρξάμην οἰκονομίας κ.τ.λ.) because this was par excellence the system or plan which God had ordained for the government of His household and the dispensation of His stores.' (Lightfoot, ad loc.)

Ephesians.

κ. προσαγωγὴν ἐν πεποιθήσει διὰ τῆς πίστεως αὐτοῦ, freedom of access (St Paul says) is ours through our faith in Christ:—in v. 2 περιπατεῖτε ἐν ἀγάπῃ [he bids the 'Ephesians'] walk in love; and in vi. 23 εἰρήνη τ. ἀδελφοῖς κ. ἀγάπη μετὰ πίστεως, faith is the condition of appropriating peace and love.

This was signally true of the Ephesians, among whom St Paul resided for an exceptionally long time (Acts xix. 10 sq., xx. 31), with whom he was on terms of the most affectionate intimacy,—and who were the chief, though probably not the sole, recipients of the most profound of all his epistles. The propriety of the language here is still further enhanced by the fact that St Paul, in the Epistle to the Ephesians more especially dwells on the Gospel dispensation as μυστήριον (i. 9, iii. 3, 4, 9, v. 32, vi. 19). Elsewhere (Phil. iv. 12) he speaks of himself as μεμνημένος (Lightfoot, ad loc.).

Eph. vi. 24. ἐν ἀφθαρσίᾳ. But ἀφθαρσία occurs also in Rom. ii. 7; 1 Cor. xv. 42, 50, 53, 54; 2 Tim. i. 10, Tit. ii. 7.

Eph. i. 10. εἰς οἰκονομίαν τοῦ πληρώματος τῶν καιρῶν, ἀνακεφαλιώσασθαι τὰ πάντα ἐν τῷ χριστῷ [v. note ad loc.].

'The first step towards this special appropriation of οἰκονομία to the Incarnation is found in St Paul: e.g. Eph. i. 10 εἰς οἰκονομίαν κ.τ.λ.' (Lightfoot, Apostolic Fathers, II. ii. p. 75.)

c. xix. καὶ ἔλαθεν τὸν ἄρχοντα τοῦ αἰῶνος τούτου ἢ παρθενία Μαρίας καὶ ὁ τοκετὸς αὐτῆς, ὁμοίως καὶ ὁ θάνατος τοῦ κυρίου· τρία μυστήρια κραυγῆς, ἅτινα ἐν ἡσυχίᾳ θεοῦ ἐπρίχθη. πῶς οὖν ἐφανερώθη τοῖς αἰῶσιν;

'Here κραυγή is the correlative to ἡσυχία, as revelation is to mystery. "These mysteries" Ignatius would say "were preordained and prepared in silence by God, that they might be proclaimed aloud to a startled world." It is an exaggerated expression of the truth stated in Rom. xvi. 25 τὸ κήρυγμα Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ κατὰ ἀποκάλυψιν μυστηρίου χρόνοις αἰωνίοις σεσιγημένου, φανερωθέντος δὲ νῦν.... τοῖς αἰῶσιν—to the ages,' past and future, which are here personified. It seems probable that in St Paul's expression, μυστήριον ἀποκεκρυμμένον ἀπὸ τῶν αἰῶνων (Eph. iii. 9, Col. i. 26), the preposition should be taken as temporal (see the note on the latter passage); but Ignatius may have understood it otherwise.' (Lightfoot.)

c. xx. εἰς τὸν καινὸν ἄνθρωπον Ἰησοῦν Χριστόν, ἐν τῇ αὐτοῦ πίστει καὶ ἐν τῇ αὐτοῦ ἀγάπῃ. 'The καινὸς ἄνθρωπος of Ignatius is equivalent to the ἔσχατος Ἀδάμ, the δεύτερος ἄνθρωπος of St Paul (1 Cor. xvi. 45, 47). The Apostle himself seems to use ὁ καινὸς ἄνθρωπος in a different sense, Eph. iv. 24.' (But see note there.)

Tertullian, adv. Marc. v. 11 (v. supra, p. xxiii):

Praetereo hic et de alia epistola, quam nos ad Ephesios praescriptam habemus.

χρόνουσ ἐπιτομαί)....The books of the New Testament to which they contain allusions...are these: the Four Gospels; the Epistles of St Paul to the Romans, 1 Corinthians, Ephesians, Galatians, Philippians, Colossians, 1 Timothy; the First Epistle of St Peter’ (Canon, p. 317 n.).

V. INTERNAL EVIDENCE OF AUTHORSHIP.

Theories, which find in the Epistle indications of (α) Montanist or (β) pseudo-Gnostic influence, being discarded, 'a view' of the Epistle 'which has...to be considered' is that maintained by Holtzmann, Pfeiderer, and Von Soden, who 'ascribe it to an advanced disciple of St Paul.' Also 'it is...alleged that there are marks of simply different authorship, differences of language, style, and the like.' (Hort, Prolegomena, pp. 120 f.)

A. Doctrine.

'Is the Paulinism later than St Paul?' 'No one who carefully reads the Epistle to the Ephesians can doubt that its doctrinal contents do differ considerably from those of any one of St Paul's earlier Epistles or of all of them taken together....What we have to ask is whether the differences are incompatible with identity of authorship.' (Prolegomena, p. 123.)

'Some of the chief combinations of identity and difference between St Paul's earlier recorded theology and that of the Epistle to the Ephesians.' (ib. p. 125.)

(i) Relation of Jews to Gentiles as Christians.

(a) In Ephesians 'the duty of Jewish and Gentile fellowship is deduced from the eternal purpose of God and the very idea of the Christian faith, not, as in earlier Epistles, from arguments about the Law and the Promise. Yet this is only the teaching of the Epistle to the Romans a little more unfolded.' (ib. p. 126.)

(b) 'In both Epistles alike' (Romans and Ephesians) 'the need for the universal salvation is made to rest on the universality of the previous corruption.' Eph. ii. 1—3 answers to Rom. i. 18—32, ii. 17—29, iii. 9.

(c) As to 'Circumcision,' with Eph. ii. 11 compare Rom. ii. 28 f.

(ii) The Church.

In Ephesians 'we for the first time hear Christians throughout the world described as together making up a single Ecclesia, i.e. assembly of God, or Church; and here for the first time we find the relation of Christ to the or a Church conceived as that of a Head to a Body.' (Prolegomena, p. 128.)

But these thoughts stand in closest connexion with what preceded.

(a) An 'impulse towards laying stress on the unity of the society of Christians throughout the world doubtless came from the position of St Paul as writing from Rome.'

'Nor...would it be strange that he should use the name Ecclesia in this new and extended sense, although hitherto...applied only to the Christian community of Jerusalem or Judaea or to individual local Christian communities outside the Holy Land.' (ib. p. 129.)

(β) Though the language of Eph. i. 22, iv. 15 f. (and Col. i. 18), compared with that of 1 Cor. xii. 12 and Rom. xii. 4 f. 'is new,' the new image is Pauline (cf. 1 Cor. xi. 3); also the image of the Corner-stone (cf. Mt. xxi. 42, Mk. xii. 10 f., Lk. xx. 17, Acts iv. 11) cannot have been 'either unknown to St Paul...or rejected by him.' (ib. p. 134.)

(iii) Person and Office of Christ.

(a) 'Earlier Epistles imply His Pre-existence' (cf. 2 Cor. viii. 9, Gal. iv. 4, Rom. viii. 3).

'Colossians (i. 16 f.) carries back His Lordship to the beginning of things.'

'Ephesians (i. 10) makes the reconciliation—effected by His death—include all things, and carries back His Headship of the Ecclesia to a primordial choosing of its members "in him" (iii. 14).' But of this there is anticipation in 1 Cor. viii. 6, xv. 45 f.

(β) 'In Eph. ii. 16 it is Christ'—whereas in 2 Cor. v. 28 f. it is God "through Christ"—'who appears as the Reconciler.'—'But the two forms of language are consistent.'

(γ) So also variation of language of Eph. iv. 11 from 1 Cor. xii. 28, as to the source of gifts, is due to context. (ib. pp. 134 ff., 190.)

(iv) The Holy Spirit.

'The contrast with the Epistle to the Colossians is great in this respect; but there is no similar contrast with the earlier Epistles' (e.g. Rom., 1 Cor.).

'In the First Epistle to the Corinthians and in that to the Ephesians alike St Paul is anxiously insisting on the mutual duties of members of the Christian community and therefore has need to go back to the inner principle of its life, the one uniting Spirit' (id. ib. pp. 140 f.).

(v) The Present and the Future.

In Ephesians 'the immediate imminence of the Coming of the Lord has faded out of view': and 'a sense of present blessedness has arisen' (i. 3 ff., iv. 11—16) and of 'a long and gradual growth reaching far out into the future from age to age.'

But 'in the earlier Epistles themselves there is a certain gradation in this respect:—Romans suggests the ordering of the ages': and it was 'natural...that a change like this should come over St Paul's mind' in view of 'the spread of the faith through the Roman Empire.'

(vi) 'Apostles and Prophets.'

'The two names represent the two types of guidance specially given to that earliest age' (Prolegomena, p. 145).

Eph. iii. 5. ἀπεκαλύφθη τ. ἁγίοις ἀποστόλοις αὐτοῦ καὶ προφήταις ἐν πνεύματι, εἶναι τὰ ἔθνη συνκληρονόμα κ.τ.λ. 'does but sum up in a pregnant form what had been the real course of things' (cf. e.g. Acts xiii. 1—4).

Eph. ii. 20. ἐποικοδομηθέντες ἐπὶ τῷ θεμελίῳ τῶν ἀποστόλων καὶ προφητῶν gives 'the historical order of the actual structure and growth of the Ecclesia itself, not any authority over the Ecclesia.' 'And St Paul himself could fitly...speak thus; and use the special image of the foundation.' 'Nor would he by so using it...contradict...1 Cor. iii. 10 f. For there he is not speaking of the Christian society, but of the Christian faith' (ib. p. 147).

Again 'Apostles and prophets stand first in list of gifts' in 1 Cor. xii. 28 as in Eph. iv. 11.

(vii) St Paul himself.

Language of Eph. iii. 1 f., iv. 1, vi. 20 paralleled by Rom. xi. 13, xv. 16. With Eph. iii. 8 cf. (besides 1 Cor. xv. 9) Gal. i. 13—16.

B. Style, Vocabulary, and Phraseology.

(a) Causes of difference of style—as compared with earlier Epistles.

(1) ‘Sense of dangers surmounted, aspirations satisfied, and a vantage ground gained for the world-wide harmonious development of the Christian community under the government of God’

(2) ‘that now for the first time St Paul is free, as it were, to pour forth his own thoughts in a positive form instead of carrying on an argument’ (ib. p. 153).

(b) ‘The bulk of the vocabulary is in accordance with Pauline usage’ (ib. p. 158).

‘Unique words are due to quotation, context, brevity, or accident’ (ib. p. 156).

(c) ‘Unique phrases prove little, being common elsewhere in St Paul’ (ib. p. 192).

‘Those who cannot read the Epistle to the Ephesians without being awed by the peculiar loftiness, by the grandeur of conception, by the profound insight, by the eucharistic inspiration, which they recognise in it, will require strong evidence to persuade them that it was written by some other man who wished it to pass as St Paul’s. Apart from the question of the morality of the act, imitators do not pour out their thoughts in the free and fervid style of this Epistle. Nor can we easily imagine how such an imitation could have been successful either near the time of St Paul or at any subsequent period. It is not conceivable that it should have made its appearance without exciting wonder and inquiry. In the lifetime of St Paul the pious fraud would not have been attempted. Within a few years after his death the difficulty of deceiving his friends and the Church in such a matter must have been very great. At a later time the estimation in which St Paul’s writings were held would have ensured the careful scrutiny of any previously unknown work put forward in his name.’ (Llewelyn Davies: Introduction to Ephesians, p. 9.)

VI. STYLE AND LANGUAGE.

Words characteristic of the Ephesian Epistle:

- μυστήριον* [c. inf. p. 180].
ἐνέργεια [v. inf. p. 155].
πληροῦν [see notes on i. 23, v. 18].
πλήρωμα [see notes on i. 10, 23].
μεθοδεία [see note on vi. 11].

Also the expressions:

- ἐν πνεύματι.*
τὰ ἐπουράνια [c. inf. p. 152].

Among words, which do not occur in this Epistle, are, it is to be remarked, the following:

- θάνατος,* χάρα, }
χαίρειν. }

[All these words occur in the Epistle to the Colossians and frequently in that to the Philippians.]

The various grammatical modes of expressing end or purpose, used in the Epistle, may be noted.

(1) The Simple Infinitive:

- i. 4. εἶναι ἡμᾶς ἀγίους κ.τ.λ. after ἐξελέξατο ἡμᾶς (cf. iii. 6).
 iii. 17. κατοικήσαι τ. χριστὸν... ἐν τ. καρδίας ὑμῶν.
 vi. 19. γνωρίσαι.

(2) εἰς τὸ c. inf.

- i. 12. εἰς τὸ εἶναι ἡμᾶς... after προορισθέντες.
 18. εἰς τὸ εἰδέναι ἡμᾶς... after πεφωτισμένους.

πρὸς τὸ c. inf.

- vi. 11. ἐνδύσασθε... πρὸς τὸ δύνασθαι ὑμᾶς.

(3) ἵνα.

- i. 17. ἵνα δόξη... after μνείαν ποιούμενος.
 ii. 7, 10, 15.
 iii. 9 f., 14 ff., 18.
 iv. 14, 28 (bis).
 v. 25 ff., 33.
 vi. 3, 13, 19, 20, 21, 22.

Repetition of phrases—in one context—is found at:

- i. 6, 12, 14. εἰς ἔπαινον δόξης (bis)...εἰς ἔ. τῆς δόξης....
- ii. 1, 5. καὶ ὑμᾶς ὄντας νεκροὺς...καὶ ὄντας ἡμᾶς νεκροὺς....
- iii. 2, 7. τῆς χάριτος τοῦ θεοῦ τῆς δοθείσης μοι (bis).

Interrupted constructions occur:

- ii. 3, 11 f.
- iii. 1.

Aorist and Present tenses [in near conjunction or sequence] are found:

- i. 13. πιστεύσαντες, 19 πιστεύοντας.
- ii. 20. ἐποικοδομηθέντες, 22 συνοικοδομείσθε.
- iv. 1. περιπατήσαι, 17 περιπατεῖν.
- v. 29. ἐμίσησεν, ἐκτρέφει κ. θάλπει.
- vi. 10. ἐνδυναμούσθε, 11 ἐνδύσασθε.

Perfect Participles are frequent:

- i. 12. προηλπικότας, 18 πεφωτισμένους.
- ii. 5, 8. σεσωσμένοι, 12 ἀπηλλοτριωμένοι.
- iii. 9. ἀποκεκρυμμένοι, 17 ἐρριζωμένοι κ. τεθεμελιωμένοι.
- iv. 17. ἐσκοτωμένοι, 18 ἀπηλλοτριωμένοι, 19 ἀπηλλαγότες.
- vi. 16. πεπυρωμένα.

Parallel Clauses occur:

- i. 11, 13. ἐν ᾧ καὶ ἐκληρώθημεν..., ἐν ᾧ καὶ ὑμεῖς ἀκούσαντες...ἐν ᾧ καὶ πιστεύσαντες, ἐσφραγίσθητε.
- ii. 2. κατὰ τὸν αἰῶνα τοῦ κόσμου τούτου, κατὰ τὸν ἄρχοντα τῆς ἐξουσίας τοῦ ἀέρος.
- 21 f. ἐν ᾧ πάντα οἰκοδομῆ...αὔξει...ἐν κυρίῳ, ἐν ᾧ καὶ ὑμεῖς συνοικοδομείσθε...ἐν πνεύματι.
- iii. 7. κατὰ τ. δωρεὰν τ. χάριτος τ. θεοῦ, κατὰ τ. ἐνέργειαν τ. δυνάμεως αὐτοῦ.
- iv. 13. εἰς τ. ἐνότητα τ. πίστεως κ. τ. ἐπιγνώσεως, εἰς ἄνδρα τέλειον,
εἰς μέτρον ἡλικίας.
- 18. διὰ τὴν ἄγνωσιν ἐν αὐτοῖς, διὰ τὴν πώρωσιν τ. καρδίας αὐτῶν.

VII. RELATION TO THE COLOSSIAN EPISTLE.

Colossians.

i. 14. ἐν ᾧ ἔχομεν τὴν ἀπολύτρωσιν, τὴν ἄφεσιν τῶν ἁμαρτιῶν.

ιβ. 20. κ. δι' αὐτοῦ ἀποκαταλλάξαι τὰ πάντα εἰς αὐτόν, εἰρηνοποιήσας διὰ τοῦ αἵματος τοῦ σταυροῦ αὐτοῦ, δι' αὐτοῦ εἴτε τὰ ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς εἴτε τὰ ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς.

ιβ. 3, 4. εὐχαριστοῦμεν τῷ θεῷ πατρὶ τοῦ κυρίου ἡμῶν Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ πάντοτε περὶ ὑμῶν προσευχόμενοι· ἀκούσαντες τὴν πίστιν ὑμῶν ἐν Χρ. Ἰ. καὶ τὴν ἀγάπην ἣν ἔχετε εἰς πάντας τοὺς ἁγίους.

ιβ. 27. οἷς ἠθέλησεν ὁ θεὸς γνωρίσαι τί τὸ πλοῦτος τῆς δόξης τοῦ μυστηρίου τούτου ἐν τοῖς ἔθνεσιν, ὃ ἐστὶν Χριστὸς ἐν ὑμῖν, ἡ ἐλπίς τῆς δόξης.

ii. 12. διὰ τῆς πίστεως τῆς ἐνεργείας τοῦ θεοῦ τοῦ ἐγειραντος αὐτὸν ἐκ νεκρῶν.

i. 16—19. ὅτι ἐν αὐτῷ ἐκτίσθη τὰ πάντα ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς καὶ ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς, τὰ ὀρατὰ καὶ τὰ ἀόρατα, εἴτε θρόνοι εἴτε κυριότητες εἴτε ἀρχαὶ εἴτε ἐξουσίαι· τὰ πάντα δι' αὐτοῦ καὶ εἰς αὐτὸν ἔκτισται· καὶ αὐτὸς ἔστιν πρὸ πάντων, καὶ τὰ πάντα ἐν αὐτῷ συνέστηκεν, καὶ αὐτὸς ἐστὶν ἡ κεφαλὴ τοῦ σώματος, τῆς ἐκκλησίας· ὅς ἐστιν ἀρχή, πρωτότοκος ἐκ τῶν νεκρῶν, ἵνα γένηται ἐν πᾶσιν αὐτὸς πρωτεύων· ὅτι ἐν αὐτῷ εὐδόκησεν πᾶν τὸ πλήρωμα κατοικῆσαι.

Ephesians.

i. 7. ἐν ᾧ ἔχομεν τὴν ἀπολύτρωσιν διὰ τοῦ αἵματος αὐτοῦ, τὴν ἄφεσιν τῶν παραπτωμάτων.

ιβ. 10. ἀνακεφαλαιώσασθαι τὰ πάντα ἐν τῷ Χριστῷ, τὰ ἐπὶ τοῖς οὐρανοῖς καὶ τὰ ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς.

ιβ. 15—17. διὰ τοῦτο καγὼ, ἀκούσας τὴν καθ' ὑμᾶς πίστιν ἐν τῷ κυρίῳ Ἰησοῦ καὶ τὴν εἰς πάντας τοὺς ἁγίους, οὐ παύομαι εὐχαριστῶν ὑπὲρ ὑμῶν μνεῖαν ποιούμενος ἐπὶ τῶν προσευχῶν μου, ἵνα ὁ θεὸς τοῦ κυρίου ἡμῶν Ἰ. Χρ., ὁ πατὴρ τῆς δόξης, δῶῃ ὑμῖν κ.τ.λ.

ιβ. 18. εἰς τὸ εἰδέναι ὑμᾶς τίς ἐστὶν ἡ ἐλπίς τῆς κλήσεως αὐτοῦ, τίς ὁ πλοῦτος τῆς δόξης τῆς κληρονομίας αὐτοῦ ἐν τοῖς ἁγίοις.

ιβ. 19. τὸ ὑπερβάλλον μέγεθος τ. δυνάμεως αὐτοῦ εἰς ἡμᾶς τοὺς πιστεύοντας κατὰ τὴν ἐνέργειαν τ. κράτους τ. ἰσχύος αὐτοῦ ἣν ἐνήργηκεν ἐν τῷ Χριστῷ ἐγείρας αὐτὸν ἐκ νεκρῶν.

ιβ. 21—23. ὑπεράνω πάσης ἀρχῆς καὶ ἐξουσίας καὶ δυνάμεως καὶ κυριότητος καὶ παντὸς ὀνόματος ὀνομαζομένου οὐ μόνον ἐν τῷ αἰῶνι τούτῳ ἀλλὰ καὶ ἐν τῷ μέλλοντι· καὶ πάντα ὑπέταξεν ὑπὸ τοὺς πόδας αὐτοῦ, καὶ αὐτὸν ἔδωκεν κεφαλὴν ὑπὲρ πάντα τῆ ἐκκλησίας, ἣτις ἐστὶ τὸ σῶμα αὐτοῦ, τὸ πλήρωμα τοῦ τὰ πάντα ἐν πᾶσιν πληρουμένου.

Colossians.

ιβ. 21. καὶ ὑμᾶς ποτὲ ὄντας κ.τ.λ.

ii. 13. καὶ ὑμᾶς νεκροὺς ὄντας τοῖς παραπτώμασιν κ. τῇ ἀκροβυστία τ. σαρκὸς ὑμῶν συνεζωποίησεν ὑμᾶς σὺν αὐτῷ.

ιβ. 12. ἐν ᾧ καὶ συνηγέρθητε (cf. iii. 1).

i. 21. καὶ ὑμᾶς ποτὲ ὄντας ἀπηλλοτριωμένους.

ii. 14. ἐξαλείψας τὸ καθ' ἡμῶν χειρόγραφον τοῖς δόγμασιν, ὃ ἦν ὑπεναντίον ἡμῖν.

i. 20. κ. δι' αὐτοῦ ἀποκαταλλάξαι τ. πάντα εἰς αὐτόν, εἰρηνοποιήσας διὰ τοῦ αἵματος τοῦ σταυροῦ αὐτοῦ.

ii. 7. ἔρριζωμένοι κ. ἐποικοδομούμενοι ἐν αὐτῷ καὶ βεβαιούμενοι τῇ πίστει.

i. 23—26. οὐ ἐγενόμην ἐγὼ Παῦλος διάκονος. Νῦν χαίρω ἐν τ. παθήμασιν ὑπὲρ ὑμῶν, κ. ἀναναπληρῶ τ. ὑστερήματα τ. θλίψεων τ. χριστοῦ ἐν τ. σαρκί μου ὑπὲρ τ. σώματος αὐτοῦ, ὃ ἐστὶν ἡ ἐκκλησία· ἧς ἐγενόμην ἐγὼ διάκονος κατὰ τὴν οἰκονομίαν τοῦ θεοῦ τὴν δοθείσάν μοι εἰς ὑμᾶς, πληρῶσαι τ. λόγον τ. θεοῦ, τὸ μυστήριον τὸ ἀποκεκρυμμένον ἀπὸ τ. αἰώνων κ. ἀπὸ τ. γενεῶν, νῦν δὲ ἐφανερῶθη τοῖς ἀγίοις αὐτοῦ.

ιβ. 29. εἰς ὃ καὶ κοπιῶ ἀγωνιζόμενος κατὰ τὴν ἐνέργειαν αὐτοῦ τὴν ἐνεργουμένην ἐν ἐμοὶ ἐν δυνάμει.

ιβ. 27. τὸ πλοῦτος τ. δόξης τ. μυστηρίου τούτου ἐν τ. ἔθνεσιν, ὃ ἐστὶν Χριστὸς ἐν ὑμῖν.

Ephesians.

ii. 1. καὶ ὑμᾶς ὄντας κ.τ.λ.

ιβ. 5. καὶ ὄντας ἡμᾶς νεκροὺς τοῖς παραπτώμασιν συνεζωποίησεν τῷ χριστῷ.

ιβ. 6. καὶ συνήγειρεν.

ιβ. 12. ὅτι ἦτε τῷ καιρῷ ἐκείνῳ (cf. v. 11 ὅτι ποτὲ ὑμεῖς) χωρὶς Χριστοῦ ἀπηλλοτριωμένοι τ. πολιτείας τ. Ἰσραὴλ.

ιβ. 15 f. τὴν ἔχθραν ἐν τῇ σαρκὶ αὐτοῦ, τὸν νόμον τῶν ἐντολῶν ἐν δόγμασιν, καταργήσας ἵνα τ. δύο κτίση ἐν αὐτῷ εἰς ἓνα καινὸν ἄνθρωπον ποιῶν εἰρήνην, καὶ ἀποκαταλλάξῃ τοὺς ἀμφοτέρους ἐν ἐνὶ σώματι τῷ θεῷ διὰ τοῦ σταυροῦ.

ιβ. 20 f. ἐποικοδομηθέντες... ὄντος ἀκρογωνιαίου αὐτοῦ Χρ. Ἰ., ἐν ᾧ πᾶσα οἰκοδομή κ.τ.λ.... (cf. iii. 17 ἔρριζωμένοι κ. τεθεμελιωμένοι).

iii. 1—3, 5. Τούτου χάριν ἐγὼ Παῦλος ὁ δέσμιος τοῦ χριστοῦ Ἰησοῦ ὑπὲρ ὑμῶν τῶν ἔθνων... εἶ γε ἠκούσατε τὴν οἰκονομίαν τῆς χάριτος τοῦ θεοῦ τῆς δοθείσης μοι εἰς ὑμᾶς, ὅτι κατὰ ἀποκάλυψιν ἐγνωρίσθη μοι τὸ μυστήριον... ὃ ἐτέραις γενεαῖς οὐκ ἐγνωρίσθη τ. υἱοῖς τ. ἀνθρώπων ὡς νῦν ἀπεκαλύφθη τοῖς ἀγίοις ἀποστόλοις αὐτοῦ κ. προφήταις ἐν πνεύματι.

ιβ. 7. οὐ ἐγενήθην διάκονος κατὰ τὴν δωρεάν τ. χάριτος τ. θεοῦ τ. δοθείσης μοι κατὰ τὴν ἐνέργειαν τῆς δυνάμεως αὐτοῦ.

ιβ. 8 f. τοῖς ἔθνεσιν εὐαγγελίσασθαι τὸ ἀνεξιχνίαστον πλοῦτος τ. χριστοῦ, κ. φωτίσαι τίς ἡ οἰκονομία τ. μυστηρίου τ. ἀποκεκρυμμένου ἀπὸ τ. αἰώνων.

‘It is difficult indeed to say, considering the patent coincidences of expression in the two Epistles, whether the points of likeness or of unlikeness between them are the more remarkable. No one can doubt that either one Epistle was an intentional copy of the other or else that both were written at very nearly the same time by the same author. It is when we are considering the doctrinal substance of the Epistles that the latter conclusion forces itself upon us most irresistibly as the true one. These two letters are twins, singularly like one another in face, like also in character, but not so identical as to be without a strongly marked individuality.’ (Davies: The Epistles of St Paul to the Ephesians, the Colossians and Philemon, p. 7.)

‘The Epistle to the Ephesians stands to the Epistle to the Colossians in very much the same relation as the Romans to the Galatians. The one is the general and systematic exposition of the same truths which appear in a special bearing in the other.’ (Lightfoot: Biblical Essays, p. 395.)

(d) 'Ephesians' and 'Romans.'

'St Paul has two comparatively general Epistles, the Epistle to the Romans and the Epistle to the Ephesians and the contrast between them illustrates both. Both are full of the especially Pauline Gospel that the Gentiles are fellow-heirs, but the one glances chiefly to the past, the other to the future. The unity at which the former Epistle seems to arrive by slow and painful steps, is assumed in the latter as a starting-point with a vista of wondrous possibilities beyond.'

'In the Epistle to the Ephesians the great mystery of the Christian Society is set forth under two images which include the essential truths of all later speculations. It is the Body of Christ in virtue of the one life which it derives from Him who is its Head, and it is the Temple of God, so far as it is built up in various ages and of various elements on the foundations which Christ laid, and of which He is the corner-stone. In the Pastoral Epistles this teaching is realised in the outlines of a visible society.'

(History of the Canon of the N. T., p. 32.)

IX. RELATION TO OTHER APOSTOLIC WRITINGS.

(a) The Epistle to the Ephesians and the First Epistle of St Peter.

‘The connexion, though close, does not lie on the surface. It is shewn more by identities of thought and similarity in the structure of the two Epistles as wholes than by identities of phrase.’

(Hort, Introductory Lecture to First Epistle of St Peter, p. 5.)

‘The truth is that in the First Epistle of St Peter many thoughts are derived from the Epistle to the Ephesians, as others are from that to the Romans; but St Peter makes them fully his own by the form into which he casts them, a form for the most part unlike what we find in any Epistle of St Paul’s.’

(id. Prolegomena to Ephesians, p. 169.)

[The ‘parallelisms,’ as here exhibited, are for the most part noted either in Dr Westcott’s Commentary itself or in Hort’s notes on 1 Pet. i. 1—ii. 17 or in Prof. Abbott’s Introduction, pp. xxiv ff., if not in all of these works.]

[It has been more than once observed that there is little in common between St Paul's Epistle 'to the Ephesians' and the Epistle, in the Apocalypse, addressed 'to the Angel of the Church in Ephesus.' Regarded as a Pastoral, written to the Churches of the province of Asia generally, the Pauline Epistle may naturally be compared rather with the Seven Letters in the Apocalypse taken together. The following are possible parallelisms, suggested by such comparison.]

Ephesians.

X. HISTORIC FACTS OF THE GOSPEL TO WHICH REFERENCE IS MADE IN 'EPHESIANS.'

The Incarnation and life of Christ on earth.

ii. 15. 'having abolished the enmity...the law of commandments in ordinances...in His flesh,' i.e. under the conditions of our mortal life.

The Passion.

i. 7. 'in Whom we have our redemption through His blood (διὰ τοῦ αἵματος αὐτοῦ).'

ii. 13. 'were made near (ἐγενήθητε ἐγγύς) in the blood of the Christ'—the reference being "to the—redemption of the Gentiles once for all accomplished by Christ's— Passion."

ib. 16. 'and reconcile them...to God through the cross (διὰ τοῦ σταυροῦ).'

v. 2. 'even as Christ also loved you and gave Himself up (παρέδωκεν ἑαυτὸν) for us.'

ib. 25. 'even as Christ loved the Church and gave Himself up for it.'

The Descent into Hades is probably [included in that] which is described in the words κατέβη εἰς τὰ κατώτερα τῆς γῆς (iv. 9) and ὁ καταβάς (v. 10) [v. notes ad loc.].

The Resurrection.

i. 19, 20. 'according to the working of the might of His strength, which He wrought in the Christ, when He raised Him from the dead' (ἐγείρας αὐτὸν ἐκ νεκρῶν).

ii. 6. 'and raised us up with Him (συνήγειρεν).'

The Ascension.

i. 20. 'and made Him to sit at His right hand in the heavenly order.'

iv. 8, 10. 'When He ascended up on high (ἀναβὰς εἰς ὕψος)... Now this He ascended (τὸ δέ Ἄνέβη)... He that descended He Himself is also He that ascended far above all the Heavens.'

The absence from the Epistle of any clear reference to the 'Return' is to be noted. (But cf. iv. 30 εἰς ἡμέραν ἀπολυτρώσεως and notes on i. 14; also i. 18.)

The descent of the Holy Spirit at Pentecost as a special gift to the Church is implied in i. 13 f., 'in Whom ye also, having heard the word of the truth, the gospel of your salvation,—in Whom, having also believed, ye were sealed with the Spirit of promise, the Holy Spirit, which is an earnest of our inheritance' [v. not. ad loc.].

With iv. 11 'pastors (ποιμένας) and teachers,' the only place [in the N.T.] in which ποιμήν is the definite title of an office [v. not. ad loc.] may be compared Jo. xxi. 16 'He saith unto him, Tend (ποίμαινε) my sheep.'

XI. CHARACTERISTICS.

‘In this Epistle St Paul still dwells on the same class of truths as in the Epistle to the Colossians. Only whereas in the Colossians he combats error directly, he here combats it indirectly; whereas there he is special, distinct, personal, here he speaks broadly and generally.’ (Lightfoot, Biblical Essays, p. 395.)

‘Besides this, St Paul has given to his teaching a new centre. In this Epistle it revolves about the doctrine of the Church. The same truths which in the Epistle to the Colossians are advanced to combat a peculiar phase of false doctrine, have here a place as leading up to the doctrine of the Church. Compare, for example, the treatment of the subject of Christ the Logos in Col. i. 1, ii. 9 with Eph. i. 22, or of the law of ordinances in Col. ii. 14 with Eph. ii. 14, 15, or again the practical lessons of the relations of husbands and wives in Col. iii. 18, 19 with Eph. v. 25 f., 32. The propriety of this new centre of teaching is obvious when we remember that it is addressed not in a special letter to an individual Church, but in an encyclical to several Churches.’ (id. ib.)

The Epistle to the Ephesians ‘conducts us from the two peoples who are so prominent in the Epistle to the Romans to the one people, or one man, which in that Epistle is nowhere explicitly set forth, though it is implied in its teachings and aspirations..., but now in the Epistle to the Ephesians is to be brought into clear prominence.’ (Hort, Prolegomena, p. 179.)

‘This idea—of the unity of Christians as forming a single society with Christ for its invisible Head—which in different forms dominates the whole Epistle, was the natural outflow of the Apostle’s mind at this time, as determined by the course of outward and inward history on the basis of his primary faith. It was needed to be set forth for the completion of his Gospel. On the other hand it was equally needed for the instruction of the no longer infant churches of Western Asia Minor.' (id. ib.)

In reading the Epistle we all feel the grandeur of the vision, which it opens, of the unity of Creation.

Experience more and more shews us that we were born to strive for it. It is brought ever nearer.

St Paul enforces this truth when he tells of the 'mystery' entrusted to him—the incorporation of the Gentiles in the Body of Christ.

Having set forth the truth—unsearchable, inexhaustible, and extending 'unto all the ages of the ages,' he goes on to shew that it yet finds its application in the commonest virtues.

'Walk worthily,' he says, 'of the calling wherewith ye are called.'

The consummation depends on the co-operation of all to whom the truth has been made known.

'There is one God and Father of all, Who is over all and through all and in all.'

Here is our sufficient, and unfailing hope.

'But to each of us'—here is our strength and our responsibility—'was given'—not 'will be' in the future, but 'was' given—the grace which we severally need for the fulfilment of our specific functions.

While we keep in mind the whole, we must do our part.

And our part is determined for us, that we may contribute to the great whole.

Our grace—the Divine help accorded us—is proportional to the place which our part has in the great unity.

The unity of life, of all life, nay of all being, of the seen and the unseen: and, specially the fellowship of man with men and of man with God.

The Epistle to the Ephesians...in the fewest words commends this aspect of Creation to us, and it is...of intense practical significance.

If we believe in the unity shewn under three different aspects in Eph. ii. 14—18, hope and confidence will return, when we look on the unfathomable sadnesses of life ; if we believe that for each of us a work is prepared which we can do, if we surrender ourselves to God (ii. 10), we shall be saved from the restless anxiety of self-chosen plans ; if we believe that all the details of ordinary life have a spiritual side and opportunities of service (v. 20 f.: cf. Col. iii. 17), we shall be enabled perhaps to preach our Gospel a little more effectually in life.

[Part of the foregoing is taken from a letter, published in the 'Life and Letters' of Bishop Westcott, vol. ii. p. 232, the rest from notes for an unpublished sermon.]

'The forces of Nature, so to speak, are revealed to us as gathered together and crowned in man, and the diversities of men as gathered together and crowned in the Son of Man ; and so we are encouraged to look forward to the end, to a unity of which every imaginary unity on earth is a phantom or a symbol, when the will of the Father shall be accomplished and He shall sum up all things in Christ—all things and not simply all persons—both the things in the heavens and the things upon the earth (Eph. i. 10.)' (Christus Consummator, p. 103.)

'Men, so to speak, furnish the manifold elements through which (in the language of St Paul) a body of Christ (Eph. i. 23) is shaped ; just as the world furnishes the elements through which man himself finds expression for his character.' (ib. p. 106.)

'In the Epistle to the Ephesians St Paul lays open a vision of the spiritual origins and influences and issues of things temporal, and confirms the truth which lies in the bold surmise of the poet that earth is in some sense a shadow of heaven.

'Now he sees in the fabric of the material Temple with its "wall of partition" a figure of the state of the world before the Advent, and then passes to the contemplation of its living antitype, built on the foundation of apostles and prophets with Christ for its head corner-stone. Now he traces in the organisation of the natural body the pattern of a glorious society fitly framed together by the ministries of every part, and guided by the animating energy of a Divine Head.

‘Now he shews how through the experience of the Church on earth the manifold wisdom of God is made known to the heavenly hierarchy. Now he declares that marriage, in which the distinctive gifts and graces of divided humanity are brought together in harmonious fellowship is a sign, a sacrament in his own language, of that perfect union in which the Incarnate Word takes to Himself His Bride, the firstfruits of creation.’ (The Incarnation and Common Life, p. 161.)

‘The concluding appeal or peroration (vi. 10—20), breathing a very lofty and eloquent tone, contains a carefully-wrought account of the warfare between the Church and the powers of darkness and evil which brood over the world. It is to be observed that here as generally throughout the Apostolic writings, the imagery is borrowed from the poetical books of the Old Testament. Most of it may be found in the book of Isaiah. The warfare described is not the battle of the individual Christian for his own salvation, but the greater conflict in which Christ leads His forces against the enemy, the war of the Gospel against the powers which keep mankind in slavery. But individual Christians are the soldiers in this war, and the armour mentioned is such as individual Christians must put on.

‘The sentences with which the Epistle closes,—the mention and commendation of the messenger who was to carry it, and the usual benedictory prayer,—remind us that this was a bonâ fide pastoral letter, addressed to Christians, who looked up to St Paul as their teacher.’ (Llewelyn Davies, Introduction to the Ephesians, p. 25.)

XII. PLAN OF THE EPISTLE.

A. THE CHRISTIAN DISPENSATION.

THE UNITY AND UNIVERSALITY OF THE CHURCH, ETERNAL FACTS NOW AT LAST REVEALED (i.—iii.).

SALUTATION (i. 1, 2).

I. A HYMN OF PRAISE TO GOD FOR THE REDEMPTION AND CONSUMMATION OF THINGS CREATED IN CHRIST (i. 3—14).

1. The work of the Divine love: the fulness of the Divine blessing realised 'in Christ' (v. 3).

2. The bestowal of the blessing (4—14)

(a) wrought out before time in the eternal order according to the Divine idea (4—6),

(b) and realised in time in spite of man's fall (7—14).

II. THANKSGIVING FOR FAITH REALISED: PRAYER FOR DEEPER KNOWLEDGE: GENERAL EXPOSITION OF THE WORK OF CHRIST FOR MEN (i. 15—ii. 22).

1. Thanksgiving for the faith of the Ephesians (i. 15, 16 a).

2. Prayer for their fuller enlightenment (i. 16 b—21).

3. The work of God for men in Christ,—overcoming personal disqualifications (i. 22—ii. 10).

4. Union of Jews and Gentiles in one Divine Body (ii. 11—22).

III. THE GRANDEUR OF THE REVELATION MADE TO ST PAUL. PRAYER FOR FULLER UNDERSTANDING IN THOSE WHO RECEIVE IT (iii.).

1. Revelation to St Paul of the central truth, or 'mystery,' of the universality of the Gospel (1—13).

2. Prayer that those who receive it may be enabled to apprehend its lessons (14—19).

Doxology (20, 21).

B. THE CHRISTIAN LIFE (iv. 1—vi. 20).

I. THE GROUND, THE GROWTH, THE CHARACTER OF THE CHRISTIAN LIFE (iv. 1—24).

1. The correspondence of life and faith (1—3).
2. The unity and harmonious growth of the Christian Society, that Body of which Christ is the Head (4—16).
3. Contrast of the old life and the new (17—24):
 - (a) the old life (17—19),
 - (b) the new life (20—24).

II. THE OUTWARD MANIFESTATION OF THE CHRISTIAN LIFE, PERSONAL AND SOCIAL (iv. 25—vi. 9).

1. Special features in the Christian character (iv. 25—v. 14): truth (v. 25), control of anger (26 f.), honest labour (28), good language (29 f.), tenderheartedness (32), lovingkindness (v. 1 f.), as opposed to impure and selfish indulgence. The Christian life the life of a child of light (7—14).

2. Cardinal social relationships (v. 15—vi. 9).
 - (a) Social conduct and temper in general (15—21).
 - (b) Wives and husbands (22—33).
 - (c) Children and parents (vi. 1—4).
 - (d) Servants and masters (5—9).

III. THE CHRISTIAN WARFARE (vi. 10—20).

EPILOGUE.

Personal message (vi. 21, 22).

ΠΑΥΛΟΣ ΑΠΟΣΤΟΛΟΣ Χριστοῦ Ἰησοῦ διὰ θελή-ματος θεοῦ τοῖς ἀγίοις τοῖς οὖσιν [ἐν Ἐφέσῳ] καὶ

1 om. ἐν Ἐφέσῳ N*B 67 codd vet ap Bas.

1, 2. SALUTATION.

¹ Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus through the will of God, to the saints which are at Ephesus and faithful in Christ Jesus: ² Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

1. Παῦλος] In the cognate letters to the Colossians and Philemon, St Paul joins with himself 'Timothy our brother.' The Epistles to the Romans, Galatians and the Pastoral Epistles are written in his own name alone.

ἀπόστολος X. Ἰ.] Compare Tit. i. 1 δούλος θεοῦ ἀπόστολος δὲ Ἰ. X.; Philemon 1 δέσμιος X. Ἰ. The title marks the writer as the accredited envoy of his Lord: comp. John xvii. 18.

διὰ θελ. θεοῦ] 1 Cor. i. 1; 2 Cor. i. 1; Col. i. 1. The thought is expanded in Gal. i. 1 and Rom. i. 1, 5, which form the best commentary on the phrase, though the controversial colouring present there has no place here. Conscious dependence upon God Who had called him is the source and strength of St Paul's ministry. Self is lost in God (comp. c. ii. 10). Per voluntatem Dei, subauditur Patris, non meis meritis (Primas.). The original Divine call was the foundation for the Apostle's separation for his special work: Acts xiii. 2.

The thought finds a somewhat different expression in 1 Tim. i. 1.

Man's freedom lies in the acceptance of God's will as his will. The Apostle feels God's purpose for him and welcomes it. All he does is (in purpose) the fulfilment of the will of God.

τοῖς ἀγίοις... Ἰησοῦ] St Paul addresses not the organised body 'the [local] Church' (as in writing to the Thessalonians and Corinthians, comp. Acts xx. 17; Apoc. ii. 1 &c.) or local 'churches' (as in writing to the Galatians), but 'the saints' (as in the Epistles to the Romans, Philippians, Colossians), using the title which was common to all Christians. The word suggests the idea of a Catholic Church, in which 'the saints and faithful' scattered throughout the world were united. Even in this slight trait we can recognise the influence of the conception of the empire on the Apostle. Compare c. iii. 18.

The clause τοῖς οὖσιν ἐν Ἐφέσῳ is intercalated naturally in the fundamental phrase τοῖς ἀγίοις καὶ πιστοῖς to the saints and faithful. The corresponding enlargement in Col. i. 2 τοῖς ἐν Κολοσσαῖς ἀγίοις καὶ πιστοῖς ἀδελφοῖς brings out the meaning clearly. The words ἐν X. Ἰ. go with the whole sentence: 'being as you are in Christ Jesus': incorporated in Him and living by His life. The words are not to be taken here or in πιστοῖς ἐν Χριστῷ Ἰησοῦ. ² χάρις ὑμῖν καὶ εἰρήνη ἀπὸ θεοῦ πατρὸς ἡμῶν καὶ κυρίου Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ.

1 Cor. iv. 17 with πιστός. Comp. c. vi. 21; and Addit. Note on ἐν Χριστῷ.

For the sense of ἅγιος see 1 John ii. 20 and for the absolute use of πιστός see Acts x. 45; 1 Tim. iv. 3, 12; v. 16; vi. 2; Tit. i. 6.

The three characteristics saints, faithful, in Christ Jesus, give a complete and harmonious view of those to whom St Paul writes. He addresses men who are consecrated to God in a Divine Society (saints), who are inspired by a personal devotion towards Him (faithful), who are in Him in Whom the Church finds its unity and life (c. iv. 16). Thus the order saints, faithful, is seen to be perfectly natural. The two thoughts are complementary: God's will, man's answer. So the thought of the social consecration to God precedes the thought of the continuous individual faith by which the members of the body keep their place in it.

The word πιστοῖς may mean either (1) 'trustworthy,' or (2) 'believing.' The rendering 'faithful' contains elements of both and best represents the meaning here.

The fundamental idea of ἅγιος is consecration to God. Consecration to God implies either in purpose or in attainment conformity to His will.

The word is found of Christians in Acts xxvi. 10 (St Paul); in all St Paul's Epistles except that to the Galatians; in Hebrews, Jude, Apocalypse; but it is not found in the Epistles of St James, St Peter and St John.

2. χάρις καὶ εἰρήνη] The uniform salutation of St Paul in his Epistles to Churches. The words of common courtesy become words of solemn blessing. Christ Himself blesses through the believer.

For εἰρήνη see Phil. iv. 7; John xiv. 27; Col. iii. 15.

ἀπὸ θεοῦ πατρὸς ἡμῶν...] The ἡμῶν is omitted in the salutations 2 Thess.

i. 2; 1 Tim. i. 2; 2 Tim. i. 2; Tit. i. 4; and in the corresponding phrase c. vi. 23. For the different shade of thought compare the use of ὁ πατήρ and ὁ πατήρ μου in St John. (Addit. Note on 1 John i. 2.)

καὶ κ. 'I. X.] The Lord Jesus Christ is united with the Father in all the salutations of St Paul. The language in 1 Thess. i. 1, 2 Thess. i. 1—2 and Tit. i. 4 is specially worthy of notice.

Primasius adds justly: cum ab utroque gratia optatur, unum (ἐν John x. 30) esse monstrantur.

I. A HYMN OF PRAISE TO GOD FOR THE REDEMPTION AND CONSUMMATION OF THINGS CREATED IN CHRIST (i. 3—14).

The whole passage is a Psalm of praise for the redemption and consummation of created things, fulfilled in Christ through the Spirit according to the eternal purpose of God.

This fulfilment is contemplated specially in the relation of believers to Christ, chosen in Him, redeemed, enlightened, sealed.

That which has been done already is the pledge of that which shall be.

The general sequence of thought is clear. The work of the Divine love is summarily characterised in v. 3; and then it is analysed in detail, as it was wrought beyond time in the eternal order (v. 4—6), and then historically realised in time in the experience of believers, both Jews and Gentiles (v. 7—14).

From first to last the fulness of the Divine blessing is shewn to be realised 'in Christ' (v. 3).

In Him God chose us (v. 4).

In the Beloved He graced us (v. 6).

In Him we have our redemption (v. 7); even as God purposed in Him to sum up all things in the Christ (v. 10).

In Him the faithful of Israel were made a Divine heritage (v. 11).

3 Εὐλογητὸς ὁ θεὸς καὶ πατὴρ τοῦ κυρίου ἡμῶν

In Him the Gentiles found a place (c. 13).

In Him they were sealed by the Spirit (c. 13), the pledge of a larger hope (c. 14).

The rhythmical structure of the passage will be apparent, if it is arranged according to the succession of the principal clauses; and at the same time some obscurities of construction will be removed when attention is fixed on the dominant finite verbs (as in Phil. ii. 6—11).

- 3 Εὐλογητὸς ὁ θεὸς καὶ πατὴρ τοῦ κυρίου ἡμῶν Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ, ὁ εὐλόγησας ἡμᾶς ἐν πάσῃ εὐλογίᾳ πνευματικῇ ἐν τοῖς ἐπουρανίοις ἐν Χριστῷ, 4 καθὼς ἐξελέξατο ἡμᾶς ἐν αὐτῷ πρὸ καταβολῆς κόσμου, εἶναι ἡμᾶς ἁγίους καὶ ἀμώμους κατενώπιον αὐτοῦ ἐν ἀγάπῃ, 5 προορίσας ἡμᾶς εἰς υἰοθεσίαν διὰ Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ εἰς αὐτόν, κατὰ τὴν εὐδοκίαν τοῦ θελήματος αὐτοῦ, 6 εἰς ἔπαινον δόξης τῆς χάριτος αὐτοῦ ἧς ἐχαρίτωσεν ἡμᾶς ἐν τῷ ἡγαπημένῳ, 7 ἐν ᾧ ἔχομεν τὴν ἀπολύτρωσιν διὰ τοῦ αἵματος αὐτοῦ, τὴν ἄφεσιν τῶν παραπτωμάτων, κατὰ τὸ πλοῦτος τῆς χάριτος αὐτοῦ
8 ἧς ἐπερίσσευσεν εἰς ἡμᾶς ἐν πάσῃ σοφίᾳ καὶ φρονήσει 9 γνωρίσας ἡμῖν τὸ μυστήριον τοῦ θελήματος αὐτοῦ, κατὰ τὴν εὐδοκίαν αὐτοῦ ἣν πρόεθετο ἐν αὐτῷ 10 εἰς οἰκονομίαν τοῦ πληρώματος τῶν καιρῶν, ἀνακεφαλαιώσασθαι τὰ πάντα ἐν τῷ Χριστῷ, τὰ ἐπὶ τοῖς οὐρανοῖς καὶ
τὰ ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς· 11 ἐν αὐτῷ, ἐν ᾧ καὶ ἐκληρώθημεν προορισθέντες κατὰ πρόθεσιν τοῦ τὰ πάντα ἐνεργοῦντος κατὰ τὴν βουλὴν τοῦ θελήματος αὐτοῦ, 12 εἰς τὸ εἶναι ἡμᾶς εἰς ἔπαινον δόξης αὐτοῦ τοὺς προηλπικώτας ἐν τῷ Χριστῷ· 13 ἐν ᾧ καὶ ὑμεῖς ἀκούσαντες τὸν λόγον τῆς ἀληθείας, τὸ εὐαγγέλιον τῆς σωτηρίας ὑμῶν, ἐν ᾧ καὶ πιστεύσαντες, ἐσφραγίσθητε τῷ πνεύματι τ. ἐπαγγελίας τ. ἀγίῳ, 14 ὃ ἐστὶν ἄρραβὼν τῆς κληρονομίας ἡμῶν, εἰς ἀπολύτρωσιν τῆς περιποιήσεως, εἰς ἔπαινον τῆς δόξης αὐτοῦ.

(1) The work of the divine love: the blessing of Him Who blessed (c. 3).

Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, Who blessed us in all spiritual blessing in the heavenly order in Christ.

3. The verse is man's adoring response to God for the manifestation of His love.

Εὐλογ...[I. X.] The whole phrase is found again in 1 Pet. i. 3, in thanksgiving for the gift of new birth, together with the prospect of an eternal inheritance; and in 2 Cor. i. 3 in thanksgiving for effective consolation in distress.

The word εὐλογητός expresses the claim to be blessed as of right. In this respect it stands in contrast with εὐλογημένος, which is used of a person who has been visited with blessing (Lk. i. (28), 42 [contrast i. 68]; xiii. 35; xix. 38, &c.; in John xii. 13 D₁ reads εὐλογητός). The distinction is recognised by Philo de migr. Abr. 19. Εὐλογητός is used in the N. T. of God only eight times (St Mk xiv. 61 ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ εὐλογητοῦ, St Lk., St Paul, 1 Pet.). In the LXX. it is used of men, but not absolutely (Gen. xxvi. 29 ὑπὸ κυρίου; Deut. vii. 14; Ruth ii. 20; 1 Sam. xv. 13, &c.).

Compare Ezra Abbot, Essays p. 410; Hort on 1 Pet. i. 3.

It is uncertain whether εἴη or ἐστίν is to be supplied with εὐλογητός—whether the phrase is a wish or an affirmation. The other instances in the N. T. give no clear decision. The examples in 2 Cor. i. 3 and 1 Pet. i. 3 are exactly parallel. Luke i. 68 suggests 'be' by the following ὅτι. Rom. ix. 5 is uncertain. The affirmative sense is definitely expressed in Rom. i. 25 (ὅς ἐστὶν εὐλ.), and 2 Cor. xi. 31 (ὁ ὢν εὐλ.). On the whole the rendering Blessed be... seems to be the most natural. V. L. benedictus est.

ὁ θεὸς καὶ πατὴρ τ. κ. ἡμ. Ἰ. X.] Both titles may be taken with the genitive: 'the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.' He Who is 'our God and Father' is also 'the God and the Father' of the Lord: John xx. 17 πρὸς τὸν πατέρα μου καὶ πατέρα ὑμῶν καὶ θεόν μου καὶ θεὸν ὑμῶν. The title 'the God of our Lord Jesus Christ' occurs v. 17 (compare Heb. i. 9; Matt. xxvii. 46); but 'the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ' in c. iii. 14 is a false reading.

On the other hand the corresponding phrase in Col. i. 3 τῷ θεῷ πατρὶ τοῦ κ. ἡ. Ἰ. X. is unambiguous—God the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ; and the words here can be understood in this sense: God Who is also Father of our Lord Jesus Christ. In this case the article is taken with the whole compound phrase θεὸς καὶ π. τ. κ. Ἰ. X.: 'He Who is God and is further revealed as Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.'

There is the same ambiguity in the other places where the phrase occurs: 2 Cor. i. 3; xi. 31; Rom. xv. 6; 1 Pet. i. 3. But in Apoc. i. 6 τῷ θεῷ καὶ πατρὶ αὐτοῦ (i.e. Ἰ. X.); 1 Cor. xv. 24 ὅταν παραδιδῶ τὴν βασ. τῷ θεῷ καὶ πατρὶ the sense appears to be clear.

ὁ εὐλογήσας...] Who blessed..., not 'who blesses' or 'who will bless.' The work of God for us is potentially complete. Probably the time to which St Paul looks is the call of each believer when he was made partaker of the truth of the Incarnation.

The divine blessing is regarded under three co-ordinate aspects (ἐν, ἐν, ἐν): ἐν π. εὐλογία, the atmosphere, as it were, by which it encompasses us; ἐν τοῖς ἐπουρανίοις, the order in which it is realised; ἐν Χριστῷ, the living Person in Whom it is centred. A true personal sense of this blessing, which is a matter of experience and not of testimony, gives the right interpretation of life and duty and service.

For the use of the aorist in regard to the Divine work of redemption in different relations, compare v. 4 ἐξέλεξαστο, v. 5 προορίσας, v. 6 ἐχαρίτωσεν. 2 Tim. i. 9; Tit. iii. 5.

ἡμᾶς] St Paul unites himself in this respect with his fellow-believers; compare 1 John ii. 1 f. note. He assumes that his own experience is theirs. He is not teaching a new truth, but reminding them of one with which they were familiar. The repetition of ἡμεῖς throughout this section is to be noticed. Elsewhere the passage from the general thought of Christian privileges to the special grace shewn to the Gentiles is most suggestive: vs. 12, 13; cc. i. 18—20; iii. 8—10; iv. 1, 7, 13, 20; vi. 11—20. ἐν πάσῃ εὐλ. πν.] in all spiritual blessing, in spiritual blessing of every form (c. 8 ἐν πάσῃ σοφίᾳ; iv. 2 μετὰ πάσης ταπεινοφροσύνης note), blessing, that is, which quickens and finds its place in our highest life. All human powers can be spiritually affected. Compare 1 Cor. i. 30; Col. ii. 9 f. 'Spiritual' is opposed to that which is earthly and sensuous (1 Cor. xv. 44 ff.) in its source and form and object; compare 1 Pet. ii. 5. With this exception the word πνευματικός is found (more than twenty times) only in St Paul's Epistles. The temporal blessings of the Old Covenant are contrasted by implication with the spiritual blessings of the New.

ἐν τοῖς ἐπουρανίοις] Vg. in caelestibus, in the heavenly order. The phrase (τὰ ἐπουράνια), as it is here used, is peculiar to this Epistle (not in Colossians). It describes the supra-mundane, supra-sensual, eternal order, or, as we should say, generally 'the spiritual world,' which is perceived by thought and not by sight (2 Cor. iv. 18). This is not distant or future but present, the scene even now of the Christian's struggle (c. vi. 12), where (for we are forced by the limitation of our minds to localise the conception) his life is already centred (Phil. iii. 20 ἡμῶν τὸ πολίτευμα ἐν οὐρανοῖς ὑπάρχει; comp. c. ii. 19), and his strength is assured to him, and his triumph is already realised (cc. i. 20; ii. 6). Ναὺ, even more, the work of the Church is to make known in this region of a higher life the facts of the Lord's Coming (c. iii. 10). Comp. Orig. ὅρα ἐπὶ δύναται τὸ ἐν τοῖς ἐπουρανίοις εἶναι ἀπὸ τοῦ ἐν τοῖς νοητοῖς καὶ ἔξω αἰσθήσεων.

Elsewhere the adj. ἐπουράνιος is used for that which belongs to the spiritual world: John iii. 12 (of heavenly truths); Heb. viii. 5 note; ix. 23 (of the heavenly archetypes of the Levitical institutions); 2 Tim. iv. 18 (the heavenly kingdom); Phil. ii. 10 (as contrasted with ἐπίγειος and καταχθόνιος). Compare also 1 Cor. xv. 48 f., where this word is applied to Christ as the 'spiritual,' 'supra-mundane' man.

ἐν Χριστῷ] In virtue of our union with Him, 'in Whom are all the treasures of knowledge and wisdom hidden' (Col. ii. 3), of which we potentially become partakers. See v. 1 and additional note.

Observe the continual reiteration of the thought throughout this section: 4 ἐν αὐτῷ; 6 ἐν τῷ ἡγαπημένῳ; 7 ἐν ᾧ; 9 ἐν αὐτῷ; 10 ἐν τῷ Χριστῷ; 11 ἐν αὐτῷ; ἐν ᾧ; (12 ἐν τῷ Χριστῷ); 13 ἐν ᾧ, ἐν ᾧ. Contrast διὰ Ἰ. X. c. 5.

The blessing which God has bestowed upon us is, to sum what has been said, spiritual in its essence, spiritual in the sphere of its action, spiritual in its personal realisation. Compare Col. iii. 1—4. The life of the Christian is ideally lived 'in Christ,' 'in the heavenly order.' Contrast the blessing 'in Christ' with the blessing 'in Abraham' (Gen. xii. 3).

The repetition of the cognate forms εὐλογητός, εὐλογήσας, εὐλογία, though in somewhat different senses, for God blesses in deed and we in word, is characteristic of St Paul. Compare 2 Cor. v. 18 ff. So below v. 6 τῆς χάριτος...ἧς ἐχαρίτωσεν ἡμᾶς.

(2) The bestowal of the blessing (4—14) (a) wrought out before time in the eternal order, according to the Divine idea (4—6), (b) and realised in time, in spite of man's fall (7—14).

The blessing described generally in c. 3 is now regarded in the details of its bestowal. In describing these, the Apostle brings into sight the work of each person of the Holy Trinity: of the Father in the eternal purpose of His love (vr. 4—6); of the Son in His Incarnation (vr. 7—12); of the Holy Spirit in giving now to each believer the earnest of His inheritance (vr. 13, 14). Compare 1 Cor. xii. 4—6.

The form of the whole section is, as has been already said, that of a lyrical doxology; and the close of each division is marked by the solemn burden, found only here, which de-πνευματικῇ ἐν τοῖς ἐπουρανίοις ἐν Χριστῷ, ⁴καθὼς ἐξέ-λέξατο ἡμᾶς ἐν αὐτῷ πρὸ καταβολῆς κόσμου, εἶναι ἡμᾶς clares that the several aspects and stages of Redemption are unto the praise of the glory of God (v. 6, 12, 14).

(a) The blessing wrought out before time in the eternal order according to the Divine idea (v. 4—6).

In this work we notice:

an election to holiness (v. 4), resting on predestination to son-ship (v. 5), followed by the gift of God's grace whereby we are made meet for His presence (v. 6).

⁴ Even as He chose us in Him before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy and without blemish before Him in love; ⁵ having fore-ordained us unto adoption as sons through Jesus Christ unto Himself, according to the good pleasure of His will, ⁶ to the praise of the glory of His grace, which He freely bestowed on us in the Beloved.

4. καθὼς...] The several points which follow display the mode and the measure of the blessing with which God has blessed us. The historical fulfilment in time corresponds with the eternal Divine will. St Paul piles up phrase on phrase to shew that all is of God's timeless love.

ἐξέλεξατο] He chose us (i.e. Christians as a body v. 3) for Himself out of the world. The word ἐκλέγεσθαι is found in the Epistles only in 1 Cor. i. 27, 28 and James ii. 5 in addition to this place. The theological sense of the word is seen most clearly in the words of the Lord recorded by St John: vi. 70; xiii. 18; xv. 16—19. (Compare Mk xiii. 20; Acts xiii. 17.) The derivatives ἐκλεκτός (Synoptists, St Paul, 1 Peter, 2 John, Apoc.) and ἐκλογή (Acts, St Paul, 2 Pet.) must be considered with ἐκλέεσθαι. The middle voice emphasises in all the places, where ἐκλέεσθαι is used in the N. T., the relation of the person chosen to the special purpose of him who chooses. The 'chosen' are regarded not as they stand to others who are not chosen, but as they stand to the counsel of God Who works through them. Compare Lightfoot, Col. iii. 12. The ἐκλογή, like the ἐκκλησία, is preparatory to a wider work (v. 10, 14).

πρὸ κατ. κ.] Vg. ante mundi constitutionem, before the foundation of the world. As the thought of 'the heavenly order,' the scene of the Christian's life, lifts us above the limits of space, so the origin of his life is placed beyond the limits of time. The members of Christ are placed in an eternal relation to Christ their Head. The same phrase (πρὸ κατ. κ.) is used of the love of the Father for His Son, John xvii. 24, and of the work of Redemption in the Son (1 Pet. i. 20). Compare also 1 Cor. ii. 7 πρὸ τῶν αἰώνων, 2 Tim. i. 9 πρὸ χρόνων αἰώνων || Tit. i. 2. The Jewish Covenant was from Abraham, late in time: the Christian Covenant was before all time: compare John viii. 56 ff. Contrast with πρὸ κατ. κ. the corresponding phrase ἀπὸ κατ. κ. from the foundation of the world, since time began: Matt. xxv. 34; Lk. xi. 50; Heb. iv. 3; ix. 26; Apoc. xiii. 8; xvii. 8. Comp. Rom. xvi. 25 (χρόνοις αἰώνιους). A like difference lies between ἐν ἀρχῇ John i. 1 f. and ἀπ' ἀρχῆς 1 John i. 1.

For καταβολή see 2 Macc. ii. 29. It is not used elsewhere in LXX. Καταβάλλειν, βάλλεισθαι and καταβολή are used rarely in classical writers of 'foundation,' literal or metaphorical.

εἶναι ἡμᾶς...] that we should be holy (as devoted to Him) and without blemish (as acceptable offerings) before Him, in whose sight no evil can stand. For ἄγιος see v. 1. Ἄμωμος is properly 'blameless' morally ἀγίους καὶ ἀμώμους κατενώπιον αὐτοῦ ἐν ἀγάπῃ, ⁵προ-ορίσας ἡμᾶς εἰς υἰοθεσίαν διὰ Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ εἰς αὐτόν,

5 Χριστοῦ Ἰησοῦ B; text codd rel Or.

but in the LXX. it came to be used for victims which were 'without blemish,' and this sense prevails here, and in 1 Pet. i. 19; Heb. ix. 14. The addition of ἀνεγκλήτους in the parallel passage of the Colossians (i. 22) gives a moral colour to the word there, and this meaning is dominant in Jude 24 and Apoc. xiv. 5. The combination ἄγιοι καὶ ἄμωμοι (comp. c. v. 27) gives the fulness of the conception positively and negatively. Chrysostom expresses another aspect of the combination: ἄγιός ἐστιν ὁ τῆς πίστεως μετέχων, ἄμωμος ὁ ἀνεπίληπτον βίον μετιών.

For the thought compare 2 Tim. i. 9.

The use of the simple infinitive (εἶναι) as distinguished from εἰς τὸ εἶναι (c. 12) marks the purpose as potentially realised and not simply as aimed at. So far as Christians are 'in Christ,' living in Him and He in them—and so far only do they live—they are 'holy and blameless' (Gal. ii. 20; 1 John iv. 16). In capite omnia membra benedixit et elegit, ut nos faceret sanctos et immaculatos; non quia futuri eramus sed ut essemus (Primas.).

κατενώπιον αὐτοῦ] before Him, in His sight before Whom every fault is patent (Heb. iv. 13). There appears to be a reference to the appointed inspector of victims, the μορσοκόπος: comp. Philo i. 320; Clem. Alex. Strom. iv. 18 § 117.

ἐν ἀγάπῃ] These words may be taken either with what follows or with what precedes. But the connexion with προορίσας, having in lore foreordained us, is against the rhythm; and the qualification of the participle generally follows (c. iv. 2, 15, 16; c. iii. 17 is doubtful, see note; Col. ii. 2; cf. c. v. 2, 1 Thess. v. 13). If then they are joined with what precedes (so Vg. in caritate qua praed.), as seems on the whole to be best, they complete the description of the Christian character. As Christians are 'holy and blameless' towards God, so do they bear themselves one toward another 'in love' (1 Cor. xvi. 14) which they have appropriated as God's great gift: 1 John iii. 1. Compare cc. iii. 17; iv. 15 f.; v. 2.

A special reference to the love of God, which is indeed the spring of human love (1 John iv. 10 f.) does not appear to be called for here. The actions described are a manifestation of it.

5. προορίσας...εἰς αὐτόν] For προορίζειν compare v. 11; Acts iv. 28; 1 Cor. ii. 7; Rom. viii. 29 f. The 'choice' of God (v. 4) rested on the fact that He had 'foreordained us unto adoption as sons.' For υἰοθεσία compare Gal. iv. 5; Rom. viii. 15, 23; ix. 4. This new relation expresses the special position of Christians. Υἰός, as distinguished from τέκνον (c. v. 1), suggests the idea of privilege and not of nature. Comp. note on 1 John iii. 1. That which was in type the privilege of Israel was prepared in spiritual fulness for believers. God not only chose us in Christ—He might have chosen us as His servants—but He also destined for us through Christ the right of sonship, bringing us into fellowship with Himself (εἰς αὐτόν); and this not in regard to our merits, but according to the good pleasure of His will, which is absolute and yet not arbitrary. His will is directed (as we apprehend it) to the accomplishment of the highest good (Rom. xii. 2; Hebr. x. 7 ff.; Apoc. iv. 11 ἡσαν).

Out of the privilege of 'sons' grows the character of sons. In the fullest sense therefore the realization of the adoption is still future: Rom. viii. 23.

κατὰ τὴν εὐδοκίαν τοῦ θελήματος αὐτοῦ, ὅς ἐστιν ἔπαινον δόξης τῆς χάριτος αὐτοῦ ἧς ἐχαρίτωσεν ἡμᾶς ἐν τῷ

The use of διὰ Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ (as contrasted with ἐν Χριστῷ) is significant. The 'many sons' (Hebr. ii. 10) are regarded in their personality and not as incorporated in their Lord. Under this aspect their life comes 'through Him,' and they are brought personally to God (εἰς αὐτόν). The phrase does not occur again in the Epistle (c. iii. 9 is a false reading).

For εἰς αὐτόν in a wider sense compare Rom. xi. 36; Col. i. 20; and, as applied to the Son, Col. i. 16.

κατὰ τὴν εὐδοκίαν. τ. θ. αὐ.] Vg. secundum propositum (placitum: Hier. beneplacitum) voluntatis suae. Compare c. 9 τὸ μυστήριον τοῦ θεοῦ αὐτοῦ and c. 11 τὴν βουλὴν τοῦ θεοῦ αὐτοῦ. These phrases stand by themselves, and encourage us to see God's will as the expression of His gracious purpose, disclosed to us in the Incarnation, and carried to its issue πολυμερῶς καὶ πολυτρόπως in what we with our limited faculties regard as a plan.

Origen notices that εὐδοκία is strange to classical Greek. It occurs not unfrequently in the LXX. (Pss., Eccles.).

6. εἰς ἔπ. δ. τ. χ. αὐ.] The adoption of men as sons of God leads to the praise of the glory of His grace. The grace of God is, as is explained in the next clause, the free and bounteous goodness with which He has visited us in His Son. The glory of this grace is the manifestation of its power as men are enabled to perceive it. Each fresh manifestation calls out a fresh acknowledgment of its surpassing excellence. Christians therefore in whom it is effective are set to reveal the perfections of Christ—the Son made known in the many sons—and by revealing them, to call out the thankful adoration of men. Compare Phil. i. 11.

For τῆς χάριτος compare c. 7 τὸ πλοῦτος τῆς χάριτος αὐτοῦ, c. ii. 7 τὸ ὑπερβάλλον πλοῦτος τ. χαρ. αὐτοῦ. So ἧς ἐχαρίτωσεν ἡμ.] Latt. in qua gratificavit nos. Wherewith He highly favoured us, which He freely bestowed upon us. For ἧς see c. iv. 1; 2 Cor. i. 4. It may represent ἦν (χάριν χαριτοῦν) or ἦ, though the attraction of the dative is very much rarer. See c. 8. Χαριτοῦν is to affect with χάρις, which may be taken either subjectively 'to endue with grace,' 'to make gracious,' or objectively 'to visit with grace,' 'to treat graciously.' The former sense is found in Eccles. xviii. 17 παρὰ ἀνδρὶ κεχαριτωμένῳ and Ps. xvii. (xviii.) 26 Συμμ. μετὰ τοῦ κεχαριτωμένου χαριτωθήσῃ, and is given by Chrysostom here: οὐ μόνον ἀμαρτημάτων ἀπήλλαξεν ἀλλὰ καὶ ἐπεράστους ἐποίησεν. But it appears to be contrary to the context which dwells on the greatness of God's gift. Nor does St Paul use χάρις of human grace, not c. iv. 29, nor Col. iv. 6 (yet see Lightfoot l. c.). On κεχαριτωμένη in Lk. i. 28 Bengel remarks truly: non ut mater gratiae sed ut filia gratiae appellatur.

St Paul reckons his own apostolic commission (ἡ χάρις c. iii. 2, 7, 8) and the endowment of each Christian (ἡ χάρις c. iv. 7) as God's bounteous gift.

At the same time the working of God's gracious gift by incorporating the believer in Christ makes him capable and meet for the presence of God.

ἐν τῷ ἡγαπ.] Latt. in dilecto filio suo: in the beloved. There is the same ambiguity in this translation as in blessed (c. 3). Two forms are thus rendered, the verbal ἀγαπητός (answering to εὐλογητός) claiming love by its very nature; and ἡγαπημένος, which (like εὐλογημένος) suggests in every case some special manifestation of love. Ἀγαπητός is used of Christ by the heavenly Voice: Matt. iii. 17 (Mk i. 11; Lk. iii. 22); Matt. xvii. 5 (2 Pet. i. 17; Mk ix. 7; not Lk. ix. 35); and it is used of men frequently. This is the only place in which ἡγαπημένος is used of Christ in the N. T., and it is evident that stress is laid upon the manifestation of God's love to His Son which He had even then made in His exaltation to heaven. This was itself the pledge of man's exaltation (c. ii. 6). For this reason a unique title is used in place of ἐν Χριστῷ. ἡγαπημένος is used of men 1 Thess. i. 4; 2 Thess. ii. 13 (LXX.); Rom. ix. 25 (LXX.); Col. iii. 12; and of Christ in Barn. ep. iii. 6 (with the note of Gebhardt and Harnack); iv. 3 (8).

ἡγαπημένω, ἔν ᾧ ἔχομεν τὴν ἀπολύτρωσιν διὰ τοῦ

(b) The blessing realised in time in spite of man's fall (c. v. 7—14).

So far the Apostle has described the eternal purpose and work of the Father, for with Him purpose and work are one. He now passes on to the historical fulfilment of the Divine counsel after sin entered the world, and shows that the redemption wrought by Christ through His blood (c. 7) has been made known in its universal power (8—10), for which glorious consummation Israel had been prepared by a long discipline (11, 12) and in which the Gentiles by faith had found a place (13), receiving the Holy Spirit, the pledge of the final victory of God (14).

⁷In Whom we have our redemption through His blood, the forgiveness of our trespasses, according to the riches of His grace ⁸which He made to abound toward us in all wisdom and prudence, ⁹having made known unto us the mystery of His will, according to His good pleasure, which He purposed in Him ¹⁰unto a dispensation of the fulness of the seasons, to sum up all things in the Christ, the things in the heavens and the things upon the earth; in Him, I say, ¹¹in Whom we were also made God's portion, having been fore-ordained according to the purpose of Him, Who worketh all things after the counsel of His will, ¹²to the end that we should be to the praise of His glory, we who had before hoped in Christ; ¹³in Whom ye also are, having heard the word of the truth, the gospel of your salvation, in Whom, having also believed, ye were sealed with the Holy Spirit of promise ¹⁴which is an earnest of our inheritance, unto the redemption of God's own possession, unto the praise of His glory.

7. The great counsel of God, which was interrupted by man's sin, was accomplished by the redemptive work of Christ.

ἐν ᾧ... παραπτωμάτων] In Whom, as incorporated with Him and made members of His Body (Rom. iii. 24 τῆς ἀπολυτρώσεως τῆς ἐν Χ. ἴ.), we have and enjoy (c. ii. 18; Rom. v. 1) redemption, or, more emphatically, our redemption—the redemption which is the outcome of our Christian faith—through His blood, even the forgiveness of our trespasses. Men as sinners are represented under a twofold aspect. They are captives at once and debtors: captives to the devil from whom they are ransomed; debtors to God Who remits what they owe to Him. For ἀπολύτρωσις compare Ad-dit. Note on Hebr. ix. 12.

διὰ τοῦ αἵμ. αὐτ.] On the meaning of 'blood' as essentially distinct from 'death,' see Notes on 1 John i. 7. It may be observed that θάνατος, ἀποθανεῖν (common elsewhere: Col. i. 22; ii. 20; iii. 3) do not occur in the Epistle.

The various constructions under which 'the blood' of Christ is presented in relation to the redemption and salvation of men should be carefully studied. We have

(1) διὰ c. gen., through, by means of.

Acts xx. 28; Eph. i. 7; Hebr. ix. 12.

(2) διὰ c. acc., by reason of.

Apoc. xii. 11.

(3) ἐν in, implying a living connexion of the believer with the source αἵματος αὐτοῦ, τὴν ἄφεσιν τῶν παραπτωμάτων, κατὰ τὸ πλοῦτος τῆς χάριτος αὐτοῦ ὃς ἐπερίσσευσεν εἰς of life, the life, as it were, encompassing him.

Rom. v. 9; Eph. ii. 13; Hebr.

x. 19; Ἀποκ. i. 5; v. 9; vii. 14.

Compare Rom. iii. 25; 1 Cor. xi. 25; Hebr. ix. 22, 25; xiii. 20.

(4) simple dat. of the instrument.

1 Pet. i. 19.

Διά and ἐν are used in the same context: 1 John v. 6 note.

τὴν ἄφ. τ. παρ.] the forgiveness of our trespasses.

The exact phrase does not occur elsewhere. In the parallel, Col. i. 14, the commoner phrase τὴν ἄφεσιν τῶν ἁμαρτιῶν is used, which recurs ten times in the Synoptists and the Acts, but not again in the Epistles. The original of the expression (ἀφιέναι παραπτ.) is found in Matt. vi. 14 ff.; Mk xi. 25 f. The difference between 'trespass' and 'sin' seems to be, that 'trespass' brings out the idea of the violation of a definite law, while 'sin' expresses the essential estrangement from God implied in the act whereby man misses his true end. Compare Rom. v. 12—21, where the proper meaning of the two words can be seen plainly. The parallel of 'forgiveness of trespasses' with 'redemption' lies in the fact that through forgiveness man is placed in his true relation to God: he has 'received the atonement' (Rom. v. 11), and is 'atoned' to Him. The past with its results is that which holds us in bondage. The removal of these bands brings freedom. It is not unlikely that some false interpretation of 'redemption' as a deliverance from the fetters of physical law caused the Apostle to emphasise its moral nature. Comp. Lightfoot on Col. i. 14.

κατὰ τὸ πλ. τ. χ. αὐ.] This characteristic form of expression is peculiar to St Paul: 2 Cor. viii. 2; Rom. ii. 4; ix. 23; Phil. iv. 19; Col. i. 27; ii. 2; and below c. 18; cc. ii. 7; iii. 16.

8—10. This revelation of His grace God has made known to us in its immeasurable issues.

8. ἧς ἐπερ...φρονήσει] Latt. quae superabundavit in nobis, which (grace) He made to abound toward us in all wisdom and prudence... The rhythm of the sentence determines that the words ἐν π. σοφ. καὶ φρον. are to be joined with ἐπερίσσευσεν and not with γνωρίσας. The parallel phrase in Col. i. 9 ἵνα πληρωθῆτε τὴν ἐπίγνωσιν τοῦ θελήματος αὐτοῦ seems to be no less decisive for the interpretation of π. σοφία καὶ φρονήσει as describing the manner in which the grace of God was manifested in those on whom it was bestowed. The application of 'wisdom and prudence' to God in Prov. iii. 19 (LXX.) and the use of πολυποίκιλος σοφία in c. iii. 10 does not justify the reference of πάντα σοφ. καὶ φρον. to God here. On the other hand the fact that His grace issued in such gifts to men implies that they found exercise in the contemplation of His working. Through these believers are enabled to trace the connexion between the successive revelations which he made πολυμερῶς καὶ πολυτρόπως, all leading up to the final revelation in His Son; and yet more the complete and harmonious fulfilment of His earthly work in His Birth, His Death, His Resurrection, His Ascension, followed by the descent of the Holy Spirit. The same gifts have also a further application. St Paul's thoughts necessarily turned to the contemplation of the special privileges of the Jews (comp. Rom. ix. 4 f.); but we can now observe the signs of God's counsel in the training of 'the nations' and in the slow realisation of manifold lessons of the Gospel in post-Christian history.

For the transitive sense of ἐπερίσσευσεν see 1 Thess. iii. 12; 2 Cor. iv. 15; ix. 8. The intransitive sense ἡμᾶς ἐν πάσῃ σοφίᾳ καὶ φρονήσει ὁγνωρίσας ἡμῖν τὸ μυστήριον τοῦ θελήματος αὐτοῦ, κατὰ τὴν εὐδοκίαν αὐτοῦ ἦν προέθετο ἐν αὐτῷ¹⁰ εἰς οἰκονομίαν τοῦ πληρω-

'wherewith He abounded' would require ἦς to be an attraction from ἦ which is very much rarer than the attraction from ἦν.

For πάσῃ compare v. 3 note. The distinction of σοφία and φρόνησις is marked from the time of Aristotle (Eth. Nic. vi. 7).

'Wisdom' deals with principles: 'prudence' with action. In this way 'prudence' may be called 'the child of wisdom' (Prov. x. 23 LXX. ἡ σοφία ἀνδρὶ τίκτει φρόνησιν). Φρόνησις occurs in the N.T. again only in Lk. i. 17, but the corresponding adjective occurs frequently (e.g. Matt. x. 16; xxv. 2).

9. γνωρίσας... τοῦ θελ. αὐ.] Vg. ut notum faceret sacramentum voluntatis suae. Having made known—in that He made known—the mystery, the Divine counsel now revealed, which was the expression of His will. The fact of a revelation is always implied in the word 'mystery' in the N.T. (see c. iii. 3 note), even in the Apocalypse, where the revelation is imminent. The phrase τὸ μυστ. τῆς βουλής occurs in Judith ii. 2. Compare 2 Tim. i. 9 f.

9, 10. κατὰ τὴν εὐδοκίαν...] according to His good pleasure—gracious purpose—which He purposed (set before Himself) to accomplish in Him, the Beloved, destined to issue in a dispensation belonging to and, as it were, springing out of the fulness of the seasons—when the full measure of their appointed course, with all their lessons of preparation and discipline, should be accomplished—namely, to sum up all things in the Christ...

προέθετο] Rom. i. 13; iii. 25. See πρόθεσις v. 11.

ἐν αὐτῷ] Latt. in eo, in the Beloved. The Incarnate Son embodied the purpose of God. The end of Creation was reached in Him through Whom it had its origin (Hebr. i. 2).

The common text ἐν ἑαυτῷ adds nothing to the force of προέθετο.

οἰκονομίαν] dispensation. The original word describes the function of a 'steward' (οἰκονόμος 1 Cor. iv. 1 f.), as indeed does the English word according to its derivation. It occurs (in addition to Lk. xvi. 2 ff.) in 1 Cor. ix. 17; Col. i. 25 (1 Tim. i. 4); c. iii. 2, 9. The exact meaning which it conveys appears to be in each case that of a distribution of Divine treasures, which have been committed by God to chosen representatives, that they may be faithfully administered by them. All earlier 'dispensations' were crowned by that of Christ, in Whom are all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge hidden (Col. ii. 3). These He dispenses with perfect righteousness and love, giving Himself for and to 'His brethren.' The act of 'dispensation' passes naturally into the scheme of dispensation. Compare Lightfoot Col. l. c.

τοῦ πληρ. τ. καιρῶν] Latt. plenitudinis (Tert. adimpletionis) temporum, the fulness of the seasons. The phrase differs characteristically from that in Gal. iv. 4 τὸ πλήρωμα τοῦ χρόνου the fulness of the time (contrast Mark i. 15). τὸ πληρ. τ. χρόνου marks the limit of an appointed term: τὸ πληρ. τ. καιρῶν, the close of a series of critical periods, each of which had its peculiar character and was naturally connected in some way with the final issue: comp. Mk i. 15; John vii. 8; Lk. xxi. 24. The words 'times' and 'seasons' are connected in Acts i. 7; 1 Thess. v. 1; Tit. i. 2 f. (a singularly instructive passage as to their difference): see c. v. 16. 'Time' (χρόνος) expresses simply duration: 'season' (καιρός) a space of time defined with regard to its extent and character.

ἀνακεφαλαιώσασθαι] Latt. instaurare: Tert. (Ir. int.) Hier. recapitulare, to sum up, specially to gather into a brief compass the heads of an argument or statement (Rom. xiii. 9). The word here expresses the typical union of all things in the Messiah, a final harmony answering to the idea of creation, just as the corresponding word ἀποκατάλλαξι used in Col. i. 20 expresses the reconciliation of the parts of creation one to another and to God in view of the separation and estrangement wrought by sin. Even apart from sin the ἀνακεφαλαίωσις of created things was required that they might attain their unity in God (Rom. xi. 36); and sin introduced the necessity for an atonement (καταλλαγὴ Rom. v. 11). Comp. Ps.-Hipp. c. Beron. 2 ἢς (i.e. τῆς αὐτοῦ σωματώσεως) ἔργον ἢ τῶν ὄλων ἐστὶν εἰς αὐτὸν ἀνακεφαλαίωσις. Just. M. ap. Iren. iv. 6 (11), 2...unigenitus Filius venit ad nos, sumum plasma in semet ipsum recapitulans... This consummation lies beyond the unity of the Church, the Body of Christ, which contributes towards its realisation.

Οὐ μόνον οἱ κατακερματισμοὶ τῶν οἰκονομουμένων καὶ οἱ καθ' ἓνα λόγοι τῶν διοικουμένων εἰσὶν ἐν τῷ τοῦ θεοῦ Λόγῳ καὶ τῇ σοφίᾳ αὐτοῦ, ἀλλὰ καὶ ἡ ἀνακεφαλαίωσις καὶ, ὡς ἂν εἴποι τις, συγκεφαλαίωσις πάντων (Orig.).

τὰ πάντα...] Whereas πάντα (Jo. i. 3, Heb. iii. 4) denotes all things taken severally, τὰ πάντα properly signifies all things in their unity, actual or ideal—the sum of all things. Compare rv. 11, 23; cc. iii. 9; iv. 10; Col. i. 16, 17, 20; and especially Heb. i. 3, where see note.

ἐν τῷ χριστῷ] in the Christ, in the Messiah. The title appears to be used here with a distinct reference to the Lord as the expected Saviour. With the article (as in this Epistle: cc. i. 12, 20; ii. 5, 13; iii. 4 (6), 8, 17, 19; iv. 7, 12, 13, 20; v. 2, 5, 14, 23 ff.; vi. 5) 'Christ' is dominantly, if not exclusively, the title of the office and not simply a proper name. Creation was brought under the consequences of sin through man (Gal. iii. 22) and so redemption came to creation through man. Comp. i Cor. xv. 28; Rom. viii. 19.

τὰ ἐπὶ τοῖς οὐρ...] the things in the heavens.... This sublime revelation of the extent of redemption as commensurate with the whole creation is brought out especially in the Epistles of the Roman Captivity: Phil. ii. 9, 10; Col. i. 20; r. 21. The solitary prisoner could see farthest into the glory of the Divine counsels, even as the martyr 'saw the heavens opened and the Son of Man standing at the right hand of God' (Acts vii. 56). At the same time the outward unity of the Empire furnished an image of the Divine reality.

It is altogether arbitrary to introduce any limitation into the interpretation of τὰ πάντα. The truth transcends our comprehension, but we can see that it answers to the fact and purpose of creation (Apoc. iv. 11 ἦσαν; Rom. xi. 36).

The slight difference of construction between ἐπὶ τοῖς οὐρ. and ἐπὶ τῆς γ. will be noticed. With the dat. ἐπὶ denotes simple position, with the gen. extension over. Ἐπὶ τοῖς οὐρ. is a unique phrase; elsewhere in corresponding connexions ἐν is undisturbed: Matt. vi. 10; xxviii. 18; i Cor. viii. 5; Col. i. 16, 20; Apoc. v. 13; c. iii. 15.

11, 12. For which consummation a preparation had been made by the discipline of Israel.

11. ἐν αὐ. ἐν ᾧ...] in Him, I say, in Whom we were also made God's portion.... Christians are a new Israel θεσιν τοῦ τὰ πάντα ἐνεργούντος κατὰ τὴν βουλὴν τοῦ

(comp. Deut. xxxii. 9): Gal. vi. 16; comp. Gal. iv. 28; Matt. iii. 9. It is through the Church in the New Dispensation, as through Israel in old time, that the counsel of God is wrought out for the world.

The sense of ἐκληρώθημεν is difficult to determine. The word is not found elsewhere in the N. T. The nearest parallel is in Acts xvii. 4 προσεκληρώθησαν τῷ Παύλῳ were assigned by God to Paul.... So here it may be 'we were assigned,' that is, to God; while the conception of Israel as God's κληρος served to define the idea (Deut. ix. 29). Compare Pind. Ol. viii. 19 ἔμμε δ' ἐκλάρωσε πότμος Ζηνί. It has also been taken to mean 'we were made partakers of the Divine inheritance.' This is in harmony with Col. i. 12; but it is difficult to obtain the meaning from the form. The parallels quoted are not to the point. Early writers take the simple sense 'we were appointed (Vg. sorte vocati sumus; Ambr. sorte constituti; Aug. sortem consecuti; Ambrst. sortiti)... to the end that....' This is perfectly legitimate, but the context seems to require a reference to the Divine κληρος (Acts xxvi. 18; Col. i. 12). Comp. v. 18.

προορισθέντες...] having been fore-ordained (v. 5 προορίσας) to occupy this position...to the end that we should be....

κατὰ πρόθεσιν] Comp. c. iii. 11 κατὰ πρόθεσιν τῶν αἰώνων; Rom. viii. 28; 2 Tim. i. 9; Rom. ix. 11.

The word πρόθεσις is used of 'purpose' generally: Acts xi. 23; xxvii. 13; 2 Tim. iii. 10.

τοῦ τὰ πάντα ἐνεργ...] of Him who worketh all things after the counsel of His will. The language which describes the action of God must of necessity be figurative. The phrase βουλή τοῦ θελήματος, which occurs here only in the N. T., expresses that His will is not arbitrary, but, if presented in terms of human experience, guided by a settled counsel. Βουλή (only in the Pauline group of Epistles) expresses counsel with reference to action: θέλημα (in all groups) will generally. Comp. Acts ii. 23 τῇ ἁρισμένη βουλῇ καὶ προγνώσει τοῦ θεοῦ ἔκδοτον; iv. 28 ὅσα ἡ χεὶρ σου καὶ ἡ βουλή προώρισεν γενέσθαι; xx. 27 πᾶσαν τὴν βουλήν τοῦ θεοῦ. Hebr. vi. 17 τὸ ἀμετάθετον τῆς βουλῆς αὐτοῦ. Lk. vii. 30 τὴν βουλήν τοῦ θεοῦ ἠθέτησαν εἰς ἑαυτούς. Acts xiii. 36. Comp. Matt. i. 19.

τὰ π. ἐνεργούντος] Comp. 1 Cor. xii. 6 ὁ ἐνεργῶν τὰ πάντα ἐν πᾶσιν; v. 11 πάντα δὲ ταῦτα ἐνεργεῖ τὸ ἐν καὶ τὸ αὐτὸ πνεῦμα. Gal. iii. 5 ὁ...ἐνεργῶν δυνάμεις ἐν ὑμῖν; ii. 8 ἐνεργήσας Πέτρῳ. Phil. ii. 13 θεὸς ἐστὶν ὁ ἐνεργῶν ἐν ὑμῖν καὶ τὸ θέλει καὶ τὸ ἐνεργεῖν. The verb ἐνεργεῖν brings out the idea of the personal power which is operative rather than the result produced (ἐργάζεσθαι c. iv. 28). It has reference always to action in the human sphere.

12 f. The general statement that Christians as Christians were made God's portion through their incorporation in Christ (ἐκληρώθημεν without ἡμεῖς) is now defined. The new Israel included both Jews and Gentiles. The Jews with whom St Paul identifies himself (εἰς τὸ εἶναι ἡμᾶς...) who had fixed their hopes on the promises of the Deliverer, were in a peculiar sense 'for a praise of God's glory' now that their expectations had found fulfilment, witnessing to the accomplishment of His purpose prepared through their national discipline (comp. 1 Pet. i. 12). At the same time the Gentiles also, of whom the Ephesians were representatives (καὶ ὑμεῖς), had found a place in the same Divine fellowship, when they accepted the message of the truth which was brought to them and the larger hope of the prophets was fulfilled.

θελήματος αὐτοῦ, ¹² εἰς τὸ εἶναι ἡμᾶς εἰς ἔπαινον δόξης αὐτοῦ τοὺς προηλπικότας ἐν τῷ χριστῷ. ¹³ ἐν ᾧ καὶ ὑμεῖς ἀκούσαντες τὸν λόγον τῆς ἀληθείας, τὸ εὐαγγέλιον τῆς σωτηρίας ὑμῶν, ἐν ᾧ καὶ πιστεύσαντες, 12. εἰς τὸ εἶναι ἡμᾶς] Contrast v. 4 εἶναι. See note ad loc.

The ἡμᾶς is emphatic: 'we Jews who through all delays and disappointments clung to the teaching of the prophets.'

εἰς ἔπαινον δόξης αὐτοῦ] see v. 14. The note of Primasius is worth quoting: Ut per signa quae facimus laudetur gloria Dei.

τοὺς προηλπ. ἐν τῷ χρ.] Comp. 1 Cor. xv. 19 ἠλπικότες ἐσμέν ἐν Χριστῷ (not Matt. xii. 21; Phil. ii. 19 is different); 2 Cor. i. 10 εἰς ὃν ἠλπικαμεν. 1 Tim. iv. 10 ἠλπ. ἐπὶ θεῷ ζῶντι; vi. 17 ἠλπ. ἐπὶ πλούτου ἀδηλόγητι; v. 5 ἠλπ. ἐπὶ τὸν θεόν. 1 Pet. iii. 5 ἐλπ. εἰς.

Προελπίζειν occurs here only in the N. T. The πρό is limited not by the belief of the Ephesian Gentiles ('believed before you') but by the Advent ('believed before Christ actually came'). The perf. indicates that the spirit of this faith still remained.

13, 14. And with Israel the Gentiles were now associated by faith, having received the Holy Spirit, the pledge of the victory of God.

13. ἐν ᾧ...] in Whom ye also are—as members of His Body,—having heard. It appears to be simplest to take the first ἐν ᾧ as parallel to the second and not as resumed by it. Two thoughts are marked, the first that the Gentiles are included in the new Israel, and the second that being included they have received the gift of the Holy Spirit. These two blessings correspond with the quickening of the Church with the Divine Life on the Day of the Resurrection (John xx. 22 f.) and the endowing of the Church on the day of Pentecost; and in the experience of the individual with Baptism and the Laying on of hands.

καὶ ὑμεῖς] Comp. Acts xi. 18 ἄρα καὶ τοῖς ἔθνεσιν ὁ θεὸς τὴν μετάνοιαν εἰς ζωὴν ἔδωκεν.

τὸν λόγον τῆς ἀλ.] the word, the message, of the truth. Comp. 2 Tim. ii. 15 ὀρθοτομοῦντα τὸν λόγον τῆς ἀλ. James i. 18 λόγος ἀλ. Christianity, as a message, is essentially 'the truth': John i. 17 (note); 2 Thess. ii. 12; 2 Cor. iv. 2; 1 John iii. 19 (note). It presents the right view of the ultimate relations of man, the world, and God. Comp. v. 9 note.

The substance of Christ's message is Christ Himself, Who is the Truth (John xiv. 6).

Similar phrases are: 2 Cor. v. 19 ὁ λόγος τῆς καταλλαγῆς, Acts xiii. 26 ὁ λόγος τῆς σωτηρίας ταύτης, Acts xiv. 3, xx. 32 ὁ λόγος τῆς χάριτος αὐτοῦ.

τὸ εὐαγγέλιον τῆς σωτ. ὑ.] the gospel—the glad tidings—of your salvation (Gal. ii. 7 τὸ εὐαγγ. τῆς ἀκροβυστίας), proclaiming that 'to the Gentiles' also 'was sent the salvation of God' (Acts xxviii. 28; xi. 18; xv. 7).

The phrase is unique. Comp. Acts xx. 24 τὸ εὐαγγέλιον τῆς χάριτος τοῦ θεοῦ, 2 Cor. iv. 4 τὸ εὐαγγέλιον τῆς δόξης τοῦ χριστοῦ, 1 Tim. i. 11 τὸ εὐαγγ. τῆς δόξης τοῦ μακαρίου θεοῦ.

13 b. The incorporation of the Gentiles in the Body of Christ leads on to the wider thought of the action of the Spirit through the Church which brings the consummation of the Divine will. The relation of man and of humanity to God is essentially established through the action of the Word, the Son, in Creation and in Redemption. The Holy Spirit is a special gift to the Church and Christians.

united with Him, having also believed (Acts xix. 2) ye were sealed.... It is possible to take ἐν ᾧ in connexion with εὐαγγέλιον, 'and when ye believed in it, as not hearers only, ye were sealed....' This construction is justified by Mk i. 15, but it seems to be less natural than that which has been adopted.

ἐσφραγίσθητε] See c. iv. 30 μὴ λυπέετε τὸ πν. τὸ ἅγ. τοῦ θεοῦ ἐν ᾧ ἐσφραγίσθητε εἰς ἡμέραν ἀπολυτρώσεως.

Σφραγίς is used of a visible attestation of the reality of a spiritual fact: 1 Cor. ix. 2; Rom. iv. 11; 2 Tim. ii. 19. Comp. Apoc. vii. 3 ff.; ix. 4. The 'seal' openly marked the servants of God as belonging to Him (2 Cor. i. 22), and assured them of His protection. So they were solemnly recognised as His sons (comp. John vi. 27) and on the other hand pledged to His service.

τῷ πν. τῆς ἐπαγγ. τῷ ἁγ.] with the Spirit of promise, the Holy Spirit: the Spirit who had been the subject of the promises of God through the prophets and of the Incarnate Son: Luke xxiv. 49; Acts i. 4 f.; ii. 17, 33; John xiv. 15 ff.; xvi. 7 ff.; Gal. iii. 14. The emphatic order which fixes attention on the characteristic attribute of the Spirit (τῷ ἁγίῳ) leads on to the description of His work in v. 14. Comp. 1 Thess. iv. 8 τὸ πν. αὐτοῦ τὸ ἅγιον.

Here the Spirit is regarded as the instrument with which (τῷ πν.) believers are sealed: in c. iv. 30 as the element, so to speak, in which they are immersed (ἐν ᾧ: comp. Matt. iii. 11). Those who are 'in Christ' are also 'in the Spirit.' Here the thought of the gift is dominant: there the thought of the Person. For τὸ πν. τῆς ἐπαγγ. compare Hebr. xi. 9 εἰς τὴν γῆν τῆς ἐπαγγελίας.

14. ὁ ἐστὼν...] which is an earnest of our inheritance, unto the redemption of God's own possession (Vg. in redemptionem acquisitionis (V. L. adoptionis)), unto the praise of His glory. The partial gift—partial because it is limited by our present capacity—shews surely that to which it leads, and in which it will find its consummation. What we have received is a pledge of that which God has prepared for us as sons. When we gain our end, then creation also shall find deliverance from corruption and enter on 'the freedom of the glory of the children of God,' and all things shall declare the praise of their Maker and Redeemer. Rom. viii. 18—25 is a pregnant commentary on the verse.

ἀρραβῶν] An 'earnest': 2 Cor. i. 22; v. 5 [ὁ] δοὺς τὸν ἀρραβῶνα τοῦ πνεύματος. Ἀρραβῶν is properly a deposit paid as security for the rest of the purchase money; and then, by a natural transference, the first instalment of a treasure given as a pledge for the delivery of the remainder.

For the thought compare Rom. viii. 15 ff.; 23 (τὴν ἀπαρχὴν τοῦ πνεύματος ἔχοντες).

εἰς ἀπολύτρωσιν...] leading unto.... The temporal sense, until... is possible, but the parallelism of the two clauses εἰς ἀπολύτρωσιν... εἰς ἔπαινον... is decisive for the other sense. The redemption of God's own possession, and the consequent praise of His glory are, so to speak, the final cause of the work of Christ and the Mission of the Spirit.

τῆς περιποιήσεως] God's own possession, all that which God has made

His own in earth and heaven, not men only, who had fallen from Him, and earth which had shared the consequences of man's fall, but all created things, gathered together in the last crisis of their history. 'Creation' held 'in the bondage of corruption' required redemption. God has made us His sons 'that we should be a kind of firstfruits of His creation' (James i. 18 ἀπαρχήν τινα τῶν αὐτοῦ κτισμάτων). Our inheritance is preparatory to (εἰς) a larger blessing. The crown of the inheritance of Christians is that their consummation in Christ leads to His complete triumph. Creation waits for their revelation as the sons of God (Rom. viii. 19 f.). Then shall it also be 'delivered from the bondage of corruption into the liberty of the glory of the children of God.'

The interpretation which has been given to περιποίησις (after the Syriac and Eucumenius) is not without difficulty. Περιποίησις is properly the acquisition of something: 1 Thess. v. 9 εἰς περιποίησιν σωτηρίας, 2 Thess. ii. 14 εἰς περιποίησιν δόξης, Hebr. x. 39 εἰς περιπ. ψυχῆς. In 1 Pet. ii. 9 Christians are spoken of as λαὸς εἰς περιποίησιν in words borrowed from the LXX. (Mal. iii. 17 ἔσονται μοι...εἰς περιποίησιν). God in His infinite patience and love wins His creatures to Himself. The αὐτοῦ in the last clause gives colour to τῆς περιποιήσεως. The thought is of the complete fulfilment of God's purpose. There is therefore nothing unnatural in the use of ἡ περιποίησις in this widest sense.

Additional Note on i. 1. The words ἐν Ἐφέσῳ.

i 1] <[ἐν Ἐφέσῳ] N*B “the older of the MSS” consulted by Bas. 67 (Marcion, see below) Orig. loc. (distinctly) Bas. (expressly). Orig. interprets τοῖς οὐσιν absolutely, in the sense of 1 Cor. i. 28, as he could not have done had he read ἐν Ἐφέσῳ: Bas. probably has Orig. in mind when he refers for this reading to ‘predecessors,’ from whom however Bas. manifestly distinguishes MSS consulted by himself (οὕτω γὰρ καὶ οἱ πρὸ ἡμῶν παραδεδώκασι καὶ ἡμεῖς ἐν τοῖς παλαιοῖς τῶν ἀντιγράφων εὐρήκαμεν). It is doubtless again to Orig. that Hier. refers when he speaks of ‘certain’ as interpreting the passage in this manner ‘with unnecessary refinement’ (curiosius quam necesse est): —a remark which shews on the one hand that Hier. was not himself acquainted with the reading, and on the other that Orig. in his unabridged commentary can have made no reference to any MSS as containing ἐν Ἐφέσῳ, since otherwise Hier. could not have treated the question as though it affected interpretation alone. Tert. distinctly states that Marcion retained this Epistle, but under the title ‘To the Laodiceans.’ Epiph. is silent on this point in his short account of Marcion’s readings in the Ep., but after the conclusion of his remarks on all the epistles (374 A πρὸς Φιλιππησίους ἰ· οὕτως γὰρ παρὰ τῷ Μαρκίῳ κείται ἐσχάτῃ καὶ δεκάτῃ) he subjoins a confused notice of a reading of Marcion (Eph. iv. 5) “from the so-called Ep. to the Laodiceans, in harmony with the Ep. to the Ephesians”; so that the unknown source from which he borrowed his information about Marcion’s text seems to have contained a misunderstood reference to the title used by Marcion. It is hardly credible that the Epistle should have received this title, either in a text followed by Marcion or at his own hands, if the words ἐν Ἐφέσῳ had been present. It does not follow that ἐν Λαοδικίᾳ replaced it: a change of the address in the body of the Epistle itself would hardly have been passed over in silence; and it seems more likely that the title was supplied from a misapplication of Col. iv. 16 in the absence of any indication of address in the text of the Epistle. Text N^cAD₂G₃K₂L₂P₂ later MSS consulted by Bas. (see above) cu^{pl} vv^{omn} Cyr. al. Theo. 280 pp^{ser} pp^{lst}.

Transcriptional evidence strongly supports the testimony of documents against ἐν Ἐφέσῳ. The early and, except as regards Marcion, universal tradition that the Epistle was addressed to the Ephesians, embodied in the title found in all extant documents, would naturally lead to the insertion of the words in the place that corresponding words hold in other epistles; and on the other hand it is not easy to see how they could come to be omitted, if genuine. Nor again, when St Paul’s use of the term οἱ ἄγιοι (e.g. 1 Cor. xvi. 1) and his view of πίστις in relation to the new Israel are taken into account, is it in itself improbable that he should write “to the saints who are also faithful (believing) in Christ Jesus.” The only real intrinsic difficulty here lies in the resemblance to the phrases used in other epistles to introduce local addresses.

The variation need not however be considered as a simple case of omission or insertion. There is much probability in the suggestion of Beza and Ussher, adopted by many commentators, that this Epistle was addressed to more than one church. It is certainly marked by an exceptional generality of language, and its freedom from local and personal allusions places it in strong contrast to the twin Ep. to the Colossians, conveyed by the same messenger. St Paul might naturally take advantage of the mission of Tychicus to write a letter to be read by the various churches which he had founded or strengthened in the region surrounding Ephesus during his long stay, though he might have special reasons for writing separate letters to Colosse and Laodicea. Apart from any question of the reading in i. 1, this is the simplest explanation of the characteristics of the Epistle; but, if it represents the facts truly, it must have a bearing on the reading. An epistle addressed to a plurality of churches might either be written so as to dispense with any local address, or it might have a blank space, to be filled up in each case with a different local address. The former supposition, according to which καὶ πιστοῖς would be continuous with τοῖς ἁγίοις, has been noticed above. In this case ἐν Ἐφέσῳ would be simply an interpolation. On the other view, which is on the whole the more probable of the two, ἐν Ἐφέσῳ would be a legitimate but unavoidably partial supplement to the true text, filling up a chasm which might be perplexing to a reader in later times. Since it is highly probable that the epistle would be communicated to the great mother church first, and then sent on to the lesser churches around, there is sufficient justification both for the title ΠΡΟΣ ΕΦΕΣΙΟΥΣ and for the retention of ἐν Ἐφέσῳ in peculiar type in the text itself. Whether Marcion's title was derived from a copy actually sent to Laodicea, or, as seems more likely, was a conjectural alteration of ΠΡΟΣ ΕΦΕΣΙΟΥΣ, Ephesus must have had a better right than any other single city to account itself the recipient of the Epistle.

II. THANKSGIVING FOR FAITH REALISED: PRAYER FOR DEEPER KNOWLEDGE: GENERAL EXPOSITION OF THE WORK OF CHRIST FOR MEN (i. 15—ii. 22).

(1) Thanksgiving for the faith of the Ephesians (i. 15, 16 a).

(2) Prayer for their fuller enlightenment (i. 16 b—21).

(3) The work of God for men in Christ: personal disqualifications overcome (i. 22—ii. 10).

(4) The union of Jews and Gentiles in one Divine Body: national differences set aside (ii. 11—22).

i. 15—ii. 22. The opening hymn of praise is followed by a thanksgiving for the faith of the readers (c. 15, 16 a), and a prayer for their fuller knowledge of the privileges of the Christian faith (16 b—21), which leads to a description of the work of God for men through Christ (i. 22—ii. 10), and specially of the union of Jews and Gentiles in one body (ii. 11—22).

(1) Thanksgiving for the faith of the Ephesians (15, 16 a).

¹⁵ For this cause I also having heard of the faith which is among you in the Lord Jesus and which ye shew toward all the saints ¹⁶ cease not to give thanks for you.

15. διὰ τοῦτο...] For this cause... even that the Gentiles have now been included within the Church, so that the fulness of salvation has been brought within sight.

καὶ γὰρ] I also, though as a Jew I might have been inclined to cherish jealously the peculiar privileges of my people.

ἀκούσας... τοὺς ἁγίους] having heard of the faith which is among you resting in the Lord Jesus and which ye shew unto all the saints. The phrase πίστις ἐν τῷ κυρίῳ Ἰησοῦ, which forms as it were a compound word (comp. Col. i. 4 πίστις ὑμῶν ἐν Χ. Ἰ.), represents faith not only as 'directed to' (πρὸς, 1 Thess. i. 8 ἡ πίστις ὑμῶν ἡ πρὸς θεόν) or 'reaching to (into)' (εἰς, Acts xxvi. 18 πίστευε τῇ εἰς ἐμέ), but as 'grounded and resting in' the Lord Jesus. Thus we find πίστις ἡ ἐν Χ. Ἰ. 1 Tim. iii. 13; 2 Tim. iii. 15 (in Gal. iii. 26 ἐν Χ. Ἰ. is probably to be taken with νιοὶ ἐστε and not with πίστεως). The use of ὁ κύριος Ἰησοῦς is significant. The confession 'κύριος Ἰησοῦς' was the earliest Christian creed: 1 Cor. xii. 3; Rom. x. 9 (ἐὰν ὁμολογήσῃς τὸ ῥῆμα... ὅτι Κύριος Ἰησοῦς).

καὶ τὴν εἰς π. τ. ἀγ.] The insertion of τὴν ἀγάπην after καὶ in the later text is borrowed from Col. i. 4. 'The faith shewn to all the saints' was the practical expression of the faith which rested on union with Christ. Comp. Philem. 5 τὴν πίστιν ἣν ἔχουσ... εἰς πάντας τοὺς ἁγίους.

16. οὐ παύομαι... προσευχῶν μου] This combination of prayer with thanksgiving is characteristic: 1 Thess. i. 2; Rom. i. 8 ff.; Phil. i. 3 f.; Col. i. 3 (2 Tim. i. 3). With οὐ παύομαι compare πάντοτε, c. v. 20; 1 Thess. i. 2; 2 Thess. i. 3, 11; ii. 13; 1 Cor. i. 4; Rom. i. 10; Col. i. 3; Phil. i. 4; ἀδιαλείπτως 1 Thess. ii. 13; v. 17 (1 Thess. i. 2; Rom. i. 9); ἐν παντί 1 Thess. v. 18.

μνείαν ποιούμενος] The object 'of you and your faith' is naturally supplied from the preceding clause (Rom. i. 9; Philm. 4).

17. ἵνα...] that, in order that... The two titles which the Apostle applies to God bring out his confidence and the full scope of his prayer.

ὁ θεός... I. X.] the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the God whom He acknowledges and at the same time reveals. Comp. v. 3 note; and see also 1 Cor. xi. 3; xv. 27 f.

ὁ πατὴρ τῆς δόξης] the Father of glory, from Whom all Divine splendour and perfection proceed and to Whom they belong; the source and the object of all revelation.

For τῆς δόξης compare Acts vii. 2 ὁ θεὸς τῆς δόξης (Ps. xxix. (xxviii.) 3). James ii. 1 τὸν κύριον ἡμῶν Ἰ. X. τῆς δόξης. 1 Cor. ii. 8 τὸν κύριον τῆς δόξης. Hebr. ix. 5 Χερουβείν δόξης.

For ὁ πατὴρ compare James i. 17 ὁ π. τῶν φῶτων. 2 Cor. i. 3 ὁ π. τῶν οὐκ ἐκτιμῶν. Hebr. xii. 9 ὁ π. τῶν πνευμάτων.

On ἡ δόξα see Additional Note.

δὴ ὑμῶν πν. σοφ. κ. ἀποκαλύψ.] On Wisdom and Revelation see Dr Dale, Ephesians, p. 133 [v. App. p. 158].

πν. σοφίας καὶ ἀποκ. ἐν ἐπιγν. αὐτοῦ] a spirit of wisdom and revelation. In all corresponding phrases 'the spirit' is that through which the principle or power or feeling or characteristic, to which it is referred, becomes effective in the man. So we read of πνεῦμα πρᾶγματος (1 Cor. iv. 21; Gal. vi. 1); πνεῦμα ἀγωνισμένης (Rom. i. 4); πνεῦμα δουλείας, πνεῦμα νόθεσιᾶς (Rom. viii. 15); πνεῦμα κατανώξεως (Rom. xi. 8); πνεῦμα δειλίας (2 Tim. i. 7); πνεῦμα ζωῆς (Αρ. xi. 11); and in a definite form τὸ πνεῦμα τοῦ κόσμου (1 Cor. ii. 12); τὸ πνεῦμα τῆς πλάνης (1 John iv. 6); τὸ πνεῦμα τῆς ἀληθείας (John xiv. 17; xv. 26; 1 John iv. 6); τὸ πνεῦμα τῆς πίστεως (2 Cor. iv. 13); τὸ πνεῦμα τῆς χάριτος (Hebr. x. 29); τὸ πνεῦμα τῆς προφητείας (Αρ. xix. 10); τὸ πνεῦμα τοῦ νοῦς (c. iv. 23).

In accordance with this usage 'the spirit of wisdom and revelation' will be that spirit, that influence and temper, through which 'wisdom and revelation,' wisdom and the materials for growth in wisdom, enter into human life. Such a spirit is a gift of the Paraclete 'Who takes of that which is Christ's and declares it' to believers (John xvi. 12 ff.). Through it the Christian is at once able to test and to receive and to communicate Divine truths (1 Cor. ii. 6 ff.).

The characteristic work of the Spirit is indeed the revelation of the Son, through Whom the Father is known. He comes 'in the Son's name' (John xiv. 26), even as the Son came 'in the Father's name' (John v. 43). So it is that till the Mission of the Paraclete the Son could not be known by men. This fact explains the remarkable form of the Lord's words in Matt. xi. 27, οὐδεὶς ἐπιγινώσκει τὸν υἱὸν εἰ μὴ ὁ πατήρ, οὐδὲ τὸν πατέρα τις ἐπιγινώσκει εἰ μὴ ὁ υἱός, καὶ ᾧ ἔαν βούληται ὁ υἱὸς ἀποκαλύψαι. The absence of a second clause after ὁ πατήρ shews that the sentence took shape before the Revealer of the Son had been sent.

This work is not for one age but for all ages. It finds its application ἐν ἐπιγνώσει [τοῦ θεοῦ] and this knowledge can never be final. All that can be learnt of the course of Nature and History becomes under the action of the 'spirit of wisdom and revelation' a disclosure of fresh truth as to the character and purpose and working of God. The eternal life itself consists in this (John xvii. 3 ἵνα γινώσκωσι). He that loreth is begotten of God and knoweth (γινώσκει) GOD (1 John iv. 7). We know that the Son of God is come (ἦκει) and hath given us an understanding that we may know Him that is true (διάνοιαν ἵνα γινώσκωμεν [-κωμεν] 1 John v. 20, see notes). In this lies the real glory and hope of experience and labour.

ἐν ἐπιγνώσει αὐτοῦ] in the knowledge of Him, i.e. of GOD, as in τῆς κλήσεως αὐτοῦ, τῆς κληρονομίας αὐτοῦ, τῆς δυνάμεως αὐτοῦ, τῆς ἰσχύος αὐτοῦ (cr. 18, 19). Ἐπιγνώσις has always a moral value and is used in the N.T. exclusively in reference to facts of the religious order and specially in reference to the knowledge which we are enabled to gain of God and of His purpose for man's salvation. It is peculiar to the Epistles. It occurs first in the Epistle to the Romans, and is found in all the later Epistles of St Paul, in Hebrews and 2 Peter. The passages will repay careful study, and furnish a commentary on the thought here.

Phil. i. 10 ἵνα ἡ ἀγάπη...περισσεύῃ ἐν ἐπιγνώσει κ. πάσῃ αἰσθήσει εἰς τὸ δοκιμάζειν ὑμᾶς τὰ διαφέροντα.

This ἐπίγνωσις is at once the condition and the result of growing conformity to the Divine likeness:

Col. iii. 10 ἐνδυσάμενοι τὸν νέον [ἄνθρωπον] τὸν ἀνακαινούμενον εἰς ἐπίγνωσιν κατ' εἰκόνα τοῦ κτίσαντος αὐτόν.

For the verb ἐπιγινώσκειν see Matt. xi. 27; Luke i. 4; 2 Pet. ii. 21; 1 Cor. xiii. 12; 2 Cor. i. 13 f.; Rom. i. 32; 1 Tim. iv. 3.

The subject, with which this 'spirit of wisdom and revelation' is to deal, is of all the most overwhelming,—that men are destined to share in the glory of the exaltation of 'the Lord Jesus Christ.'

18. πεφωτ. ... εἰδέναι] to the end that having the eyes of your heart enlightened ye may know.... The construction is obscure and perhaps confused. It is possible that πεφωτ.

τὸ εἰδέναι ὑμᾶς τίς ἐστὶν ἡ ἐλπὶς τῆς κλήσεως αὐτοῦ, τοὺς ὀφθ. may be paralleled with πν. σοφ. καὶ ἀποκ. and depend directly on δῶη (give you the eyes of your heart enlightened, i.e. enlighten them). But this is an unnatural construction, and the enlightening of the eyes of the heart is not so much a new element in the Divine teaching as a special result involved in the gift of the spirit of revelation. It is therefore best to connect the words with ὑμῖν, the case being determined by the following infinitive (εἰς τὸ εἰδέναι ὑμᾶς) with which it goes closely. There are somewhat similar irregularities of order: c. iii. 18; Luke xxiv. 47 (ἀρξάμ. ἀπὸ ἱ. ὑμεῖς μάρτυρες).

τοὺς ὀφθ. τῆς καρδίας] The 'heart' expresses the whole personality of man. Comp. c. iv. 17, 18 (νοῦς, διάνοια, καρδιά) note. Spiritual sight includes the action of feeling as well as of intellect.

For the image πεφωτισμένους see John i. 9; 1 John i. 7; ii. 8 ff.; Αἰοκ. xxii. 5 (xxi. 23); Hebr. vi. 4; x. 32 (notes); 2 Cor. iv. 6; cc. iii. 9; v. 8, 13 notes; 2 Tim. i. 10. Compare 2 Cor. iv. 4, 6. The corresponding 'darkening' is described Rom. i. 21.

18, 19. τίς ἐστὶν ἡ ἐλπὶς...τίς ὁ πλοῦτος...τί τὸ ὑπερβ. μέγ....] Three distinct objects of spiritual knowledge are set before us. Two concern the nature of our destiny—the hope of our calling, and the wealth of the glory of God's inheritance; and the third, the power of God by which it is fulfilled. As we pass from thought to thought, we pass more and more from man to God, from our feeling to His works, though all is of Him and referred to Him: it is His calling; His inheritance; His might; the calling which He has given, the inheritance which He has prepared, the power which He has shewn; there is at the same time an increasing fulness of development in the successive stages:

- (1) τίς ἡ ἐλπὶς τῆς κλήσεως αὐτοῦ.
- (2) τίς ὁ πλοῦτος τῆς δόξης τῆς κληρ. αὐτοῦ ἐν τοῖς ἁγίοις.
- (3) τί τὸ ὑπερβάλλον μέγεθος τῆς δυνάμεως αὐτοῦ εἰς ἡμᾶς τοὺς πιστεύοντας κατὰ τὴν ἐνέργειαν τοῦ κράτους τῆς ἰσχύος αὐτοῦ ἣν ἐνῆργηκεν ἐν τῷ χριστῷ.

The three great moments correspond with the experience of life, which brings out into evidence evils, capacities, failures, which a growing intelligence of the nature and will and working of God alone can meet. We can face the sorrows and sadnesses of personal and social history 'in the hope of God's calling.' We can rejoice in the possession of capacities and needs to which our present circumstances bring no satisfaction when we look to 'the wealth of the glory of God's inheritance in the saints.' We can overcome the discouragements of constant failures and weaknesses by the remembrance of the power of God shewn in the Raising of Christ.

τίς ἐστὶν ἡ ἐλπὶς...] The question in each case (τίς...τίς...τί...) is of the essence and not of the quality (ποιά). What is the hope of His calling, the hope, the 'one hope of their calling' for all Christians (c. iv. 4), kindled and sustained in us by the fact that God has called us to His presence. Such a Divine call is a revelation of human destiny. Man can in Christ behold God and live (comp. 1 John iii. 2 f.; 2 Cor. iii. 12). His hope enters within the veil where Christ has entered in (Hebr. vi. 19 f.). Compare 1 Pet. i. 3, 5. His hope is a hope of righteousness (Gal. v. 5). Without God man has no hope (c. ii. 12).

Κλήσις is used in regard to the circumstances of the call to the outward society of Christians (1 Cor. i. 26; vii. 20), but more especially of the call as a divine invitation (as here and c. iv. 4; Rom. xi. 29 ἀμεταμέλητος ἡ τίς ὁ πλοῦτος τῆς δόξης τῆς κληρονομίας αὐτοῦ ἐν τοῖς ἀγίοις, ¹⁹ καὶ τί τὸ ὑπερβάλλον μέγεθος τῆς δυνάμεως αὐτοῦ εἰς ἡμᾶς τοὺς πιστεύοντας κατὰ τὴν ἐνέργειαν κλησίαις τοῦ θεοῦ; Phil. iii. 14 ἡ ἄνω κλήσις τοῦ θεοῦ), a holy calling (2 Tim. i. 9), a heavenly calling (Hebr. iii. 1 κλήσεως ἐπουρανίου μέτοχοι note), which carries with it great obligations (c. iv. 1 ἀξίως περιπατήσαι τῆς κλήσεως) calling for responsible effort on the part of those who had received it (2 Pet. i. 10 σπουδάσατε βεβαίαν ὑμῶν τὴν κλήσιν... ποιέσθαι), and corresponding with a unity of corporate life (c. iv. 4).

Comp. 2 Thess. i. 11 προσευχόμεθα... ἵνα ὑμᾶς ἀξιώσῃ τῆς κλήσεως ὁ θεὸς ἡμῶν....

The verb καλεῖν is used characteristically of God (yet see Gal. i. 6; v. 8) and the call, as His act, is treated as effectual (1 Cor. i. 9; Rom. viii. 30; 1 Pet. ii. 9; v. 10). At the same time the call is continuous (1 Thess. ii. 12 τοῦ καλοῦντος; v. 24 ὁ καλῶν). Under the human aspect it needs effort (1 Pet. i. 15; 1 Thess. iv. 7; 1 Tim. vi. 12; 2 Thess. ii. 14). In 1 Cor. vii. 17 ff. the call appears to be to the outward society only.

ὁ πλοῦτος τ. δόξης...] Men are not only called by God and so assured that it is His will that they should come to His Presence (Ps. xvi. 11; xvii. 15), but the nature of their inheritance is already known to them 'in the saints.' Every unfulfilled aspiration is a prophecy of that which shall be. Already in the Christian fellowship there is a beginning and a promise. The future consummation grows out of that which is. 'Christ in us' expresses shortly what is 'the wealth of the glory' prepared for men (Col. i. 27), the fulness of their 'inheritance' (Acts xx 32). On the idea of 'inheritance' see Hebr. ix. 15; xi. 7 ff.

The phrase ὁ πλοῦτος τῆς δόξης occurs in three other places: Rom. ix. 23 ἵνα γνωρίσῃ τὸν πλοῦτον τῆς δόξης αὐτοῦ ἐπὶ σκευῇ ἐλέους ἡ προητοιμασεν εἰς δόξαν; Eph. iii. 16 ἵνα δῶ ὑ. κατὰ τὸ πλοῦτος τῆς δόξης αὐτοῦ... κραταιωθῆναι... εἰς τὸν ἔσω ἄνθρωπον, κατοικῆσαι τὸν χριστὸν... ἐν ταῖς καρδίαις...; Col. i. 27 ἠθέλησεν ὁ θεὸς γνωρίσαι τί τὸ πλοῦτος τῆς δόξης τοῦ μυστηρίου τούτου... ὃ ἐστὶν Χριστὸς ἐν ὑμῖν, ἡ ἐλπίς τῆς δόξης.

In each case union with the Incarnate Word is the spring and the measure of the glory. All is summed up in 1 Cor. iii. 23 πάντα ὑμῶν, ὑμεῖς δὲ Χριστοῦ, Χριστὸς δὲ θεοῦ.

19. τί τὸ ὑπερβάλλον...] The attainment of this transcendent glory is seen to be possible when we consider what God has done in the Christ. The Resurrection and the Ascension furnish the type of his working on behalf of believers, who are members of His body.

Μέγεθος occurs here only in N.T. For ὑπερβάλλον comp. c. ii. 7; 2 Cor. iii. 10; ix. 14; and 2 Cor. iv. 7.

κατὰ τὴν ἐνέργειαν... τῆς ἰσχύ. αὐτοῦ] Compare for κατ' ἐνέργειαν c. iii. 7 κατὰ τὴν ἐνέργειαν τῆς δυνάμεως αὐτοῦ, c. iv. 16 κατ' ἐνέργειαν ἐν μέτρῳ ἐνὸς ἐκάστου μέρους. Col. i. 29 κοπιῶ ἀγωνιζόμενος κατὰ τὴν ἐνέργειαν αὐτοῦ. Phil. iii. 21 μετασχηματίσει... κατὰ τὴν ἐνέργειαν τοῦ δύνασθαι αὐτὸν καὶ ὑποτάξει αὐτῷ τὰ πάντα. 2 Thess. ii. 9 οὐ ἐστὶν ἡ παρουσία κατ' ἐνέργειαν τοῦ Σατανᾶ. The active exercise of the power of God in the case of the Messiah, the Son of man, supplied a standard of the help which He would bring to His people.

The combination κράτος τῆς ἰσχύος occurs again c. vi. 10. A corresponding phrase is found in Col. i. 11 τὸ κράτος τῆς δόξης. Κράτος is might, strength regarded as abundantly effective in relation to an end to be gained or dominion to be exercised: ἰσχύς is strength absolutely. For κράτος see Hebr. ii. 14; and (in doxologies) 1 Tim.

20f. As St Paul touches on 'the working of the might of God's strength' in the exaltation of Christ as the sure ground of Christian confidence, he seems himself to be overpowered by the wonders which it involves, and follows its consequences through the orders of the heavenly hierarchy and successive stages in the accomplishment of God's counsel, that he may indicate the unimaginable dignity of which humanity is found capable in its Head.

20. ἦν ἐνήργ. ἐν τῷ χριστῷ] which He hath wrought (or wrought) in the Christ. The title—the Christ—emphasises the relation in which the Lord stood to His people in the age-long counsel of God.

The Divine work for the Messiah is summed up in the two facts that God (1) raised Him from the dead, and (2) set Him at His right hand in sovereign power. This was the first apostolic message: Acts ii. 32 ff.; v. 30 ff.

The exaltation of Christ was the sign and pledge of the triumph of the Christian. Comp. 1 Pet. i. 21; 2 Cor. iv. 14; Rom. viii. 11.

ἐγείρας] This is the uniform teaching of the apostles: Acts iii. 15; iv. 10; v. 30; x. 40; xiii. 37; 1 Thess. i. 10; 1 Cor. vi. 14; xv. 15; 2 Cor. iv. 14; Gal. i. 1; Rom. iv. 24; viii. 11; x. 9; Col. ii. 12; 1 Pet. i. 21. The words of the Lord in John x. 18 indicate the complementary aspect of the truth which is not further developed. 'To take life again' is different from 'to rise.' Comp. c. ii. 5. See Additional Note [p. 189 ff.].

καθίσας] Ps. cx. 1. Comp. Hebr. i. 13 note.

21. ὑπεράνω πάσης ἀρχ....] Comp. iii. 10 and Additional Note.

For ὑπεράνω comp. c. iv. 10; Hebr. ix. 5. V.L. gives super omne initium. παντὸς ὀνόματος] A name describes a dignity more personal and essential than an office. The name is designed to express what he who bears it is and not simply what he holds. Comp. Phil. ii. 9.

οὐ μόνον...] For the implied contrast between 'this age' and 'the age to come,' see c. ii. 2; vi. 12. The apostle looks forward to 'coming ages,' springing one out of the other εἰς πάσας τὰς γενεὰς τοῦ αἰῶνος τῶν αἰῶνων c. iii. 21 note.

For 'the coming age' see Hebr. vi. 5 (ii. 5 οικουμένην τὴν μέλλουσαν). It occupies a far less prominent place in the apostolic teaching than might have been expected. All is summed up in the παρουσία, which however is not mentioned in this Epistle. Primasius dimly feels that the contrast between the two ages is not in succession of time but in character: in futuro hoc est in caelesti quod nobis futurum est, non Deo nec sibi.

(3) A summary account of the work of God for men through Christ (i. 22—ii. 10).

²² And He put all things in subjection under His feet; and He gave Him to be Head over all things to the Church ²³ which is His body, the fulness of Him Who reaches καὶ ἐν τῷ μέλλοντι ²² καὶ πάντα ὑπέταξεν ὑπὸ τοῦς πόδας αὐτοῦ, καὶ αὐτὸν ἔδωκεν κεφαλὴν ὑπὲρ πάντα τῇ ἐκκλη-

His fulness through all things in all; ii. ¹ and you He quickened when ye were dead through your trespasses and sins ² wherein aforetime ye walked according to the course of this world, according to the prince of the power of the air, of the spirit that now worketh in the sons of disobedience; ³ among whom we also all once lived in the lusts of our flesh, doing the will (lit. wills) of the flesh and of the mind (lit. thoughts), and were children by nature of wrath, even as the rest of men:—⁴ but GOD being rich in mercy, for His great love wherewith He loved us, ⁵ even when we were dead through our trespasses quickened us together with the Christ (by grace have ye been saved), ⁶ and raised us up with Him and made us to sit with Him in the heavenly order in Christ Jesus; ⁷ that in the ages to come He might shew the exceeding riches of His grace in the kindness towards us in Christ Jesus:—⁸ for by grace have ye been saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: ⁹ it is the gift of GOD, not of works that no man should glory—¹⁰ For it is His workmanship we are, created in Christ Jesus for good works, which GOD afore prepared that in them we should walk.

22. St Paul suddenly changes the form of his writing. In the preceding verses he has set out the truths which the Ephesians were to master for themselves through the teaching of 'the spirit of wisdom and revelation': He now declares directly what GOD has done. The transition is prepared naturally by the reference to the Resurrection and Ascension of Christ. These facts were not only events fitted to confirm the greatest hopes of Christians: they were the beginnings of a new order. Not only was Christ Himself exalted to the heavens: He is invested with universal sovereignty (comp. Matt. xxviii. 18). He is even now Head of His Church on earth; and He has already exercised His sovereignty by the gift of His quickening grace.

The three points are distinctly marked and just as in the former section they are described with increasing fulness:

- (1) πάντα ὑπέταξεν ὑπὸ τοῦς πόδας αὐτοῦ.
- (2) αὐτὸν ἔδωκεν κεφαλὴν ὑπὲρ πάντα τῇ ἐκκλησίᾳ,
ἣτις ἐστὶν τὸ σῶμα αὐτοῦ, τὸ πληρωμα τοῦ τὰ πάντα ἐν πᾶσιν πληρουμένου.
- (3) ὑμᾶς ὄντας νεκροὺς τοῖς παραπτώμασιν καὶ ταῖς ἀμαρτίαις ὑμῶν... ἐν οἷς [τοῖς νίοις τῆς ἀπειθείας] καὶ ἡμεῖς πάντες ἀνεστράφημέν ποτε... καὶ ὄντας ἡμᾶς νεκροὺς τοῖς παραπτώμασιν συνεζωοποίησεν [ἐν] τῷ χριστῷ...
αὐτοῦ γὰρ ἔσμεν ποιήμα...

In the last section the construction is sacrificed to the crowding fulness of the thoughts.

22. καὶ πάντα... αὐτοῦ] Ps. viii. 6. The treatment of this passage in Hebr. ii. 5 ff. furnishes a commentary on the words here. Compare also 1 Cor. xv. 27 ff.

καὶ αὐτὸν ἔδωκεν...] The unusual order gives emphasis. 'And He it was—none other—Whom GOD gave to be...'

κεφαλὴν] The image occurs in a different yet cognate application in 1 Cor. xi. 3 παντὸς ἀνδρὸς ἡ κεφαλὴ ὁ χριστὸς ἐστίν, κεφαλὴ δὲ γυναικὸς ὁ ἀνὴρ, κεφαλὴ δὲ τοῦ χριστοῦ ὁ θεός. Comp. c. v. 23. The thought of sovereignty, already given, is now connected with that of vital union with a glorious organism which draws its life from Him (c. iv. 15; Col. ii. 19).

ὑπὲρ πάντα] Sovereign over all the other elements included in it.

τῇ ἐκκλησίᾳ] See App. [p. 172 ff.].

σία, ²³ ἥτις ἐστὶν τὸ σῶμα αὐτοῦ, τὸ πλήρωμα τοῦ τὰ

23. ἥτις ἐστὶν τὸ σ. αὐ.] which is—seeing it is—His body. The qualitative relation has its full force.

For the development of the idea of the Church as the Body of Christ see Additional Note (in App.).

τὸ πλήρωμα...] the fulness of Him Who reaches His fulness through all things in all. Latt. qui omnia in omnibus adimpletur (impletur): some adimplet.

The active sense which is generally given to πληρουμένου (who filleth) finds no support in the use of the word in the N.T. Both voices occur in this Epistle: cc. iii. 19 ἵνα πληρωθῆτε εἰς (or ἵνα πληρωθῆ) πάν τὸ πλήρωμα τοῦ θεοῦ. v. 18 πληροῦσθε ἐν πνεύματι and again iv. 10 ἵνα πληρώσῃ τὰ πάντα.

Again even if the active sense were possible it does not appear to fall in with the context. It is indeed true that Christ does 'fill all things' (c. iv. 10). That is the relation in which He stands to them. But here the thought is of the converse relation of created things to Christ. For while, on the one side, Christ gives their true being to all things by His presence (Col. i. 17; cf. Ac.s xvii. 28) and Christians in a special sense reach their 'fulness,' their complete development, in Him (c. iv. 15; Col. ii. 10); on the other side, all things are contributory to Him, and He himself finds His fulness in the sum of all that He brings into a living union with Himself. Thus the Church is His Body, in which, gathering to itself the first-fruits of creation, He is Himself presented to the eye of faith. The fulness, if we may so speak, is at present representative only. The end is not yet, but it is prepared and prefigured. It will be reached through the summing up of all things in Christ through the Church, that God may be all in all (Col. iii. 11 πάντα καὶ ἐν πᾶσιν Χριστός, 1 Cor. xv. 28 τότε καὶ αὐτός ὁ υἱός ὑποταγῆται τῷ ὑποτάξαντι αὐτῷ τὰ πάντα, ἵνα ἢ ὁ θεὸς πάντα ἐν πᾶσιν).

The present πληρουμένου shews that the process is continuous till all things are brought into subjection to Christ.

The construction of τὰ πάντα with πληρουμένου is illustrated by the remarkable phrase in Col. i. 9 ἵνα πληρωθῆτε τὴν ἐπίγνωσιν τοῦ θελήματος αὐτοῦ. The knowledge itself constituted the fulness for which the Apostle looked. Comp. c. iii. 19.

For πλήρωμα see Lightfoot, Col. i. 19.

Primasius gives the main sense: Qui [Christus] totus in membris omnibus adimpletur non in singulis, ne ulla diversitas meritorum sit; quando omnes crediderint et perfecti fuerint, tunc erit corpus perfectum in omnibus membris.

ii. 1—10. In describing the third element in the Lord's present work, St Paul enlarges the scope of his original statement, and shews how the mercy and love of God was extended not only to Gentiles (1, 2) but to all Christians alike, whether Jews or Gentiles (3—6), who are a new creation designed for the fulfilment of His will (10).

The development of the truth, though the construction is irregular and broken by parentheses, is perfectly natural. After characterising the former life of the Ephesians as answering to the influence of 'the spirit that now worketh in the sons of disobedience' (1, 2), he adds that he and all with him shared their life, and following the impulses of nature were 'children of wrath' as all other men; and then, having thus exhibited the wider need of God's quickening love, he contemplates the whole Christian society, and no longer the Ephesians only or specially, as the objects of salvation in Christ (4—6) and a proof of God's exceeding goodness to all future ages (7). For a moment he returns again, as in a brief parenthesis before (c. 5

πάντα ἐν πᾶσιν πληρουμένου. II. ¹Καὶ ὑμᾶς ὄντας νεκροὺς τοῖς παραπτώμασιν καὶ ταῖς ἀμαρτίαις ὑμῶν, ²ἐν αἷς ποτὲ περιεπατήσατε κατὰ τὸν αἰῶνα τοῦ κόσμου τούτου, κατὰ τὸν ἄρχοντα τῆς ἐξουσίας τοῦ ἀέρος, τοῦ χάρτι ἐστε σεσωσμένοι), to the Ephesians (8, 9); and then shews how the testimony of the Church will be delivered by the performance of the works which are prepared for believers (10).

1. καὶ ὑμᾶς...] And you He quickened when ye were dead through your trespasses and sins. The clause is strictly parallel to the two which go before: And he put all things in subjection... And he gave Him to be... And you he quickened....

For νεκρ. τοῖς παραπτ. dead through offences... compare Col. ii. 13 νεκροὺς ὄντας τοῖς παραπτώμασιν καὶ τῇ ἀκροβυστίᾳ τῆς σαρκὸς ὑμῶν, ep. 1 Pet. i. 18. Contrast Rom. viii. 10 τὸ μὲν σῶμα νεκρὸν δι' ἀμαρτίαν.

Νεκρός describes generally the complete absence of the characteristic power of that to which it is referred. Sin is dead (Rom. vii. 8) when it is unable to work its effects. On the other hand men are regarded as 'dead to sin' (Rom. vi. 11 νεκροὺς τῇ ἀμαρτίᾳ) when they are held to be incapable of sinning. Faith is dead (James ii. 17, 26) when it fails to produce its corresponding works. Works are dead (Hebr. vi. 1, note; ix. 14) when they are destitute of that divine element which alone gives them reality. Men are dead in respect to that which is the true characteristic of man when they are without that power through which they grow to the Divine likeness for which men were made. This comes from the indwelling of Christ (Gal. ii. 20; John xiv. 6; xi. 25 f.). Sin excludes Him.

The variations in order, v. 1 καὶ ὑμᾶς ὄντας νεκροὺς, v. 5 καὶ ὄντας ἡμᾶς νεκροὺς, Col. ii. 13 καὶ ὑμᾶς νεκροὺς ὄντας are to be noticed as indicating subtle differences of emphasis. The position of ὄντας is unusual, yet it occurs again v. 20; Rom. v. 6 (contrast v. 8); xvi. 1. Comp. Acts xix. 31; xxvii. 2, 9.

2. ἐν αἷς ποτὲ περιεπτ.] Sins were more than occasional acts; they were the medium, the atmosphere, of their ordinary life.

Περιπατεῖν is used of personal action, in regard to the man himself: ἀναστρέφεσθαι of social action, converse among other men (v. 3 ἐν οἷς ἀνεστράφημεν [contrast Col. iii. 6 ἐν οἷς (neut.) καὶ ὑμεῖς περιεπατήσατε]; 2 Cor. i. 12; 1 Tim. iii. 15; even when this is not expressly defined, Hebr. x. 33; xiii. 18; 1 Pet. i. 17; 2 Pet. ii. 18); στοιχείιν of action directed on particular lines (Gal. vi. 16; Rom. iv. 12; Phil. iii. 16).

For περιπατεῖν ἐν see 1 John i. 6 note.

κατὰ τὸν αἰῶνα τ. κ. τ.] Latt. secundum seculum mundi hujus, according to the course of this world. The use of αἰών recalls the familiar phrase 'corrumpere et corrumpi seculum vocatur' (Tac. German. 19). Αἰών describes an age marked by a particular character: κόσμος the whole constitution of things.

κατὰ τὸν ἄρχ...] According to the prince of the power of the air, of the spirit that now worketh in the children of disobedience. 'The course of the world' corresponds with the being who is its god (2 Cor. iv. 4 ὁ θεὸς τοῦ αἰῶνος τούτου). This temporary and contingent power (Lk. iv. 6 παραδέδοται, John xii. 31) is contrasted with the universal sovereignty of God, 1 Tim. i. 17 ὁ βασιλεὺς τῶν αἰώνων.

πνεύματος τοῦ νῦν ἐνεργούντος ἐν τοῖς υἱοῖς τῆς ἀπειθίας· ³ἐν οἷς καὶ ἡμεῖς πάντες ἀνεστράφημέν ποτε ἐν ταῖς ἐπιθυμίαις τῆς σαρκὸς ἡμῶν, ποιούντες τὰ θελήματα τῆς σαρκὸς καὶ τῶν διανοιῶν, καὶ ἡμεθα τέκνα φύσει

Comp. John xii. 31; xvi. 11 ὁ ἄρχων τοῦ κόσμου τούτου; xiv. 30 ὁ τοῦ κόσμου ἄρχων.

1 Cor. ii. 6 τῶν ἀρχόντων τοῦ αἰῶνος τοῦτον τῶν καταργουμένων.

For the use of κατά compare κατὰ θεόν c. iv. 24; 2 Cor. vii. 10, 11; Rom. viii. 27; 1 Pet. v. 2; κατὰ τὸν καλέσαντα 1 Pet. i. 15; κατὰ Χρ. 1. Rom. xv. 5; κατὰ Χρ. Col. ii. 8; κατὰ κύριον 2 Cor. xi. 17; κατὰ ἄνθρωπον 1 Cor. iii. 3; ix. 8; xv. 32; Gal. i. 11; iii. 15; Rom. iii. 5; (vii. 22); 1 Pet. iv. 6 (κατὰ ἀνθρώπους, κατὰ θεόν).

See Additional Note [App. p. 195].

'The power of the air' is the 'spirit' which is active in 'the sons of disobedience,' and is subordinate to a higher, 'personal,' power (ὁ ἄρχων τῆς ἐξ. τοῦ αἴρος).

The phrase ἡ ἐξουσία τοῦ αἴρος (compare Col. i. 13 ἐρύσατο ἡμᾶς ἐκ τῆς ἐξουσίας τοῦ σκοτός) is borrowed from the language of current thought which regarded the lower regions of the sky (ἀήρ, compare 1 Thess. iv. 17) as tenanted by evil spirits; and the adoption of the idea by St Paul justifies us in believing that we can so most truly represent to ourselves our relation to the unseen adversaries by which we are surrounded. They are, so to speak, within reach of us; and no fact of experience is more clear than that we are exposed to assaults of evil from without.

ἐν τοῖς υἱοῖς τῆς ἀπ.] Latt. in filiis diffidentiv (al. incredulitatis, inobedientiv, infidelitatis). So in c. v. 6 (inserted by transcribers in Col. iii. 6). Compare Matt. viii. 12; xiii. 38 οἱ υἱοὶ τῆς βασιλείας; Matt. ix. 15; Mk ii. 19; Lk. v. 34 οἱ υἱοὶ τοῦ νυμφῶνος, xx. 36 τῆς ἀναστάσεως υἱοὶ ὄντες, John xii. 36; 1 Thess. v. 5 υἱοὶ φωτός; 1 Thess. v. 5 υἱοὶ ἡμέρας. And note the special title ὁ υἱὸς τῆς ἀπωλείας John xvii. 12 (Judas); 2 Thess. ii. 3 ὁ ἄνθρωπος τῆς ἀνομίας (οἱ ἁμαρτίας).

Similar phrases are formed with τέκνον; see τ. 3 τέκνα φύσει ὀργῆς and note.

'Disobedience,' conscious resistance to the will of God, lays men open to the working of Satan and his hosts (John iii. 36).

3. At this point St Paul is constrained to recognise that the description which he has given of the moral condition of the Ephesians applied also to himself, a Jew by birth, and his fellow-believers. Before their conversion they were not separated from the 'sons of disobedience,' among whom, he adds, we all also once lived...doing the will (lit. wills) of the flesh and of the mind. The plurals τὰ θελήματα and τῶν διανοιῶν (v.l. consiliorum, V. cogitationum, Hieron. Comm. mentium) do not admit of a simple translation. The thought is of the multiplicity of purposes suggested by 'the flesh' and by the many thoughts of a discursive intelligence.

For τὰ θελήματα comp. Acts xiii. 22 and var. lect. Mk iii. 35; and for τῶν διαν. Hebr. x. 16 var. lect. (LXX).

καὶ ἡμεθα τέκνα φύσει ὀργῆς...] Latt. et eramus (fuimus) natura (al. naturaliter, al. naturales) filiū iræ (iracundiv filiū)¹, and were children by nature—as we followed our natural impulses—of wrath even as the rest of men. The word φύσει is in itself ambiguous. In other passages in the N. T. where it occurs it means 'by birth' (Gal. ii. 15 ἡμεῖς φύσει Ἰουδαῖοι); 'by constitution' (Gal. iv. 8 τοῖς φύσει μὴ οὐσι θεοῖς) and 'by the exercise of natural powers' (Rom. ii. 14 ὅταν... φύσει τὰ τοῦ νόμου ποιῶσιν). In this place it describes the result of man's action so far as he is unaided by the Spirit of God. There is in his nature, as the Jew found in spite of God's covenant with him, that which issues in sin. Actual Sin is in fact universal and this deserves God's wrath till an atonement is found (John iii. 36; comp. Deut. xxv. 2 ason of beating). And more than this: mortality itself, as it is, is, according to the teaching of the Bible, the sign of sin, of man's fall from the divine ideal (Gen. ii. 17; iii. 19; James i. 15; comp. Hebr. ii. 14 f.). In this sense also, as sharers in a mortal nature, Jew and Gentile alike can be spoken of as objects of God's displeasure. Origen, translated by Jerome, combines the two thoughts: ἡμεῖς οὐόμεθα διὰ τὸ σῶμα τῆς ταπεινώσεως γεγονέναι τέκνα φύσει ὀργῆς, ὅτε (I. ὅτι) ἐπέκειτο ἡμῶν ἡ διάνοια ἐπὶ τὰ πονηρὰ ἐκ νεότητος.

The record of Bp Butler's death offers an impressive commentary on the phrase: Bartlett's Life, pp. 221 f. τέκνα... ὀργῆς] Compare c. v. 8, τέκνα φωτός, 1 Pet. i. 14 τέκνα ὑπακοῆς, 2 Pet. ii. 14 κατάρτας τέκνα (Gal. iv. 28; Rom. ix. 8 τέκνα ἐπαγγελίας). The general difference which holds between υἱοὶ θεοῦ and τέκνα θεοῦ (see on 1 Jo. iii. 1, with Additional Note) appears to underlie these wider uses of τέκνον and υἱός (see v. 2 note).

Having shown the universality of spiritual need, St Paul cannot complete the sentence which he has begun. To say '(and you...) He quickened' would be to neglect the real scope of Christian work. So he merges the less in the greater and continues: 'but GOD being rich in mercy, for His great love wherewith he loved us even when we were dead through our trespasses, quickened us—us no less than you—with the Christ.'

4. πλούσιος ἐν ἐλέει] Compare James ii. 5 πλουσίους ἐν πίστει, 1 Tim. vi. 18 πλουτεῖν ἐν ἔργοις καλοῖς.

The image is characteristic of the tone of thought in the Epistle. See i. 18 note.

With ἐν ἐλέει διὰ τὴν πολλὴν (v.l. multam. V. nimiam) ἀγάπην compare 1 Pet. i. 3 ὁ κατὰ τὸ πολὺ αὐτοῦ ἔλεος ἀναγεννήσας ἡμᾶς, Tit. iii. 5. The motive of God in the redemption of the world is simply mercy and love. This truth is affirmed alike by St Peter, St Paul and St John (iii. 16).

5. καὶ ὄντας ἡμᾶς] even when we were... His love survived our spiritual death (John iii. 16; 1 John iv. 10).

συνεζ. συνήγ. συνεκάθ.] The three words express a climax in the manifestation of the love of God. He quickened the dead with life: He restored them to the full use of the powers of their former life: He raised them, without the loss of the perfection of their humanity, to a life in the heavenly order.

The Latin forms conexcitavit, conresuscitavit (v.l. coexcitavit) are characteristic.

συνεζωοποίησεν] Col. ii. 13. χάριτί ἐστε σεσωσμεν.] by grace ye have been saved. The abrupt return to the second person (so v. 8) is natural and full of force. The tense must be noticed. It can be said of the believer, σῴζεται, σωθήσεται, ἐσώθη, σέσωσται. 1 Cor. i. 18; 2 Cor. ii. 15 (οἱ σωζόμενοι); Rom. v. 9 f. (σωθησόμεθα); Rom. viii. 24 (ἐσώθημεν); 2 Tim. i. 9 (τοῦ σώσαντος ἡμᾶς).

6. συνήγειρεν] Col. ii. 12; iii. 1. The Resurrection of Christ was ideally the quickening of all believers, the first-fruits of humanity.

συνεκάθισεν] Compare Phil. iii. 20.

These acts which are complete on the Divine side have to be realised on the side of man: Rom. viii. 11; 2 Cor. iv. 14; Apoc. iii. 21. Cf. Rom. vi. 3 ff.

For man, as for the Son of man, the victory is completed in the triumph.

7. Thought cannot give distinctness to the vision of the counsel of God wrought out in the succession of ages. Through all redeemed man seen in Christ Jesus is seen as a glorious witness to the amazing wealth of God's grace, moving, it may be, other races to faith and hope and love, to thanksgiving and praise, through which their destiny will be reached.

Comp. 1 Pet. i. 12; 1 Cor. iv. 9.

τὸ ὑπερβ. πλ. τ. χ.] His grace corresponds with His power: c. i. 19 τὸ ὑπερβ. μεγ. τῆς δυν. αὐτοῦ.

ἐν χρηστότητι] That kindness which is tender and considerate. Among human graces it stands in Gal. v. 22 between long-suffering and goodness, in 2 Cor. vi. 6 between long-suffering and holy spirit, and in Col. iii. 12 between tender compassion and humility. As a Divine attribute it is joined with forbearance and long-suffering in Rom. ii. 4, with φιλανθρωπία in Tit. iii. 4, and contrasted with ἀποτομία in Rom. xi. 22.

Compare Matt. xi. 30; Lk. vi. 35; 1 Pet. ii. 3 [cit. from Ps. xxxiv. 8].

8, 9. These verses are parenthetical, repeating and developing the brief parenthesis in v. 5.

τῇ γὰρ χ.] It is as if the Apostle said: I dwell on these facts of the grace and the kindness of God, familiar to us from past experience, lest any thought of deserving should arise in your minds, 'for it is by grace ye have been saved through faith.'

8. καὶ τοῦτο...] And this saving energy of faith is not of yourselves: it is a gift, and the gift is God's. The variation in construction occurs not unfrequently: ἐξ ὑ. evolved as it were from the action of personal powers.

There is an underlying reference to the Law: cf. Rom. iii. 20, 24.

For καὶ τοῦτο introducing a new element see 1 Cor. vi. 6, 8; Phil. i. 28.

θεοῦ τὸ δ.] Comp. John vi. 44.

9. οὐκ ἐξ ἔργων] It is not the result of a natural evolution of character, and yet more, it is not the result of self-originated and self-supported effort: it is not of works, that no man may boast.

ἵνα μὴ τις καυχῆ.] Latt. ut nequis gloriectur (al. extollatur). Self-assertion is fatal to spiritual life.

Comp. 1 Cor. i. 29; Rom. iii. 27.

There is indeed a right boasting: 1 Cor. i. 31; 2 Cor. x. 17; Gal. vi. 14.

γάρ ἐσμεν ποίημα, κτισθέντες ἐν Χριστῷ Ἰησοῦ ἐπὶ ἔργοις ἀγαθοῖς οἷς προητοίμασεν ὁ θεὸς ἵνα ἐν αὐτοῖς περιπατήσωμεν.

The group of words καυχᾶσθαι, καύχημα, καύχησις, is characteristic of St Paul. They occur in all groups of his Epistles excepting the Pastoral; elsewhere only in St James (i. 9; iv. 16) and Hebr. iii. 6.

10. αὐτοῦ γάρ ἐσμεν π.] V. Ipsius enim sumus factura (v. l. figmentum). For it is His workmanship—of His making—we are... The position of the pronoun is emphatic. Cp. re. 14, 18.

ποίημα] Rom. i. 20; Is. xxix. 16. Very frequent in Eceles. e.g. viii. 9.

Diligenter observa quia non dixerit Ipsius figuratio sumus atque plasmatio, sed ipsius factura sumus... Factura primum locum tenet, deinde plasmatio (Hier. ad loc.).

κτισθέντες... περιπατήσωμεν] created in Christ Jesus for good works which God afore prepared that in them we should walk. The words give the whole history of the Christian life from the divine and from the human side. The Christian is a new creation (2 Cor. v. 17), not alone and independent, but in Christ; he is not left to self-chosen activity, but set for the accomplishment of definite works which God has made ready for his doing; his works are prepared, and so the fulfilment of his particular duty is made possible; and still it is necessary that he should accept it with that glad obedience which is perfect freedom.

κτισθέντες] That which is realised in time through faith is referred to its origin in the primal Divine action. Comp. c. i. 4; Col. i. 16f.

Κτίζω emphasises a new beginning, a creation. It is used characteristically of the creation of the natural order: Me. xiii. 19; Rom. i. 25; Eph. iii. 9; Col. i. 16; Apoc. iv. 11; and of particular parts of it: 1 Cor. xi. 9; 1 Tim. iv. 3; Apoc. x. 6. It is used also of spiritual acts of creation both social: c. ii. 15, archetypal: c. iv. 24 (Col. iii. 10), and personal as here.

However definitely the action of the Christian may be limited by his inheritance and his environment, by his powers and his circumstances, he is still responsibly free; and by true service he can realise his freedom. No necessity constrains him, but 'in Christ' he can fulfil his own part.

ἐπὶ ἔργοις ἀγαθοῖς] Latt. in operibus bonis: some more adequately in opera bona, on the condition of...for... Comp. 1 Thess. iv. 7 ἐπὶ ἀκαθαρσία, Gal. v. 13.

προητοίμασεν] Rom. ix. 23. We ourselves and our works, so far as they are our true works, are alike of God's making.

(4) The special significance of the call of the Gentiles (ii. 11—22). After indicating the great mysteries of the Christian Faith, which he prays that the Ephesians may be enabled to understand more thoroughly (i. 15—21), and the present action of Christ, exalted to be Saviour and King towards and through His people (ii. 1—10), St Paul returns to mark more clearly their peculiar blessings as Gentiles. He points out the broad contrast between their past and present condition (11—13); and then, after describing the atoning work of Christ (14—18), shews in detail its result for them now that they are incorporated in the one Church of God (19—22).

¹¹ Wherefore, remember that once ye, the Gentiles in the flesh, those called 'the Uncircumcision' by that which is called 'the Circumcision' in the flesh made by hands,—¹² that ye were at that time apart from Christ, alienated from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers to the covenants of the promise, having no hope and without God in the world.

13 But now in Christ Jesus ye that once were 'afar' are made 'near' in the blood of the Christ. 14 For He is our peace, He who made both one, and broke down the middle wall of partition, having abolished in His flesh the enmity, even the law of commandments expressed in ordinances; that He might create (form afresh) the twain in Himself into one new man, so making peace; 16 and might reconcile them both in one body unto God through the cross, having slain the enmity thereby; 17 and He came and preached the glad tidings of peace to you that were far off and peace to them that were near; 18 because it is through Him we both have our access in one Spirit to the Father. 19 So then ye are no more strangers and sojourners, but fellow-citizens with the saints and of the household of God, 20 built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, the head corner-stone being Christ Jesus Himself; 21 in Whom each several building, fitly framed together, groweth unto a holy sanctuary in the Lord; 22 in Whom ye also are builded together for a habitation of God in the Spirit.

11—13. Gentiles must remember that they were once apart from Christ, alienated from the divine commonwealth, strangers to the covenants, hopeless and godless, but that now they were brought into the same position as the chosen people in the blood of the Christ.

11. διό...] Wherefore remember that once ye, the Gentiles in the flesh, those called 'the Uncircumcision' by that which is called 'the Circumcision' in the flesh made by hand... Wherefore, in view of the glorious privileges brought to believers by the victory and triumph of Christ, and the revelation which they bring of the purpose and obligations and capacities of life, remember...

μνημονεύετε] Remembrance is enjoined also in the Apocalypse on the Angels of the Churches of Ephesus and Sardis (Apoc. ii. 5; iii. 3).

τὰ ἔθνη ἐν σαρκί] The Gentiles, regarded as a class in their outward, natural, human character and position, in contrast with ἡ λεγ. περιτομὴ ἐν σαρκί.

With ἐν σαρκί, where 'flesh' is regarded as an element of life, must be compared κατὰ σάρκα, where 'flesh' is regarded as the standard and rule of life. The two phrases are used together in 2 Cor. x. 3. Compare Rom. viii. 4, 5, 8ff., 13.

The characterisation of Gentiles and Jews by the addition 'in the flesh' serves a double purpose. It marks the definite exclusion of the Gentiles from the only Covenant which God had then made with men, and at the same time the inadequacy of that Covenant, received only outwardly, to meet human needs even provisionally. The Gentiles were outside the Society, to which God had been pleased to make His promises, and therefore necessarily disqualified for its blessings: the Jews, on the other hand, keenly alive to the inferior position of all other men, too often rested in the outward mark of a divine relationship, by which they were distinguished, and so in their pride missed the spiritual teaching, of which circumcision was the symbol and the preparation (Rom. ii. 25ff.).

χειροποιήτου] Elsewhere of the Tabernacle and the Temple: Hebr.

ἐν σαρκὶ χειροποιήτου, — ¹²ὅτι ἦτε τῷ καιρῷ ἐκείνῳ χωρὶς Χριστοῦ, ἀπηλλοτριωμένοι τῆς πολιτείας τοῦ Ἰσραὴλ καὶ ξένοι τῶν διαθηκῶν τῆς ἐπαγγελίας, ἐλπίδα

ix. 11; Mk. xiv. 58; Acts vii. 48; xvii. 24; Hebr. ix. 24.

12. ὅτι ἦτε...] Remember that once ye...that ye were at that time apart from Christ, alienated from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers to the covenants of the promise, having no hope and without God in the world. Καρὸς retains its qualitative sense: 'under those circumstances,' 'at that season,' and not simply 'at that point of time.'

Ἐκεῖνος has the same force as in John xi. 49.

For the simple dat. compare c. iii. 5 ἐτέρας γενεαῖς.

χωρὶς Χριστοῦ—κόσμῳ] These five points summarise the wants of the Gentiles in their personal, social, spiritual relations. They were separate from Christ; they were alienated from the divine society which existed, and ignorant of the provisions for one more comprehensive; they were without hope, and without God in a world unintelligible except through the sense of His Presence.

χωρὶς Χριστοῦ] Apart from, without Christ, not as c. 13 τοῦ Χριστοῦ. The thought is of the personal relationship now recognised and not of the national hope. Comp. John xv. 5.

ἀπηλλ...ἐπαγγελίας] alienated from (and not simply 'outside') the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers to (not only unacquainted with but unqualified to enjoy) the covenants of the promise. These words indicate the two most impressive characteristics of Judaism, its inclusiveness (not exclusiveness) and its larger hope. All who accepted its conditions were admitted to its privileges. It claimed no finality, but pointed to a universal Church. But the Gentiles were alienated from (not alien to) the institutions of the people of God.

By Creation they were fitted for the Divine fellowship; but, though the fundamental promise to Abraham included blessing for them, they had no place in the Covenants by which the blessing was brought closer to the life of the chosen race.

ἀπηλλοτριωμένοι] c. iv. 18 ἀπηλλ. τῆς ζωῆς τοῦ θεοῦ; Col. i. 21 ἀπηλλοτριωμένους sc. τοῦ θεοῦ. Alienated from the commonwealth and so excluded from the citizenship.

πολιτείας] Latt. a conversatione (societate). For πολιτεία see Acts xxii. 28 (citizenship). Here the word expresses the 'commonwealth' of Israel as including the spiritual privileges which were conveyed by its divine ordering.

ξένοι τ. δ.] Latt. hospites (al. peregrini) testamentorum. The word ξένος had a technical sense in the city-states of Greece, and carries on the image of the former clause (comp. v. 19). It is used in the same construction in classical Greek (Soph. Œd. R. 219).

τῶν διαθηκῶν τῆς ἐπαγγ.] The one promise was brought nearer to realisation by successive Covenants. The many promises (Rom. ix. 4) were summed up in one: Gal. iii. 16f.; 21f. Comp. Hebr. x. 36, xi. 9 note, xi. 13 notes.

ἐλπίδα μὴ ἔχ.] 'We need,' it has been truly said, 'an infinite hope'; and faith in God alone can give it. Faith in God, if we consider what are the grounds of our confidence, alone justifies our belief in the permanence of natural 'laws.' By faith alone we enter on the future and the unseen (Hebr. xi. 1 note) and so find hope. The phrase occurs again in view of death (1 Thess. iv. 13).

ἐλπ. μὴ ἔχ. καὶ ἄθεοι ἐν τῷ κόσμῳ] There is a strange pathos in the com-μη ἔχοντες καὶ ἄθεοι ἐν τῷ κόσμῳ. ¹³ νυνὶ δὲ ἐν Χριστῷ Ἰησοῦ ὑμεῖς οἱ ποτε ὄντες μακρὰν ἐγενήθητε ἐγγύς ἐν τῷ αἵματι τοῦ χριστοῦ. ¹⁴ Αὐτὸς γάρ ἐστιν ἡ εἰρήνη

bination. They were of necessity face to face with all the problems of nature and life, but without Him in Whose wisdom and righteousness and love they could find rest and hope. The vast, yet transitory, order of the physical universe was for them without its Interpreter, an unsolved enigma.

The Gentiles had, indeed, 'gods many and lords many,' and one God as 'a first Cause' in philosophic theories, but no God loving men and Whom men could love.

13. The contrast of the present position of the Ephesians with their past desolation and hopelessness is given by a reference to a prophetic word (Is. lvii. 19) which spoke of 'Peace' to those afar and to those near: this Peace had been given to all in Christ. But now in Christ Jesus ye that once were 'afar' are made 'near' in the blood of the Christ.

There appears to be a fulness of meaning in the choice of the two titles 'in Christ Jesus,' 'in the blood of the Christ.' 'The Gentiles were now united in Him Who was Son of man, 'Jesus,' no less than Christ: their redemption was wrought by the offered life of Him Who was the hope of Israel, 'the Christ.' The combination recalls John xx. 31, and shows how the fulness of the Gospel is expressed by that summary of the scope of the Evangelic narrative.

Compare ec. 5, 6.

ἐν Χ. 'I.] in Christ Jesus, united in Him by a fellowship of life, as members of His body.

ἐγενήθητε] not γεγόνατε, or ἐστέ—'were made' by one decisive act. The reference is primarily to the ideal redemption of the Gentiles once for all accomplished by Christ's victorious Passion.

From the first proclamation of the Gospel on the day of Pentecost it was recognised that the promise was 'for all those that were afar' (Acts ii. 39).

ἐν τῷ αἵματι τοῦ χριστοῦ] Compare Hebr. x. 19 εἰς τὴν εἴσοδον τῶν ἁγίων ἐν τῷ αἵματι Ἰησοῦ. The offered life was not only the means of reconciliation (διὰ), but the atmosphere, as it were, in which the reconciled soul lived. The blood of Christ is 'the blood of the New Covenant': Matt. xxvi. 28.

14—18. Having used the language of Isaiah to describe the change in the position of the Gentiles, St Paul goes on to show how the prophetic central thought was fulfilled in Christ. For He is our Peace. He broke down the outward barriers which separated Jew and Gentile, uniting both and reconciling both in one body to God; and coming—after His victory—proclaimed Peace to all far and near, because it is through Him that both Jew and Gentile have their access to the Father, as alike children.

14. αὐτὸς γάρ...] For He is our Peace, He who made both one and broke down the middle wall of partition, having abolished the enmity, represented by that separation, in His flesh, even the law of commandments expressed in ordinances... St Paul speaks first of the two organisations, systems (τὰ ἀμφοτέρα), under which Jews and Gentiles were gathered as hostile bodies, separated by a dividing fence, and then afterwards of the two bodies themselves (τοὺς δύο [ἀνθρώπους]) included in them. Christ broke down the barrier by which the two organisations were kept apart and made them one, abolishing the enmity

which was shewn openly in the Law (comp. Rom. v. 13 f.), by His life of perfect obedience, the virtue of which He offered to Jew and Gentile alike. Thus all men were made capable of a living unity.

αὐτὸς γάρ...] For He—He Himself and no other (compare Matt. i. 21 αὐτὸς γὰρ σώσει, and ε. 10 note)—is our peace both in our relations one to another, and in our relation to God. He is our peace, as He is the Way and the Truth and the Life. He does not bring it only, or shew it. So it is that St Paul speaks of the Gospel—the Gospel of our Salvation (c. i. 13)—as ‘the Gospel of peace’ (c. vi. 15).

ὁ ποιήσας τὰ ἀμφ. ἔν] The two providential systems under which ‘the nations’ and ‘the people’ lived up to the Coming of Christ, the orders of Nature (comp. Rom. ii. 14 ff.) and of the Law, are first noticed, and then the corresponding ‘men’ (ε. 15). Christ removed the partition between the systems, which became enmity between the peoples, and united both ‘men’ in Himself.

τὸ μεσότοιχον τοῦ φραγμοῦ] Latt. medium parietem maceriae (sepis). For φραγμός see Matt. xxi. 33 and parallels. The word μεσότοιχον is probably suggested by the Chel (לִּיָּ) or “partition which separated the Court of the Gentiles from the Temple proper.” The φραγμός was the μεσότοιχον: for this use of the genitive see c. vi. 14 note.

λύσας] Comp. John ii. 19 λύσατε τὸν ναὸν τοῦτον. Acts xxvii. 41; 2 Pet. iii. 10 ff.; 1 John iii. 8 ἵνα λύσῃ τὰ ἔργα τοῦ διαβόλου.

15. τὴν ἔχθραν] The Fall brought to men a twofold enmity, an enmity between themselves and an enmity towards God (ε. 16). The Law brought both into clear light. It revealed Sin in those who received it (Rom. vii. 7 ff.), and fixed a gulf between them and other men. Christ in His flesh, as has been well said, ‘went behind’ the Law, and by fulfilling the will of God (Hebr. x. 5 ff.), of which the Law was an imperfect symbol, abolished it, offering to men the pattern and the power of the freedom of perfect obedience. That which was a barrier between heathenism and Judaism became necessarily a cause of active enmity between Gentile and Jew.

ἐν τῇ σαρκί] Under the conditions of our mortal life. Comp. Col. i. 22 τὸ σῶμα τῆς σαρκὸς αὐτοῦ, the body which answered to these conditions.

τὸν νόμον τῶν ἐντ. ἐν δόγμ.] Comp. Hebr. vii. 16 κατὰ νόμον ἐντολῆς σαρκίνης.

The addition ἐν δόγμασιν defines the commandments as specific, rigid, and outward, fulfilled in external obedience (Lk. ii. 1; Acts xvi. 4; xvii. 7; Col. ii. 14 (20)).

καταργήσας] Latt. evacuans (destituens). The Law was abolished, annulled, because it was fulfilled, and taken up into something wider and deeper (Matt. v. 17 f.; compare 2 Cor. iii. 14. In this sense St Paul can say (Rom. iii. 31) νόμον οὐκ καταργούμεν διὰ τῆς πίστεως; μὴ γένοιτο, ἀλλὰ νόμον ἱστανόμεν. The phrase used by him in 1 Cor. xiii. 11 κτήρηκα τὰ τοῦ νηπιῶν presents the thought very vividly. The words, the conceptions, the reasoning of the child are valid for the child. But by a normal development they pass away and are lost in the ripe judgments of the man.

That which is complete in the Divine act may be yet future in historic realisation. ‘Our Saviour δύο κτίσις ἐν αὐτῷ εἰς ἓνα καινὸν ἄνθρωπον ποιῶν εἰρήνην, ¹⁶καὶ ἀποκαταλλάξῃ τοὺς ἀμφοτέρους ἐν ἐνὶ σώματι

Jesus Christ abolished death' (2 Tim. i. 10 καταργήσαντος μὲν τὸν θάνατον...), and yet 'we see not yet all things put under Him' (Hebr. ii. 8): we wait till the Father hath put all His enemies under His feet. The last enemy that is abolished is death (1 Cor. xv. 26 ἔσχατος ἐχθρὸς καταργεῖται ὁ θάνατος). So we look in patience for the fulfilment of the Divine will in other things, sure of the final issue (1 Cor. i. 28 ἵνα τὰ ὄντα καταργήσῃ. Rom. vi. 6 ἵνα καταργηθῇ τὸ σῶμα τῆς ἁμαρτίας. Hebr. ii. 14 ἵνα διὰ τοῦ θανάτου καταργήσῃ τὸν τὸ κράτος ἔχοντα τοῦ θανάτου, τοῦτ' ἔστι τὸν διάβολον).

ἵνα τοὺς δύο] The object of Christ in abolishing that which divided men was twofold: (1) that He might unite the two bodies, the two 'men' in 'one new man,' and (2) that He might reconcile both to God (c. 16). This object He gained, though the result is not open to our vision. Humanity is in Him 'one new man.' The 'enmity' is slain, though we live among the fruits of its earlier vitality.

The abrupt, unprepared, transition from τὰ ἀμφοτέρα to τοὺς δύο, from the systems to the men who lived under them, and the gathering up of those two bodies of men into two representative men is a most instructive illustration of the thought of a personal unity, which Christ has brought to creation by 'becoming flesh.' This thought fills the apostle. The institutions of society, as he regards them, pass over, as it were, into the men whom they have moulded; and the men into the one man, in whom they find their full corporate expression.

κτίσις ἐν αὐτῷ εἰς ἓ. κ. ἄ.] That He might create the twain in Himself, taking humanity to Him, and form them into one new man. St Paul speaks here of 'the two' and not of 'both,' in order to mark their separateness. By the assumption of human nature He gave ideally new life to all who share it (2 Cor. v. 17). In Him humanity, if we may so speak, gained its personality. This truth, so far as it is realised in the Church, finds expression in the words to the Galatians πάντες ὑμεῖς εἰς ('one man' not ἓν) ἐστὲ ἐν Χριστῷ (Gal. iii. 28).

For κτίσις εἰς see c. 21 αὔξει εἰς, c. 22 συννοικοδομεῖσθε εἰς.

The 'new man' must be 'put on' by those who are ideally included in him: c. iv. 24 note. Every man can find his place in the divine whole.

ποιῶν εἰρήνην] Comp. James iii. 18.

16. καὶ ἀποκαταλλάξῃ...] and reconcile them both in one body to God through the cross, having slain the enmity thereby. 'Through the cross,' using it as an altar (comp. Hebr. xiii. 10 note), Christ offered Himself without spot to God (Hebr. ix. 14) and having taken humanity to Himself 'reconciled' Jews and Gentiles united in one body to God.' By His death he slew the enmity. In Him humanity bore the doom of sin, and the power of sin was abolished. The unity of humanity was gained by the Incarnation, the reconciliation of humanity to God by the Cross.

Jerome notices the error of the Latin Versions, which give in semet ipso reading ἐν αὐτῷ for ἐν αὐτῷ. Comp. Col. ii. 15.

ἀποκατ...ἀποκτείνεις] The two acts are coincident.

For ἀποκαταλλάσσειν see Col. i. 20 ἀποκαταλλάξαι τὰ πάντα εἰς αὐτόν, c. 21 f. ὑμᾶς...ἀποκατήλαξεν ἐν τῷ σώματι τῆς σαρκὸς αὐτοῦ διὰ τοῦ θανάτου. The use of the neuter πάντα will recal the remarkable Western reading in John xii. 32 πάντα ἐλκύσω πρὸς ἑμαυτόν.

For στανρός compare 1 Cor. i 17 f.; Gal. v. 11; vi. 12, 14; Phil. ii. 8; iii. 18; Col. i. 20 ii. 14; Heb. xii. 2

τῷ θεῷ διὰ τοῦ σταυροῦ ἀποκτείνας τὴν ἔχθραν ἐν αὐτῷ· ¹⁷καὶ ἐλθὼν εὔηγγελίσατο εἰρήνην τοῖς μακρὰν καὶ εἰρήνην τοῖς ἐγγύς· ¹⁸ὅτι δι' αὐτοῦ ἔχομεν τὴν προσαγωγήν οἱ ἀμφότεροι ἐν ἐνὶ πνεύματι πρὸς note. The double construction διὰ τοῦ σταυροῦ, ἐν αὐτῷ is significant. In the former the Cross is the instrument which the Lord uses: in the latter it is, so to speak, the vehicle of His activity in which He is present. He as Crucified slew the enmity.

ἀποκτείνας] That which seemed to be defeat was victory. To men's eyes He was slain: in truth He slew.

17. καὶ ἐλθὼν...] When the work of reconciliation was accomplished, and the enmity slain, the fruit of victory was proclaimed to men: and He came and preached the glad tidings of peace to you that were far off and peace to them that were near.

ἐλθὼν] According to His promise (John xvi. 16 ff.; xiv. 18). At His first appearance among the disciples He gave a twofold greeting of 'Peace'; and in the outpouring of the Spirit the Apostles at once recognised the presence of the Lord: Acts iii. 26. The record of the Acts—the Gospel of the Spirit—is the history of the extension of the message of peace to the whole world, beginning at Jerusalem and closing in Rome.

εὔηγγελ. εἰρ.] Cf. c. vi. 15 note.

18. This message of Peace through the work of Christ is universally effective, because it is through Him we both have our access (introduction) in one Spirit to the Father.

There is an impressive correspondence between the clauses which describe the atonement and the issue of the atonement:

(ὡς) ἀποκαταλλάξῃ τοὺς ἀμφοτέρους

ἐν ἐνὶ σώματι

τῷ θεῷ.

ἔχομεν τὴν προσαγωγήν οἱ ἀμφότεροι

ἐν ἐνὶ πνεύματι

πρὸς τὸν πατέρα.

δι' αὐτοῦ] For order compare v. 10 note.

ἔχομεν τὴν προσαγ.] Compare c. i. 7 ἔχομεν τὴν ἀπολύτρωσιν. For τὴν προσαγ. see c. iii. 12; Rom. v. 2 δι' οὗ καὶ τὴν προσαγωγήν ἐσχάκαμεν. The word emphasises the work of the Lord in 'bringing us to God' (1 Pet. iii. 18). Our 'access' is gained only through Him. Compare John xiv. 6; Hebr. iv. 14 ff.

ἐν ἐνὶ πν.] Comp. 1 Cor. xii. 13 ἐν ἐνὶ πνεύματι...ἐβαπτίσθημεν, Phil. i. 27 στήκετε ἐν ἐνὶ πνεύματι. The Spirit is, as it were, the surrounding, sustaining, power, as in the corresponding phrase Hebr. x. 19 ἔχοντες παρρησίαν εἰς τὴν εἰσοδοὺν τῶν ἁγ. ἐν τῷ αἵματι Ἰησοῦ. The difference from διὰ τοῦ πν. (c. iii. 16) is obvious.

We might have been inclined to transpose διὰ and ἐν: 'in Him (as c. iii. 12)...through one Spirit...' But St Paul here is thinking of the work of Christ (v. 17). The encompassing energy of the Spirit makes this effective for us. Compare c. iii. 5 note.

πρὸς τὸν πατέρα] The use of this title emphasises the effect of the atonement, which restores to its true character the relation of God to men. The absolute use of ὁ πατήρ is very rare in the Epistles except in the Epistles of St John. Comp. c. iii. 14; Col. i. 12.

St Paul, without any definite purpose, bases the doctrine of the Holy Trinity upon facts of Christian experience. Comp. 1 Cor. xii. 4 ff. See also 1 Pet. i. 2.

19—22. After the description of the results of Christ's work bringing peace to men as men, St Paul returns to the blessings which it had brought to the Gentiles, and shews in detail how completely it removed the spiritual disadvantages which they had suffered. No longer aliens and strangers they were 'fellow-citizens of the saints and of the household of God.' Without hope before, they were now included in the solid future of the Church resting on Christ Himself. No longer without God, they were made, in fellowship with all believers, a dwelling-place for Him.

The rhythmical structure, which characterises the Epistle is seen with remarkable distinctness in this section:

Ἄρα οὖν οὐκέτι ἐστὲ ξένοι καὶ πάροικοι ἀλλὰ ἐστὲ συμπολίται τῶν ἁγίων καὶ οἰκεῖοι τοῦ θεοῦ,

19. Ἄρα οὖν... τοῦ θεοῦ] So then ye are no more strangers and sojourners but fellow-citizens with the saints and of the household of God. This conclusion follows directly from the equal privilege of all sons in Christ in regard to their heavenly Father.

ξένοι καὶ πάροικοι] Destitute of all privileges in the state or only enjoying a provisional toleration. For ξένοι see v. 12; and for πάροικος 1 Pet. ii. 11 πάροικοι καὶ παρεπίδημοι; Acts vii. 6 πάροικον ἐν γῆ ἄλλοτρία; id. 29 οἰκεῖοι τοῦ θεοῦ] Gal. vi. 10 πρὸς τοὺς οἰκεῖους τῆς πίστεως, 1 Tim. v. 8. The singularly happy translation—'of the household of God'—is due to Tyndale.

20. ἐποικ... Χριστοῦ Ἰησοῦ] The new Society was more than a Commonwealth; it was a fabric in which the several parts were joined together on one divine plan. In this the Gentiles were built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, the head corner-stone being Christ Jesus Himself.

ἐποικ. ἐπὶ τῷ θεμ.] The image is worked out in detail in 1 Cor. iii. 10 ff. Comp. Col. ii. 7; Acts xx. 32.

τῶν ἀποστ. καὶ προφητῶν] The order of the titles seems to shew beyond doubt that the reference is to the apostles and prophets of the New Covenant: those who had divine authority to found and to instruct the Church. Under this aspect they form one body (τῶν ἀπ. καὶ πρ.). Elsewhere they are considered separately. 21. ἐν ᾧ...ἐν κυρίῳ] In whom each several building, fitly framed together groweth unto an holy sanctuary in the Lord. The fabric in which the Ephesians were built was destined to become a sanctuary. It was not merely put together by the workman's skill: it had in it a principle of life. The foundation was unchangeable, but, while this underlay all, there was room for a harmonious development. The structure, like the Jewish Temple, included many 'buildings' (Mk. xiii. 1 f.), but all these were to be equally parts of the Sanctuary in the new Temple. The image appears to mark the consecration of all the ministries of life in the New Order, in correspondence with the equal inclusion in it of all the races of men.

ἐν ᾧ] The fabric has its foundation and its harmonious development in Christ Jesus. In Him too as 'the Lord' it finds its consummation.

πᾶσα οἰκοδομὴ] every building, each several building: council chambers, treasuries, chambers for priests, cloisters, all become part of the sanctuary (ναός not ἱερόν), the parts contributing to the one whole, as the limbs to the one body. And this whole is divine, so that in the end the whole city—the New Jerusalem—becomes a Holy of Holies: Apoc. xxi. 16.

For πᾶσα see c. i. 3 note. In Acts ii. 36 πᾶς οἶκος Ἰσραὴλ is probably to be rendered 'every house of Israel,' each in its peculiar place and with its peculiar character.

συναρμολογουμένη] Compare c. iv. 16.

This harmonious fitting together of the parts and the building up of the whole (c. 22) are present and continuous processes. Contrast c. iii. 17 ἐρριζωμένοι καὶ τεθεμελιωμένοι.

αὖξει] Matt. vi. 28; xiii. 32; Lk. i. 80; ii. 40; Col. ii. 19. Each several building is incorporated in the whole and grows not by itself but with the whole.

The phrases αὖξει εἰς...συναικοδομεῖσθε εἰς...shew that the end is not yet reached.

εἰς ναὸν ἅγ. ἐν κυρίῳ] The presence and influence of the Lord with His sovereign power secures the hallowing of every part. Ἐν Κυρίῳ is to be taken with αὖξει. Comp. cc. iii. 11; vi. 1, 10.

22. In the structure of this Sanctuary, which is not a shrine of the Divine glory only, but a dwelling-place of God, the Ephesians have a place, as incorporated in Christ.

ἐν ᾧ...ἐν πνεύματι] In whom ye also are builded together for a dwelling-place of God in the Spirit.

ἐν ᾧ] taking up the ἐν ᾧ in the former verse (comp. c. i. 13).

καὶ ὑμεῖς συνοικ.] ye also are joined with the earlier people of God. Even now the process of incorporation is going forward.

κατοικητήριον] Compare and contrast Apoc. xviii. 2.

ἐν πνεύματι] Compare c. iii. 5 note. Opposed to ἐν σαρκί, Rom. viii. 9. The indwelling is realised in the highest part of our nature.

III. ¹Τούτου χάριν ἐγὼ Παῦλος ὁ δέσμιος τοῦ

III. THE GRANDEUR OF THE REVELATION MADE TO ST PAUL. PRAYER FOR FURTHER UNDERSTANDING IN THOSE WHO RECEIVE IT (c. iii.).

1. The revelation to St Paul of a universal gospel (iii. 1—13).

2. Prayer that those who receive it may be enabled to apprehend its lessons (iii. 14—19).

Doxology (20, 21).

The Apostle has declared summarily his great Gospel of the unity of Jew and Gentile in the Christian Church, both alike coming to One Father in One Spirit through One Mediator, and he prepares to draw the practical consequences which follow from this divine calling. But he is twice interrupted in his purpose by the thought of the marvellous privileges which are involved in his mission, for himself, and for his readers.

First (v. 2) when he recalls his peculiar charge he shews that his misery and shame, as they might seem to others, were to those who knew the cause for which he suffered a ground of highest praise for the light which they brought to the counsel of GOD (iii. 1—13).

And then again when (v. 14) he resumes the broken sentence, it is for the loftiest prayer and thanksgiving, before he can at last (c. iv. 1) enter on direct instruction (iii. 14—21).

iii. ¹For this cause I Paul, the prisoner of Christ Jesus (or of the Christ, even Jesus) on behalf of you, the Gentiles, ²if at least ye heard of the dispensation (administration) of the grace of God which was given me to you-ward: ³how that by revelation was made known unto me the mystery—as I wrote afore in a few words, ⁴whereby ye can, as ye read, perceive my understanding in the mystery of the Christ, ⁵which in other generations was not made known unto the sons of men, as now it was revealed unto His holy apostles and prophets in the Spirit—⁶to wit, that the Gentiles are fellow-heirs with Israel and fellow-members of the one body and fellow-partakers of the promise in Christ Jesus through the Gospel, ⁷whereof I became a minister, according to the gift of the grace of God that was given to me, according to the working of His power—⁸to me who am less than the least of all saints was this grace given—⁹ere I preach to the Gentiles the unsearchable riches of Christ; ¹⁰and to bring to light what is the dispensation of the mystery which from all ages hath been hid in God Who created all things, ¹⁰hid, I say, to the intent that now to the principalities and the powers in the heavenly order may be made known through the Church the manifold wisdom of God, ¹¹according to an eternal purpose (a purpose of the ages) which He accomplished in the Christ, even Jesus our Lord: ¹²in Whom we have freedom of address and access (to God) in confidence through our faith in Him. ¹³Wherefore I beg you not to faint at my tribulations for you, seeing they are your glory.

1. τούτου χάριν] 'Considering that so great a blessing has been bestowed on you.' As contrasted with διό (c. 13; cc. ii. 11; iv. 8, 25; v. 14) this phrase seems to suggest an idea of personal feeling and obligation. The reference is generally to that which is the ground (because this is so) and not the object (for the sake of obtaining this): c. 14; Tit. i. 5, 11; Lk. vii. 47.

The sentence, which is broken, is resumed c. 14 τούτου χάριν κάμπτω...

ἐγὼ Παῦλος...] The abrupt introduction of the name emphasises the strength of personal feeling. The truth which has been announced is no abstract speculation, but one which has been proved in life by the man who declares it. The name calls up all his history. It is as if the Apostle said: I the Pharisee of old time, I whom you know, of whose labours you have heard, I to whom this great truth has been revealed and who have suffered for it, I to whom you owe your knowledge of the Faith, I who can no longer serve you by my presence pray for you.

χριστοῦ Ἰησοῦ ὑπὲρ ὑμῶν τῶν ἐθνῶν, — ²εἰ γὰρ ἠκούσατε

Comp. 1 Thess. ii. 18; Gal. v. 2; 2 Cor. x. 1; Col. i. 23 (v. Lightfoot's note); Philm. 19. Cf. 2 Thess. iii. 17; 1 Cor. xvi. 21; Col. iv. 18.

ὁ δέσμιος τοῦ Χ. Ἰ.] St Paul was not simply the 'bond-servant' of Christ, he was His prisoner, the one to whom this privilege of suffering was specially given by his Lord (contrast Philm. 1 δέσμιος Χ. Ἰ.). He was a prisoner, but not for crime or through man's design: he was the Lord's prisoner, prisoner by His will and at the same time prisoner for His work; Christ's cause kept him in bonds (comp. Philm. 13 ἐν τοῖς δεσμοῖς τοῦ εὐαγγελίου).

Compare Philm. 9 δέσμιος Χ. Ἰ.; 2 Tim. i. 8 τὸν δεσμὸν αὐτοῦ [τοῦ κυρίου ἡμῶν]. These examples seem to shew that the words in c. iv. 1 ὁ δέσμιος ἐν κυρίῳ are to be taken together. Contrast Acts xxiii. 18 ὁ δέσμιος Π.

The combination ὁ χριστὸς Ἰησοῦς without addition does not (as far as I have observed) occur again in St Paul. Ὁ χριστὸς is common, and ὁ Ἰησοῦς occurs 1 Thess. iv. 14; 2 Cor. iv. 10 f.; Eph. iv. 21. In Rom. xvi. 25 we read τὸ κήρυγμα Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ. The construction of Col. ii. 6 ὡς παρελάβετε τὸν χριστὸν Ἰησοῦν τὸν κύριον appears to be, 'received the Christ, even Jesus the Lord' (see Lightfoot ad loc.). It is therefore probable that the construction here also is 'the prisoner of the Christ—the hope of Israel—even Jesus, the Son of man, the Saviour of the world.' This at least is the thought of the names. Comp. c. 11 note; c. iv. 20 f.

ὑπὲρ ὑμῶν τ. ἐθνῶν] 'I the prisoner' for 'you the Gentiles.' Both are representative. Comp. c. ii. 11: contrast Gal. ii. 15; Rom. xi. 13.

2—13. The thought of his helpless position leads St Paul to unfold its true meaning. His zeal to bring the Gospel to the Gentiles had brought him into bonds. These very bonds, therefore, which might at first sight seem to be a cause of discouragement, really witnessed to the greatness of the work which he had done (c. 13).

'Yes,' he says, 'for your sakes, as indeed ye know, if—and it cannot be otherwise—ye heard, when the message of the Gospel came to you, what was my special commission, based on the revelation made to the apostles and prophets of Christ, that the Gentiles are fellow-heirs with Jews of the Divine promise of redemption, a truth which it was specially given to me to proclaim, a truth which now at last discloses to the hosts of heaven through the Church God's counsel of wisdom and love. Thus the sufferings which are due to the faithful fulfilment of my office are in fact your glory. My chains are the signs of my victory.'

Each part of the statement is developed under the influence of the Apostle's gratitude for the charge which he had received. His Gospel—that 'the nations' share equally with 'the people' in all Divine blessings,—was not gained by the experience of earlier generations, but given in due time by special revelation to appointed ministers. And he was enabled so to declare it as to set in full light before men the eternal counsel of God, that at last through the Church the powers of heaven might recognise God's wisdom seen in the Incarnation of the Son in Whom believers can draw near to His presence.

3 ὅτι om B

In structure the passage may be compared with i. 3—14.

The key words 'mystery,' 'minister [of the Gospel],' 'the wisdom of God,' suggest in succession fresh parentheses which are in essence overflowings of adoring thankfulness.

2. εἴ γε...] if at least ye heard, and this is assumed: c. iv. 21; Gal. iii. 4; Col. i. 23 (2 Cor. v. 3). In such language I can see nothing inconsistent with St Paul having been the teacher of those to whom he is writing.

ἠκούσατε] c. iv. 21; Gal. i. 13 f.: ye heard at the crisis when I declared to you the Divine message and you accepted it.

τὴν οἰκ. τ. χ.] St Paul does not say simply 'of the grace of God which was given to me,' but 'of the noble responsibility which was laid upon me of administering the grace which was given to me in a new and unexpected way.' It was exactly this characteristic of his preaching to which he wishes to call attention.

τὴν οἰκονομίαν] V. dispositionem, V.L. dispositionem (as c. 9; c. i. 10). The image is natural and frequent. St Paul describes himself as 'entrusted with a stewardship' (1 Cor. ix. 17), which he was bound to fulfil. Apostles were 'ministers of Christ and stewards of God's mysteries (revealed truths),' which it was their duty to dispense faithfully (1 Cor. iv. 1 f.). Comp. Tit. i. 7. This stewardship involved a wise and just dealing with the varied wealth of the Divine treasury (Matt. xiii. 52). All believers share in it, having severally gifts which they must minister to the body (εἰς αὐτούς) as 'good—generous (καλοί)—stewards of the manifold grace of God' (1 Pet. iv. 10).

Comp. c. i. 10 (note); Col. i. 25; 1 Tim. i. 4.

τῆς χ. τ. θ.] The ministry itself with all its glorious and awful issues was a favour—a grace—of God. The word χάρις is characteristically used of apostleship: c. 7, 8; 1 Cor. iii. 10; Gal. ii. 7 ff.; Rom. i. 5; xii. 3; xv. 15.

It is perhaps worthy of notice that χάρισμα (1, 2 Cor.; Rom.; 1, 2 Tim.; 1 Pet.) is not found in the Epistle.

εἰς ὑμᾶς] to bring unto you, to reach unto you. Comp. c. i. 19; Rom. xv. 26.

3. ὅτι...] how that by revelation was made known unto me the mystery... This was the ground of St Paul's mission, that to him was communicated the central truth of the universality of the Gospel.

The words καθὼς προέγραφα... v. 5 ἐν πνεύματι are parenthetic, unfolding St Paul's peculiar endowments as compared with men of old time.

κατὰ ἀποκάλυψιν] not only in direct communications at the crises of his life (Acts ix. 4 ff.; xxii. 7 ff., 18 ff.; xxvi. 17 ff.; Gal. i. 12; ii. 2) but through widening experience laid in the light of the Gospel (c. 4 τὴν σύνεσίν μου ἐν τ. μυστ. τοῦ χρ.).

There is a difference between κατὰ ἀποκάλυψιν (Rom. xvi. 25; Gal. ii. 2) and δι' ἀποκαλύψεως (Gal. i. 12). The former describes the general mode of communication: the latter the specific fact.

τὸ μυστήριον] Comp. c. i. 9 note. Truths which are the characteristic possessions of Christians are 'mysteries.' Among these the universality of the Gospel—c. 6 εἶναι τὰ ἔθνη... ἐν Χριστῷ—is preeminently 'the mystery.' The single occasion on which the word is used in the Gospels emphasises this thought (Matt. xiii. 11; Mk. iv. 11; Lk. viii. 10) The parable of the Sower implies that the Word is for all. This suggestion naturμυστήριον, καθὼς προέγραψα ἐν ὀλίγῳ, ⁴πρὸς ὃ δὴ δύνασθε ἀναγινώσκοντες νοῆσαι τὴν σύνεσίν μου ἐν τῷ μυστηρίῳ τοῦ χριστοῦ, ⁵ὃ ἐτέραις γενεαῖς οὐκ ἐγνωρίσθη τοῖς υἱοῖς τῶν ἀνθρώπων ὡς νῦν ἀπεκαλύφθη τοῖς ἀγίοις ally caused that perplexity to the disciples which appears strange to us.

In addition to those parallel texts the word is found in the N.T. only in St Paul and in the Apocalypse. It is used both (1) in the full comprehensive meaning of the Christian revelation, and (2) in regard to special details in it. All the passages deserve to be studied: (1) 1 Cor. ii. 7; Rom. xvi. 25; Eph. i. 9; iii. 4, 9; vi. 19; Col. i. 26 f.; ii. 2; iv. 3; 1 Tim. iii. 9, 16; Apoc. x. 7; (2) 2 Thess. ii. 7; 1 Cor. iv. 1; xiii. 2; xiv. 2; xv. 51; Rom. xi. 25; Eph. v. 32; Apoc. i. 20; xvii. 5, 7.

προέγραψα] in an earlier part of the Epistle: c. ii. 10 ff.

ἐν ὀλίγῳ] V. in brevis, V.L. in modico: briefly, in a few words. Comp. Acts xxvi. 28.

4. πρὸς ὃ...] whereby, looking to which summary statement of the truth, ye can, as ye read, perceive my understanding... The Apostle is careful to shew that his teaching is not the repetition of a form of words once given to him and to be simply received by his disciples. It had cost him thought and it claimed thought. His readers could see for themselves how it was contained in the right apprehension of the historic Gospel; and he assumes that they will use their power.

ἀναγινώσκοντες] The word implies that the letter was circulated and copied and studied by individual Christians. Comp. Apoc. i. 3; Matt. xxiv. 15 || Mk. xiii. 14; Acts viii. 28. The variant in Gal. iv. 21 (ἀναγνώσκειτε) is interesting.

τὴν σύν. μ. ἐν τῷ μυστ.] St Paul had, in the common phrase, entered into the revelation of Christ. His natural faculties had found scope in shaping the message which he delivered

For νοεῖν comp. Matt. xxiv. 15 || Mk. xiii. 14; 1 Tim. i. 7 &c.; and for σύνεσις comp. Lk. ii. 47; Col. i. 9; ii. 2. The two words occur together 2 Tim. ii. 7. For the omission of the article before ἐν τῷ μ. see Winer iii. 20, 26.

τῷ μυστ. τοῦ χρ.] Col. iv. 3 λαλῆσαι τὸ μυστήριον τοῦ χριστοῦ.

5. The truth which was made known to St Paul by revelation was not made known in other generations to the sons of men as now in our own time it was revealed to Christ's holy apostles and prophets in the Spirit. The ὡς suggests that some partial knowledge was conveyed in earlier times to those who sought for it through 'the light that lighteth every man.' The prophets looked for the incorporation of 'the nations' in Israel, but not for their equality with 'the people' in the new Church, though this was in fact included in the promise to Abraham: John viii. 56; Gal. iii. 8.

ἐτέραις γενεαῖς] dative of time as in Lk. viii. 29 (πολλοῖς χρόνοις). The use of ἐτέραις suggests the thought of two series of generations, one before and one after the Incarnation.

τοῖς υἱοῖς τ. ἀ.] The phrase occurs again Mk. iii. 28, and in the LXX. As contrasted with τοῖς ἀγ. ἀποστ. αὐ. καὶ πρ. it describes those who represented the natural development of the race.

νῦν] now, in our age. Even to the Twelve the universality of the Gospel was a revelation (Acts x. 47), and St Paul looks back to the crisis when it was acknowledged (ἀπεκαλύφθη). There were indeed abundant traces in the teaching of Christ of this ἀποστόλοις αὐτοῦ καὶ προφήταις ἐν πνεύματι, εἶναι τὰ ἔθνη συνκληρονόμα καὶ σύνσωμα καὶ συνμέτοχα τῆς truth—it lies in the fundamental parable of the Sower, which naturally perplexed the hearers—but like His teaching on His own Death and Resurrection they were unintelligible at the time. Through the experience which is recorded in the early chapters of the Acts their meaning was made plain by the Spirit. Compare Rom. xvi. 25 ff.; 1 Pet. i. 10 ff.

τοῖς ἀγ. ἀποστ. αὐ. καὶ προφ.] to those whom He charged with an authoritative office and endowed with spiritual insight. Comp. c. ii. 20 note. Ἀγίοις does not express personal character, but consecration. Comp. Lk. i. 70; Acts iii. 21. The αὐτοῦ naturally goes back to Χριστοῦ. In Col. i. 26 the thought is differently expressed.

ἐν πνεύματι] The phrase appears to correspond to ἐν Χριστῷ. It is of rare occurrence: Apoc. i. 10 ἐγενόμην ἐν πν.; iv. 2; xvii. 3 || xxi. 10 ἀπήνεγκε ἐν πν.; Matt. xxii. 43 ἐν πν...καλεῖ (|| Mk. xii. 36 ἐν τῷ πν. τ. ἀγ.); Jo. iv. 23 ἐν πν. κ. ἀλ.; Rom. viii. 9 ἐστέ...ἐν πν.; Eph. v. 18 πληροῦσθε ἐν πν.; vi. 18 προσευχόμενοι ἐν πν. (|| Jude 20 ἐν πν. ἀγ.); Col. i. 8 δηλώσας τὴν ἀγάπην ἐν πν.; 1 Tim. iii. 16 ἐδικαιώθη ἐν πν. Ἐν τῷ πνεύματι occurs also: Lk. ii. 27 ἦλθεν ἐν τ. πν.; iv. 1 ἤγετο ἐν τῷ πν.; and ἐν πν. ἀγίῳ: Rom. ix. 1 συμμαρτυρούσης... ἐν πν. ἀ.; xiv. 17 χαρὰ ἐν πν. ἀ.; xv. 16 ἡγιασμένη ἐν πν. ἀ.; 1 Cor. xii. 3 εἰπεῖν... ἐν πν. ἀ.; 1 Pet. i. 12 εὐαγγελισαμένων... ἐν πν. ἀ. Compare βαπτίζειν ἐν πν. ἀγ. Matt. iii. 11 and parallels. The general idea of the phrase is that it presents the concentration of man's powers in the highest part of his nature by which he holds fellowship with God, so that, when this fellowship is realised, he is himself in the Holy Spirit and the Holy Spirit is in him.

6. This then is the revelation that the Gentiles are (not shall be) fellow-heirs with the natural Israel of the great hopes of the spiritual Israel, and fellow-members with them of the one Divine body, and fellow-partakers in the promise which was fulfilled in the mission of the Holy Ghost (Acts x. 45), in virtue of their union in Christ Jesus through the Gospel.

The threefold fellowship of the nations with the people of God is established by their incorporation in Christ, which is wrought through the Gospel. In the announcement that the Word became flesh all partial and transitory privileges are lost in one supreme and universal blessing. Jerome (ad loc.) says truly 'hereditas nostra Deus' and 'ubi una participatio est, universa communia sunt.' On the translation he remarks: Scio appositionem conjunctionis ejus per quam dicitur cohaereditas, et concorporales et comparticipes indecoram facere in Latino sermone sententiam. Sed quia ita habetur in Graeco, et singuli sermones, syllabae, apices, puncta, in Divinis Scripturis plena sunt sensibus, propterea magis volumus in compositione structuraque verborum quam intelligentia periclitari.

εἶναι] The position of the verb gives singular emphasis to the statement: that in spite of all difficulties and all opposition 'the Gentiles are....' Compare Hebr. xi. 1 ἐστὶ note.

συνκληρονόμα] Rom. viii. 17 συγκλ. Χριστοῦ. Hebr. xi. 9 συγκλ. τῆς ἐπαγγελίας. 1 Pet. iii. 7 συγκλ. χάριτος ζωῆς.

σύνσωμα] Not elsewhere in the N.T. or in the LXX. Nor is the word found in classical writers.

συνμέτοχα] Cf. c. v. 7 note.

τῆς ἐπαγγελίας] Acts ii. 33. The Gentiles were admitted to the Church because they had been made partakers of the gift of the Holy Ghost: Acts x. 47. Comp. c. i. 13. This specific reference is at once more forcible and, under the circumstances, more natural than the general reference to the promised salvation which is included in συγκληρονόμα. There is an expressive sequence in three elements of the full endowment of the Gentiles as coequal with the Jews. They had a right to all for which Israel looked. They belonged to the same Divine society. They enjoyed the gift by which the new society was distinguished from the old. And when regarded from the point of sight of the Apostolic age, the gift of the Holy Spirit, 'the promise of the Father' (Lk. xxiv. 49; Acts i. 4; ii. 33; 38 f.), is preeminently 'the promise,' to which also συμμέτοχα perfectly corresponds.

διὰ τοῦ εὐαγγ.] Comp. 1 Cor. iv. 15.

7. St Paul's service as a minister of the Gospel was determined by two conditions: the original gift of the grace of God that was given to him, and the continuous working of God's power in him. The two clauses κατὰ τὴν δωρεάν..., κατὰ τὴν ἐνέργειαν... are parallel (comp. c. ii. 2) and the latter clause is not to be connected with δοθείσης. The whole phrase τῆς χαρ. τ. θ. τῆς δοθ. μ. is repeated from c. 2 and is complete in itself. With τοῦ εὐαγγ. διάκ. compare 2 Cor. iii. 6 καυῆς διαθ. δ. For κατὰ τὴν ἐνέργ. compare c. i. 19; Col. i. 29.

In the N.T. ἐνέργεια and ἐνεργεῖν are characteristically used of moral and spiritual working whether Divine (e.g. Col. i. 29; ii. 12; Phil. iii. 21) or Satanic (2 Thess. ii. 9, 11).

For δωρεά see c. iv. 7 note.

8. The construction of the first clause ὁμοί...αὕτη is doubtful. It may be taken to begin a new sentence, so that εὐαγγελ. will be the explanation of ἡ χάρις αὕτη, or it may be a parenthetical reflection of the Apostle. On the whole the second arrangement seems to be most consonant with St Paul's style. In this case εὐαγγελ. will be connected with διάκονος.

τῷ ἐλαχιστοτέρῳ] Latt. minimo (in-jimo, novissimo). For the form of the word see Winer ii. 11, 2 b. For the thought compare 1 Cor. xv. 9; 1 Tim. i. 15. There is nothing in this confession at variance with the claims which St Paul asserts for that which God had given him: 2 Cor. xi. 5.

εὐαγγελίσασθαι...] The scope of the Apostle's ministry was twofold: (1) to proclaim the Gospel to the Gentiles, and (2) to shew to (all) men its fulness to solve the manifold problems of life (c. 9).

τὸ ἀνεξιχν. πλ. τοῦ χ.] Vulg. al. in-vestigabiles divitias Christi. (Compare Prov. v. 6; Rom. xi. 33 f.) The fulfilment of his work disclosed to St Paul, as we can see from his Epistles, ever-widening views of the scope and power of the Gospel. His own experience assured him that no one could exhaust its depths. And all lies in the Person and work of Christ (Col. i. 27; ii. 2 τοῦ μυστηρίου τοῦ θεοῦ, Χριστοῦ).

9. καὶ φωτίσαι...] to bring to light what is... In addition to his special office of evangelising the Gentiles, and indeed through the accomplishment of it, St Paul was called to shew how the truth made known to him met the various needs of men. The universality of the Gospel—the 'mystery' opened to him—rested upon the fact of the Incarnation. This, as a wise steward, he shewed to furnish a harmony of God's dealings with men, bringing it into true relation with the course of human life. 'The dispensation of the mystery' is, in other words, the apostolic application of the Gospel to the facts of experience.

Elsewhere in the N. T. φωτίζειν has a direct object.

τοῦ ἀποκεκρυμμένου...ἵνα γνωρ.] The truth had been hidden in order that it might be made known at the right moment, in 'the fulness of time,' c. i. 10. Comp. Rom. xvi. 25 f. See also Mk. iv. 22 (ἴνα).

ἀπὸ τῶν αἰ.] from the beginning of time. Col. i. 26. Comp. Lk. i. 70; Acts iii. 21; xv. 18 ἀπ' αἰῶνος. John ix. 32 ἐκ τοῦ αἰῶνος. Contrast πρὸ τῶν αἰώνων (1 Cor. ii. 7).

ἐν τῷ θεῷ] God, as the Creator of all things, includes in the one creative thought all the issues of finite things. Compare Apoc. iv. 11 διὰ τὸ θέλημα σου ἦσαν καὶ ἐκτίσθησαν, John i. 3 f. ὁ γέγονεν ἐν αὐτῷ ζωὴ ἦν. See also Col. iii. 3.

10. The personal ministration of the Apostle had a wider scope than the gaining individual converts. It subserved to the display of God's wisdom before the intelligences of the heavenly order. This was the work of the Church gathered by apostolic teachings. In various ways the results of age-long discipline of 'the people' and of 'the nations' were made contributory to the universal society, and thus the Divine purpose was seen to be justified by its fruits. There can be no doubt that St Paul was conscious of the debt which he owed to the spectacle of the organisation of the Roman Empire in his later conception of the Catholic Church. And if he could not clearly anticipate how the tribute of other peoples would enrich Christendom, yet he recognises the principle of national service to the City of God (Apoc. xxi. 24). He foresaw that, as in the past, so in the future the history of the several families of mankind would vindicate πολυμερῶς καὶ πολυτρόπως God's education of the world for Himself.

νῦν] in the fulness of time: c. i. 10; Gal. iv. 4.

ταῖς ἀρχ. καὶ τ. ἐξ.] The effect of the Gospel reaches through all being (Eph. i. 10; Col. i. 20), and we are allowed to see—though we are necessarily unable to give distinctness to the vision—how other rational creatures follow the course of its fulfilment. Compare 1 Pet. i. 12; Lk. xv. 7, 10; Apoc. v. 13.

The allusions to different classes in the heavenly hierarchy—'Thrones, dominations, virtues, principdoms, powers'—give a vivid conception of fulness and ordered intercourse in the unseen life which we have no faculties to realise; but such indications, however indefinite, correct our natural tendency to narrow the range of rational existence. In this sense the Gospel anticipates and deals with the thoughts suggested by our present knowledge of the immensity of the universe. Comp. c. i. 21; Col. i. 16 (with Lightfoot's note).

διὰ τῆς ἐκκλησ.] In the Church humanity advances towards its true unity, and at the same time the whole creation in man, who is its head. Comp. Rom. viii. 18 ff.; James i. 18.

ἡ πολυποίκι. σοφ.] Latt. multiformis sapientia. This wisdom is seen in the adaptation of the manifold capacities of man and the complicated vicissitudes of human life to minister to the one end to which 'all creation moves.'

11 f. This marvellous harmony of all the parts of creation and life, as tending to one end, now at last made manifest by the coming of the Son of God, answered to an eternal purpose which was thus fulfilled. The same Lord Who is the stay of our faith and hope is also the crown of the whole development of the world.

11. κατὰ πρόθ. τ. αἰ.] V. secundum praefinitionem (V. L. propositum) saeculorum, according to an eternal purpose, a purpose to the accomplishment of which each age contributed in turn, and which bound all the ages together as ministrant to the one supreme issue. If this purpose has only lately been disclosed, it was eternally designed. Through all the changes of time God prepared the way to the fulfilment of His counsel unceasingly, and now at length the steps towards it can be seen.

For πρόθεσις see c. i. 11; Rom. viii. 28; ix. 11; 2 Tim. i. 9.

ἣν ἐποίησεν ἐν...] which He accomplished, brought to fulfilment, in... (not formed or purposed). Comp. Apoc. xvii. 17. For ποιεῖν see Winer, iii. 38, 5.

The rendering 'which he purposed' gives finally the same general meaning, but it is less forcible, less suitable to the context, and it would have naturally required 'in the Christ' without the Lord's historic name.

ἐν τῷ χ. Ἰ. τῷ κ. ἡ.] in the Christ, the hope of Israel, even Jesus, the Son of man, our Lord. Compare c. i. (note). In the two parts of this title we have a summary of the first characteristic confessions of Jew and Gentile: 'Jesus is the Christ' (Acts v. 42; xvii. 3; comp. ix. 34), and 'Jesus is the Lord' (1 Cor. xii. 3; Rom. x. 9).

12. ἐν ᾧ...] in Whom, in vital fellowship with Him, we have freedom of address and freedom of access to God. The right of address and the right of access are coupled together (τὴν παρρ. καὶ προσ., not τὴν παρρ. καὶ τὴν προσ.) as parts of the right of personal communion with God.

For παρρησία see Hebr. iii. 6; iv. 16; x. 19; 1 John iii. 21; v. 14. For προσαγωγή see c. ii. 18 (note).

ἐν πεποιθ.] The privilege of communion is realised in personal confidence through our faith in Christ. For πεποιθησις see 2 Cor. iii. 4.

τῆς πίστε. αὐτοῦ] our faith in Him. Comp. Mk. xi. 22; Gal. ii. 16, 20; iii. 22; Rom. iii. 22; Phil. i. 27; iii. 9; James ii. 1; Apoc. xiv. 12.

13. St Paul goes back to the thought of his imprisonment (c. i. ὁ δέσμος) and points out that his readers should not be disheartened at the afflictions which his teaching had brought to him (comp. c. vi. 22). These were as nothing in comparison to the privilege of preaching the Gospel, so that they were their 'glory,' inasmuch as they shewed the grandeur of the truth which they had received.

αἰτοῦμαι] I beg you. The rendering 'I pray that I may not lose heart' appears to be equally inconsistent with the whole tenor of the passage and with the language.

ἦτις] seeing they are. For the attraction compare c. vi. 17; 1 Cor. iii. 17; 1 Tim. iii. 15.

14—19. St Paul resumes his broken sentence (c. 1), but again only to contemplate in prayer the view of God's providence opened by the coming of Christ. Just as (in cc. 2—13) he had dwelt on the grandeur of his own mission, he now is filled with the thought of the opportunities offered to his readers. Their own experience would, if rightly interpreted, throw fresh light on the Divine wisdom; and therefore he prays that they, through the presence of Christ within them, might, with fuller knowledge of the sphere and power of Christ's love, be enabled to discharge their office for the whole body.

¹⁴ For this cause I bow my knees unto the Father, ¹⁵ from Whom every family in heaven and on earth derives its name, ¹⁶ that He may grant you, according to the riches of His glory, that ye may be strengthened with power through His Spirit in the inward man: ¹⁷ that Christ may dwell in your hearts through faith; to the end that having been rooted and grounded in love ¹⁸ ye may be strong enough to apprehend with all the saints what is the breadth and length and height and depth, ¹⁹ and to know the love of Christ which passeth knowledge, that ye may be filled unto all the fulness of God.

14 f. τούτου χάριν] as in c. 1 having regard to the new view of life laid open by the universal Gospel.

κάμπτω τὰ γ.] The phrase is found in LXX. 1 Chron. xxix. 20, and in Phil. ii. 10; Rom. xi. 4 (a quotation from 1 K. xix. 18 not LXX.); xiv. 11 (from Is. xlv. 23 LXX.). More commonly we find θείναι τὰ γ. (Lk. xxii. 41; Acts vii. 60, &c.). Clement (i. 57) speaks of τὰ γόνατα τῆς καρδίας. On the attitude in prayer see D.C.A. s.v. Genuflexion.

πρὸς τὸν πατέρα] The absolute title expresses an important truth. In prac-Christian times God had revealed Himself as Father to one race: now it is made known that all the races of men are bound to Him in Christ by a like connexion; and far more than this (c. 15). He Who is the Father of men is also the source of fellowship and unity in all the orders of finite being. The social connexions of earth and heaven derive their strength from Him; and represent under limited conditions the power of His Fatherhood.

The preposition πρὸς implies 'coming before Him,' 'addressing Him in prayer,' a fuller thought than the simple dative (Rom. xi. 4).

15. ἐξ οὗ ... ὀνομάζεται] Every 'family,' every society which is held together by the tie of a common head and author of its being, derives that which gives it a right to the title from the one Father. From Him comes the spirit by which the members have fellowship one with another and are all brought together into a supreme unity.

πᾶσα πατριὰ] Latt. omnis paternitas, every family, every group of beings united by a common descent or origin. Comp. Lk. ii. 4; Acts iii. 25; Gen. xii. 3, xxviii. 14.

Familia was naturalised by Rabbinic writers.

ἐν οὐρ. καὶ ἐπὶ γ.] It is characteristic of St Paul to recognise the variety and unity of the manifold life in earth and heaven. Origen endeavoured to give precision to the thought by supposing that there were races in heaven corresponding to the races on earth.

The phrase ἐν οὐρανοῖς καὶ ἐπὶ γῆς is apparently unique and to be noticed (comp. c. i. 10; Col. i. 16, 20; 2 Pet. iii. 13). Generally οὐρανός and γῆ are combined.

ὀνομάζεται] derives its name, and further, since the name is designed to express the essence of that to which it belongs, 'derives that which truly makes it what it is.'

16—19. The prayer corresponds with that in c. i. 16 ff. In both cases the Apostle enforces the need of spiritual illumination for the full understanding of the Gospel. In the former prayer he begins with the thought of personal enlightenment which leads to a living sense of the greatness of the Divine power: in this he begins with the thought of personal strengthening which issues in higher knowledge and completer work.

16. ἴνα...] depending on the idea of prayer involved in κάμπω τὰ γ. ε. 15. See Mk. xiii. 18; xiv. 35; 1 Cor. xiv. 13, &c.

κατὰ τὸ πλ. τ. δ.] The glory of God is the sum of His perfections as manifested to us. This, in its inexhaustible wealth, is the only limit of our prayers. Comp. Rom. ix. 23.

δυν. κρατ...εἰς τ. ἔ. ἄνθρ.] that ye may be strengthened (V. corroborari, V.L. confortari) with power answering to your need through His Spirit, so that each access of vigour shall penetrate to and find scope in the inward man.

'The inward man' is the true self, which answers to the Divine pattern; and is contrasted with 'the outer man' (2 Cor. iv. 16), the material frame, through which for a time the 'self' finds expression in terms of earth. Comp. 2 Cor. iv. 16 ὁ ἔσω ἡμῶν ἄνθρωπος; Rom. vii. 22. This is according to God's will our informing personality, moulding, if it fulfils its part, all that comes within its influence. This idea is suggested by the variant ὁ ἔσωθεν ἄνθρωπος in 2 Cor. l. c.

Thus the prayer is that Divine influence may reach to the master spring of the whole life and not simply contribute to the development of any one part of it.

17. The object of the prayer is expressed in another and a final form, even the continual indwelling of Christ according to His promise (John xiv. 23) which is the most perfect strengthening. Κατοικῆσαι is parallel with κραταιωθῆναι, and in both cases the aorist marks the decisive act by which the blessing is conveyed.

For κατοικεῖν the permanent dwelling, as opposed to παροικεῖν the temporary sojourning (Lk. xxiv. 18; Hebr. xi. 9), see Col. i. 19; ii. 9; and compare κατοικητήριον c. ii. 22; Apoc. xviii. 2.

ἐν ταῖς καρδίαις] the seat of character.

struction of these words is most difficult. It is possible to connect ἐν ἀγάπῃ alone or the whole clause with the preceding sentence. In favour of connecting ἐν ἀγ. with what precedes the parallels of i. 4, iv. 2 may be urged; but the usage in the Epistle is not uniform (vi. 7 μετ' ἐν. δουλ.), and the words give a peculiar force to ἐρριζ. καὶ τεθεμ. which seem to require some such definition. On the other hand the examples which are quoted to justify the connexion of the whole clause with the foregoing sentence as an irregular nominative are not really adequate. In Col. ii. 2 συμβιβασθέντες is equivalent to αἱ καρδία, and in other cases c. iv. 2; Col. iii. 16, &c., the transition is part of a complete change of construction. It seems best therefore to connect the clause with what follows: that having been rooted and grounded in love—this would be the characteristic fruit of Christ's presence—ye may be strong enough...to know the love of Christ... The peculiar emphasis on ἐν ἀγάπῃ explains the irregular position of ἵνα as in similar cases, Acts xix. 4; 2 Cor. ii. 4, &c. A like reason explains the order in Lk. xxiv. 48 f. ἀρξάμενοι ἀπὸ Ἱερουσ. ὑμεῖς μαρτ. τ.; and in c. i. 18 πεφωτ. τ. ὄφθ. τ. κ. εἰς τὸ εἰδέναι and c. vi. 18 διὰ πάσης προσευχῆς καὶ δεήσεως προσευχόμενοι.

The words ἐρριζ. καὶ τεθ. combine without confusing the images of the vine and the temple, the ideas of life and stability (comp. 1 Cor. iii. 9). Love, which Christ's presence brings (John xvii. 26), is the source of growth and the stay of endurance. The perfects, which express the abiding result of Christ's dwelling, do not exclude the idea of progress which is marked in the parallel phrase in Col. ii. 7 ἐρριζωμένοι καὶ ἐποικοδομούμενοι. Ἐρριζωμένοι (Latt. radicati) occurs in the N. T. only in these two passages. For τεθεμελιωμένοι see Col. i. 23.

18. ἐξισχύσητε] may be fully strong enough. Ἴσχύς describes strength absolutely, δύναμις power relatively, κράτος might as overpowering. καταλαβέσθαι] to apprehend. See Acts iv. 13; x. 34; xxv. 25.

σὺν πᾶσιν τοῖς ἀγ.] Such knowledge is not an individual privilege, but a common endowment. The co-operation of all is required for the attainment of the full conception. Saintship—consecration—is the condition of spiritual knowledge.

τί τὸ πλ. καὶ μῆκ...καὶ βάθος] The form of the clause shews that the four words express one thought, the whole range of the sphere in which the Divine wisdom and love find exercise. Though space has only three dimensions, we naturally in common language distinguish height and depth as well as length and breadth. The words are not to be interpreted separately: this would require τί τὸ πλάτος, τί τὸ μῆκος, &c.

19. γινῶναι τε...] First we come to apprehend the dimensions (so to speak) of the sphere in which the Divine counsel finds its fulfilment and then we come to know the love which occupies it.

τὴν ἀγ. τ. χ.] the love of Christ simply as His, answering to His very nature, without any distinct definition of the object to which it is directed, including both His love for the Church and for the believer (comp. John xv. 9 f.).

γῶναι...γνώσεως] Latt. scire (cognoscere) supereminentem scientiae caritatem. A natural paradox: to know that which never can be known. The thought in Phil. iv. 7 ἡ εἰρήνη τ. θ. ἡ ὑπερέχουσα πάντα νοῦν is different.

ἵνα πληρ...τοῦ θεοῦ] Latt. ut impleamini in omnem plenitudinem Dei: that ye may severally be filled with the gifts of God's grace, and so be made contributory unto all the fulness of God. 'The fulness of God' is that perfect consummation of finite being which answers to the Divine idea. This is reached representatively when every member of Christ brings his full share to the perfecting of that glorious humanity which is the Body of Christ; and finally when the corresponding work of the Church for creation is accomplished (James i. 18). Comp. c. i. 23 note.

The reading of B ἵνα πληρωθῆ π. τ. πλ. τ. θ. gives substantially the same sense more simply and directly: 'that through your individual completeness the whole fulness of God may be realised.'

20, 21. The contemplation of the glorious fulness of Divine blessing in the Gospel, both in relation to the mission of the Apostle and in relation to the opportunities of believers, naturally closes with a Doxology of singular simplicity and depth, in which God's work in man is regarded as issuing in His glory 'in the Church and in Christ Jesus' to the last development of life in time.

Similar Doxologies are found: Gal.

20 f. τῷ δὲ δυν...αὐτῷ ἢ δόξα] We may supply either εἴη or ἐστὶ, 'be the glory' or 'is the glory.' The one thought passes into the other. Man does not offer of his own to God, but recognises and ascribes to Him what is His. In this sense angels and men can 'give glory to God' by acknowledging in that which stirs their wonder and gratitude a revelation of His power and love: Lk. xvii. 18; John ix. 24; Acts xii. 23; Rom. iv. 20; Apoc. iv. 9; xi. 13; xiv. 7; xvi. 9; xix. 7.

use of the article in the doxologies implies that all perfection which is disclosed to us flows finally from God. 'The glory,' through which whatever is glorious gains its splendour, belongs to Him only. Comp. [Matt. vi. 13]; Gal. i. 5; Rom. xi. 36; xvi. 27; Phil. iv. 20; 2 Tim. iv. 18; Hebr. xiii. 21; 1 Pet. iv. 11; v. 11; 2 Pet. iii. 18; Apoc. i. 6; v. 13; vii. 12; xix. 1. ἐν τῇ ἐκκλ. καὶ ἐν Χ. Ἰ.] in the Church and in Christ Jesus. The combination presents different aspects of the same truth, and perhaps points to different orders of the Divine working. The Church is the Body of Christ and the Bride of Christ (c. v. 32). As the Church approaches to its ideal, humanity embodies more and more perfectly the idea of God in creation, and Christ is revealed in further perfection as the spring of man's growth. So the glory of God is shewn, as the universe moves forward to its end, by the fulfilment of God's will in man and by the offering of man's service in Christ to God. Yet it may be that Christ's work through the Church does not exhaust His action (i. 10).

εἰς πάσας τ. γ. τοῦ αἰ. τ. αἰ.] V. in omnes (universas) generationes saeculi saeculorum. V.L. in omnia saecula saeculorum; unto all the generations of the age of the ages. Two main thoughts underlie this most remarkable phrase: (1) the natural succession and development of things represented by successive generations; and (2) the immeasurable vastness of the Divine plan expressed in terms of time. The units of the great age are contributory ages.

IV. ¹Παρακαλῶ οὖν ὑμᾶς ἐγὼ ὁ δέσμιος ἐν κυρίῳ ἀξίως περιπατῆσαι τῆς κλήσεως ἧς ἐκλήθητε, ²μετὰ

St Paul at length after the twofold digression in c. iii. proceeds to apply to practice throughout the remainder of the Epistle the great truths which he has already unfolded. But the truths themselves are never out of sight. The simplest duties are shewn to be grounded upon them. The Christian life is the natural application of Christian doctrine to our special circumstances: Christian conduct rests upon 'supernatural' sanctions. He first gives a general view of the Christian life (iv. 1—24); and then examines it in detail (iv. 25—vi. 9), adding a vivid description of the Christian warfare (vi. 10—20).

I. THE GROUND, THE GROWTH, THE CHARACTER OF THE CHRISTIAN LIFE (iv. 1—24).

St Paul states briefly that the Christian life must correspond with the Christian faith (iv. 1—3). This principle brings into relief the cardinal lessons of unity and harmonious growth (4—16); and leads to a general contrast between the Gentile and the Christian life, the old life and the new (17—24).

(1) The correspondence of life and faith (1—3). The wonderful greatness of the heritage of Christians might tempt them to pride, self-confidence, self-assertion. St Paul lays down that they are bound to cultivate the opposite graces of lowliness, meekness, long-suffering. It is through these that the unity of the Church is established and maintained. Our Faith sets before us not our own greatness but the greatness of God. We are all, the strongest no less than the weakest, dependent on Him in all things. Therefore in view of His glorious purpose for us, we must strive to attain to a corresponding life, first recognising in deepest humility our true relation towards Him.

¹I beseech you therefore, I the prisoner in the Lord (or, I beseech you therefore, I, the prisoner, beseech you in the Lord) to walk worthily of the calling wherewith ye are called, ²with all lowliness and meekness, with long-suffering, forbearing one another in love; ³giving diligence to keep the unity of the spirit in the bond of peace.

1. παρακαλῶ οὖν...] I beseech—entreat—you therefore, I the prisoner in the Lord... or, I beseech you therefore, I, the prisoner, beseech you in the Lord. The connexion of ἐν κυρίῳ is very doubtful. It may be taken with παρακαλῶ, 'I beseech you in the Lord'; or with ὁ δέσμιος, 'the prisoner in the Lord.' The first connexion is supported by v. 17 (I adjure you in the Lord, see note) where the words are resumed: comp. 1 Thess. iv. 1. But the connexion with ὁ δέσμιος is also correct: c. vi. 21; Phil. i. 14; Rom. xvi. 10—13; and ὁ δέσμιος by itself is perhaps abrupt, though the position of ἐγὼ relieves the abruptness. In any case St Paul refers to his position in order to shew that his sufferings had not lessened his joy in that faithful service to which he calls his readers. Comp. Philem. 9. Ign. ad Trall. 12 παρακαλεῖ ὑμᾶς τὰ δεσμά μου.

For οὖν compare Rom. xii. 1; 1 Cor. iv. 16; 1 Tim. ii. 1.

2. μετὰ π. ταπ....] The test of our true apprehension of the Gospel is our sense of the majesty of God.

πάσης ταπεινοφροσύνης καὶ πραύτητος, μετὰ μακροθυμίας, ἀνεχόμενοι ἀλλήλων ἐν ἀγάπῃ, ³σπουδάζοντες τηρεῖν τὴν ἐνότητα τοῦ πνεύματος ἐν τῷ συνδέσμῳ τῆς

Humility, which answers to reverence, is the sign of a noble character. The proud man only looks at that which is (or which he thinks to be) below him; and so he loses the elevating influence of that which is higher.

ταπεινοφροσύνη and πραύτης are closely related. 'Humility' is a thankful sense of dependence upon God, as opposed to pride and self-confidence. Meekness is a consideration for others even under provocation, as opposed to self-assertion. 'Long-suffering' has regard to a different kind of trial which comes from the mysteriousness of the ways of Providence and the unreasonable of men. 'Long-suffering' supports us when we are disappointed in not finding the results for which we naturally looked.

'Meekness' and 'humility' are claimed by the Lord for Himself: Matt. xi. 29; and the perversity of man brings out the 'long-suffering' of God: 2 Pet. iii. 9, 15; 1 Pet. iii. 20.

The three graces occur together with others Col. iii. 12.

πάσης] in all its forms: Acts xx. 19; c. i. 8; iv. 19, 31; v. 3, 9; vi. 18, &c. It is to be taken with both nouns.

The use of μετὰ in place of the simple dat. gives greater distinctness to the qualities: 2 Cor vii. 15.

ἀνεχ. ἀλλ.] Latt. supportantes (sustinentes, sufferentes), forbearing one another in the case of real grievances: Col. iii. 13. The motto of Epictetus was ἀέχου καὶ ἀπέχου (Aul. Gell. xvii. 19). The nom. is used for the accus. as the entreaty passes into a command (comp. Col. i. 10). Such exhortations point to the fact that even in the Apostolic Church faults of self-assertion and occasions of offence existed.

3. But, while there is need of forbearance in the Christian, there is need of effort also. We must give diligence 'to keep the unity of the spirit.' As yet there was no outward organisation binding together local Churches. Their unity lay in their common vital relation to Christ, maintained by the spiritual sympathy which held together the members of each Church. External peace tends to guard this inner fellowship.

σπουδάζοντες] 2 Tim. ii. 15; Hebr. iv. 11; 2 Pet. i. 10; iii. 14.

τὴν ἐν. τ. πν.] the unity of the spirit. The phrase is ambiguous. It may mean either 'the unity which finds expression in the human spirit,' or 'the unity which is inspired by the Holy Spirit.' In the end the two thoughts are coincident; for the unity which rules man's spirit cannot but be a gift of the Spirit of God. Yet the parallel of c. 13 τὴν ἐν. τῆς πίστεως, the only other place where ἐνότης occurs in the N.T., is in favour of the first interpretation. Unity in the faith which we hold corresponds with unity in the spirit by which we are animated. Oneness in the faith and the knowledge of Christ must issue in oneness of spirit.

In Col. iii. 14 love is spoken of as 'the bond of perfectness,' but it is not possible to suppose that St Paul used such a periphrasis as 'the bond of peace' for love itself. Peace itself is the bond; for this use of the gen. see c. vi. 14. The destruction of peace is self-seeking (πλεονεξία).

(2) The unity and harmonious growth of the Christian Body (4—16).

Having spoken of 'the unity of the spirit,' the keeping of which is the aim of Christian effort, St Paul seems to pause for a while, and then, moved by the greatness of the thought, he thinks, as it were, aloud and lays open εἰρήνης· ⁴ἐν σῶμα καὶ ἐν πνεῦμα, καθὼς [καὶ] ἐκλήθητε ἐν

a view of the unity of the whole Christian society, first in its objective foundation (4—6) and then in the provision for its vital realisation (7—16).

The whole paragraph is essentially parenthetical, and the line of thought in ε. 1—3 is resumed in ε. 17.

⁴ There is one body and one spirit, even as also ye were called in one hope of your calling; ⁵ one Lord, one Faith, one Baptism; ⁶ one God and Father of all, Who is over all and through all and in all.

⁷ But to each one of us was the grace given according to the measure of the gift of the Christ. ⁸ Wherefore the Psalmist saith

When He ascended on high He led a host of captives in His train, And gave gifts unto men.

⁹ Now the statement He ascended, what is it but that He descended [first] into the lower parts of the earth? ¹⁰ He that descended, He Himself is also He that ascended far above all the heavens, that He might bring all things to their completeness. ¹¹ And He gave some as apostles, and some as prophets, and some as evangelists, and some as pastors and teachers, ¹² with a view to the perfecting of the saints for a work of ministering, for building up the Body of Christ, ¹³ till we all attain unto the unity of the faith and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a full-grown man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ, ¹⁴ that we be no longer children, storm-tossed and carried about with every wind of doctrine, victims of (in) fraud, of (in) craftiness, directed to further the wiles of error; ¹⁵ but, lying the truth in love, may grow up into Him in all things, Who is the Head, even Christ; ¹⁶ from Whom all the Body fitly framed and knit together, through every contact, according to the effec- tive working of that which is supplied in due measure by each several part, maketh for itself the growth of the Body, unto the building up of itself in love.

4—6. The unity of the Christian Society is witnessed by its unity in itself, which answers to the Christian call (ε. 4); by its historical foundation (ε. 5); by the unity of God Whose will it expresses (ε. 6).

4. ἐν σ. καὶ ἐν πν.] The Christian Society is one in its visible constitution and one in its informing spirit. The body and the spirit (as in σ. 3) refer to the human, earthly organism. Outwardly and inwardly this is one. The spirit is necessarily in fellowship with the Holy Spirit, but a personal reference to the Holy Spirit seems to be foreign to the context, though His work is recognised in the formation of the Church.

καθὼς καὶ ἐκλήθ... ἑμῶν] The unity of the corporate life of Christians corresponds with the unity of hope involved in their 'heavenly calling' (Hebr. iii. 1). The call to fellowship with God 'in Christ,' if welcomed, could not but issue in unity. Comp. i. 18 note.

The hope is coincident with the calling (1 Thess. iv. 7; Gal. i. 6; 1 Cor. vii. 15) and not consequent upon it (καλεῖν εἰς) as in 1 Cor. i. 9; Col. iii. 15; 1 Tim. vi. 12.

For καθὼς καὶ as in fact see ε. 17 note.

5. The historical foundation of the Christian Society also witnesses to its unity. It is established by the acknowledgment of one Lord as sovereign over all life: it confesses one faith in proclaiming that 'Jesus is Lord' (1 Cor. xii. 3): it is entered by one Baptism, in which the believer is brought into fellowship with Christ Jesus (Gal. iii. 27).

We might naturally have looked for a reference to Holy Communion

μῆ ἐλπίδι τῆς κλήσεως ὑμῶν· ⁵εἷς κύριος, μία πίστις, ἐν βάπτισμα· ⁶εἷς θεὸς καὶ πατὴρ πάντων ὁ ἐπὶ πάντων in which, as the Apostle shews elsewhere, 'the one bread' is the pledge that 'the many' are 'one body' (1 Cor. x. 17 R.V. mg.). But the Apostle is speaking of the initial conditions of Christian life. Holy Communion belongs to the support and development of it.

μία πίστις] For the objective sense of πίστις see v. 13; Col. ii. 7 (καθὼς ἐδιδάχθητε); Gal. i. 23 (see Meyer); Rom. x. 8; xii. 6; 1 Tim. iii. 9; iv. 1, 6 &c.; Jude 3 (τῆ... παραδοθείση... πίστει), 20; Apoc. ii. 13.

The essential substance of the Christian Creed is given in the words already quoted: Κύριος Ἰησοῦς (1 Cor. xii. 3) opposed to the declaration of the apostate Ἀνάθεμα Ἰησοῦς (l.c.). Comp. Rom. x. 9 ἐὰν ὁμολογήσῃς τὸ ῥῆμα... ὅτι Κύριος Ἰησοῦς.

6. Yet more the unity of the Christian Society is involved in the very conception of one God and Father of all made known by the Incarnate Son. He who sees the range of the Divine action must find in it the strongest possible motive for guarding the unity already realised in the Church, which is the beginning and the pledge of a wider unity (James i. 18).

εἷς θ. καὶ πατὴρ π.] Cf. c. v. 20 τῷ θεῷ καὶ πατρί. [See Appendix.] The revelation communicated to the Church is of the universal Fatherhood of God. This is the power of its missionary activity. We can appeal to men because in a true sense they are God's children. At the same time the vision of a universal sovereignty (Apoc. xxi. 24, 26; xi. 15) is continually present. All progress is a foreshadowing of the end. The addition of ἡμῶν in v. 7 emphasises the simple πάντων here. Perhaps the most dangerous symptom in popular theology is the neglect of the doctrine of God in His unity.

ὁ ἐπὶ π. καὶ διὰ π. καὶ ἐν π.] Latt. super omnes et per omnia, al. super omnia, per omnes. The reference is not to the Person of the Father, but to the triune God, ruling, pervading, sustaining all. Cf. Rom. xi. 36. [See App.]

The address of Marcus Aurelius to Nature (iv. 23) ἐκ σοῦ πάντα, ἐν σοὶ πάντα, εἰς σέ πάντα recognises part of St Paul's thought.

7—16. Unity is stamped on the Christian Society by the form, the method and the ruling idea of its institution. St Paul now goes on to consider how provision is made for the practical realisation of that idea in the Body of Christ. In this he marks first the types of ministry with which the Church is endowed (7—11); and then he shews how they serve for the perfecting, the guiding, the harmonising of every part of the complex whole (12—16). The one section passes into the other.

7—11. The unity of the Christian Society is due to the combination and ministry of all its members. Some things are common to all; but each has a special function, and each receives the grace which is necessary for the fulfilment of his own office.

This manifold endowment of the Christian Society is foreshadowed in the Psalmist's description of the triumph of the great Conqueror.

Even in a work of art the perfection of details, as contributory to the design, is necessary to its completeness. It is only when we neglect to recognise the specific differences of parts that we miss the truth that they belong to a whole and suggest a larger unity.

St Paul first states the fact of the individual endowment of the several members of the Christian Society (v. 7); he then points out how the καὶ διὰ πάντων καὶ ἐν πάσιν. Ἐνὶ δὲ ἐκάστῳ ἡμῶν ἐδόθη [ἡ] χάρις κατὰ τὸ μέτρον τῆς δωρεᾶς τοῦ χριστοῦ.

many gifts taken together form the Divine endowment of the whole (ev. 8—10); and lastly notes that certain special gifts have been made for its due government (c. 11).

7. ἐνὶ δὲ ἐ. ἡ.] But to each.... Passing from the largest vision of the working of God, St Paul shews how preparation is made in the Church for giving effect to it. We believers recognise this crowning truth of the unity of the Christian body, but, looking at our own position we see that to each one of us was the grace given which we severally need and which we have according to the measure of the gift of Christ.

ἐδόθη] when each took his place in the body. Compare Rom. xii. 6 ff.; 1 Pet. iv. 10.

κατὰ τὸ μέτρον...] The fulness of the endowment of the Church according to Christ's boundless love and wisdom is the rule which determines each man's special endowment. There is perfect order and a true relation to the whole in His several gifts. Comp. Rom. xii. 6.

The word δωρεά is specially used of a spiritual and bountiful gift: c. iii. 7; John iv. 10; Acts ii. 38 &c.; Rom. v. 15; 2 Cor. ix. 15; Hebr. vi. 4.

τοῦ χριστοῦ] The Christ in Whom all the hopes of Israel were concentrated and all the traits of the Messianic king fulfilled.

8—10. The Christian Society received its spiritual endowment from the ascended Lord at Pentecost, and St Paul finds this outpouring of Divine gifts prefigured in the triumph-song of the Messianic king. But in applying the Psalm he substitutes for the words 'received gifts among men' the very different phrase 'gave gifts unto men.' The same rendering is found in the Targum, and it probably represents a gloss which was current in St Paul's time. The origin is obvious. It seemed more natural that the Divine Conqueror should bestow gifts than receive them, or rather, as St Paul applies the thought, that he should return to men what he took from them fitted for nobler uses. So Rashi distinctly paraphrases the text: 'took that thou mightest give.'

8. ὁ δὲ λέγει...] Wherefore the Psalmist saith... Ps. lxxviii. (lxvii.) 18. There is, that is, a necessary correspondence between the actions of God at all times. What is recorded of the Divine King of old must find its complete fulfilment in the Christ. The King's ascent to the sanctuary in Zion foreshadowed Christ's ascent to the Father's throne: His royal magnificence, Christ's royal bounty.

The subject of λέγει is either 'Scripture' generally, or, more simply, 'the sacred writer,' 'the Psalmist.' Comp. c. v. 14; Gal. iii. 16; 1 Cor. vi. 16. Θεός is not to be supplied unless it is implied by the context (2 Cor. vi. 2).

ἠχμαλ. αἰχμ.] he led a host of captives in his train, and these, unlike earthly conquerors, he numbered among his own people and enriched and used them. Their presence implies the conquest of his enemies, and far more, for he made those whom he conquered his ministers to men. Compare 2 Cor. ii. 14 τῷ θεῷ χάρις τῷ πάντοτε θριαμβεῖντι ἡμᾶς, Col. ii. 15.

9 f. τὸ δὲ Ἀνέβη...] Now the implied statement 'He ascended'.... Comp. Gal. iv. 25 and Lightfoot's note.

The words that follow are beset by difficulties. To what does κατέβη refer? What is described by τὰ κατώτερα μέρη τῆς γῆς?

Κατέβη has been taken for the descent at the Incarnation, the descent to Hades, the descent through the Holy Spirit at Pentecost.

Σὺ τὰ κατώτερα μέρη τ. γ. (V. inferiores partes terrae, V. L. inferiora terrae) has been held to describe the earth itself, lower in respect of heaven, and again to describe the regions lower than the earth, that is Hades.

Why again is stress laid on the identity of him who ascended with him who descended?

The answer to these questions may be given most satisfactorily by considering the scope of the whole passage.

The central thought is the endowment of the Church by the ascended Christ. To understand this we must recognise what the Ascension was in relation to the gifts. Ascension implies a previous descent. The Lord left 'the glory which He had' (John xvii. 5) to enter on a true human life on earth, and more, to share man's death and fate after death. Thus He perfectly learnt all man's needs and by rising again overcame man's last enemy. In this work He won to Himself some who were alienated from Him. When He ascended to reassume in His glorified humanity His place on the Father's throne, these ascended with Him (c. ii. 5), and these He gave to minister to men. His personality is throughout unchanged. As the Son of man, still truly God, he passed through all the scenes of man's life: as the Son of God, still truly man, he ascended far above all the heavens, that He might bring all things through man, their appointed representative and head, to the end proposed for them in the counsel of creation (cf. i. 23 note).

The insertion of πρῶτον is a true gloss.

9. καὶ κατέβη] The word 'ascended' used of Christ, Whose pre-existence is assumed, implies a descent also. Comp. John iii. 13.

τὰ κατώτερα μ. τ. γ.] It is most unlikely that such a phrase would be used to describe the earth. Μέρη has no force whatever in such a case. But Hades might, according to the prevalent cosmogony, reasonably be called either τὰ κατώτερα [μέρη] τῆς γῆς or τὰ κατώτατα τῆς γῆς (Ps. lxiii. 10, LXX.). It may be observed that in c. i. 10 and Col. i. 20 there is nothing directly answering to τὰ καταχθόνια in Phil. ii. 10.

10. ὁ καταβὰς αὐτός ἐστιν...] He that descended, He Himself, is also He that ascended.... The sense is given substantially by the grammatically incorrect rendering 'is the same also that....' Comp. John iii. 13.

ἵνα πληρώσῃ] That He might by His presence bring all things to their completeness, give reality to all that τὰ πάντα. ¹¹καὶ αὐτὸς ἔδωκεν τοὺς μὲν ἀποστόλους, τοὺς δὲ προφήτας, τοὺς δὲ εὐαγγελιστάς, τοὺς δὲ ποιμένας καὶ διδασκάλους, ¹²πρὸς τὸν καταρτισμὸν τῶν the universe of created things presented in sign and promise. Christ first 'fulfils' all things and then receives them to Himself when brought to their true end. Time is no element in this work. It is essentially like creation itself 'one act at once,' though it is slowly realised under the conditions of earthly being.

11. καὶ αὐτὸς ἔδωκεν...] And in fulfilment of His victor's work He Himself, of His own free love (αὐτός), gave.... The gift was a double gift. Christ first endowed the men, and then He gave them, so endowed, to the Church.

τοὺς μὲν...] Some of those whom He had taken and fashioned for His service as apostles, and some, as prophets....

The three groups 'apostles,' 'prophets,' 'evangelists,' represent ministers who had a charge not confined to any particular congregation or district. In contrast with these are those who form the settled ministry, 'pastors and teachers,' who are reckoned as one class not from a necessary combination of the two functions but from their connexion with a congregation.

For ἀπόστολος see Lightfoot on Gal. i. 17.

The προφήτης was an inspired teacher: Acts xv. 32; 1 Cor. xiv. 3. The prophets are frequently combined with the apostles as having peculiar authority: c. ii. 20; iii. 5; Apoc. xviii. 20. There is a vivid description of their work at a later period in the Teaching of the Apostles cc. xi. ff.

The work of the εὐαγγελιστής was probably that of a missionary to the unbelieving (Acts xxi. 8). Comp. 2 Tim. iv. 5.

This is the only place in which ποιμὴν is the definite title of an office. But in addressing the 'elders' at Miletus, St Paul bids them 'take heed to the flock in which the Holy Ghost had made them "bishops" and feed (ποιμαίνειν) the Church of God' (Acts xx. 28); comp. 1 Pet. v. 2; John xxi. 16. Christ Himself is spoken of as 'the shepherd and bishop of our souls' (1 Pet. ii. 25), and 'the great Shepherd' (Hebr. xiii. 20). For διδάσκαλος see Acts xiii. 1; 1 Cor. xii. 28 f.

From a consideration of these passages it is evident that there was not as yet a recognised ecclesiastical hierarchy; while there is a tendency to the specialisation of functions required for the permanent well-being of the Church.

See Additional Note.

12—16. The object of this manifold ministry is the perfecting of every member after the pattern of Christ (12, 13), that all realising the truth in life may grow up to complete fellowship with Him (14, 15), Who provides through the ministry of every part for the growth of the whole body in love (16).

12. πρὸς τὸν καταρτ... εἰς ἔργον... εἰς οἶκ.] Latt. ad consummationem... in opus ministerii, in aedificationem ... With a view to the perfecting of the saints for a work.... The work of the ministry is directed to the preparation of the saints—the whole body of the faithful—for the twofold work which in due measure belongs to all Christians, a personal work and a social work. Every believer is charged with the duty of personal service to his fellow-believers and to his fellow-men (2 Pet. i. 7 φιλαδελφία, ἀγάπη), and has some part in building up the fabric of the Christian Society.

A consideration of the scope of the whole passage in which special stress is laid upon the ministry of every part to the welfare of the whole, seems to be absolutely decisive as to the interpretation of εἰς ἔργον διακ. εἰς οἰκοδ. τ. σ. τ. χ. The change of the preposition shews clearly that the three clauses (πρὸς...εἰς...εἰς...) are not coordinate, and however foreign the idea of the spiritual ministry of all 'the saints' is to our mode of thinking, it was the life of the apostolic Church. The responsible officers of the congregation work through others, and find no rest till every one fulfils his function. The personal dealing of Christian with Christian necessarily contributes to the extension and consolidation of the Society.

Καταρτισμός does not occur elsewhere in the N. T. Comp. κατάρτισις 2 Cor. xiii. 9; and καταρτίζω Lk. vi. 40; 1 Thess. iii. 10; 2 Cor. xiii. 11; Gal. vi. 1; Hebr. xii. 21; 1 Pet. v. 10; (ἐξαρτίζω 2 Tim. iii. 17). The idea is of the perfect and harmonious development of every power for active service in due relation to other powers.

τῶν ἀγίων] See c. i. 1, note.

εἰς ἔργ. διακ.] There is no evidence that at this time διακονία or διακονεῖν had an exclusively official sense. Comp. 1 Cor. xii. 5; xvi. 15; Hebr. vi. 10.

εἰς οἰκοδ. τ. σ. τ. χ.] The metaphor is expressive and accurate. The body of Christ, like our own frames, is built up by the addition of each element which is required for its completion. Comp. c. 16; 1 Pet. ii. 5 ff.

13. μέχρι καταστ.] Latt. donec occurramus. The limit, unattainable under present conditions, is an effective call to unceasing endeavour. For καταστήσωμεν see Phil. iii. 11; Acts xxvi. 7. The origin of the image in Acts xxvii. 12 &c.

οἱ πάντες] we Christians all as a body, not simply πάντες: 1 Cor. x. 17; Rom. xi. 32; Phil. ii. 21.

εἰς...εἰς...εἰς...] St Paul distinguishes three stages or aspects of Christian progress. The first is intellectual, where faith and knowledge combine to create unity in the soul, the object of both being the Son of God. The second is personal maturity. The third is the conformity of each member to the standard of Christ in whom all form one new man (Gal. iii. 28 εἰς; c. ii. 15.

τῆς ἐπιγνώσεως] See c. i. 17 note.

τοῦ υἱοῦ τ. θ.] Gal. ii. 20. The express title is very rare in St Paul's Epistles, though it is found not unfrequently by implication: Rom. i. 3, 9 &c.; Col. i. 13. The force of the title is conspicuous in the Epistle to the Hebrews: iv. 14; vi. 6; vii. 3; x. 29.

εἰς ἄ. τέλειον] 1 Cor. ii. 6; xiv. 20; Col. i. 28; iv. 12; Phil. iii. 15; Hebr. v. 14. The phrase seems to point onward to that perfectness of ideal humanity in Christ in which each believer when perfected finds his place (Gal. iii. 28 quoted above).

εἰς μέτρον...] Latt. in mensuram aetatis plenitudinis Christi. The perfection of each Christian is determined by his true relation to Christ to Whose fulness he is designed in the counsel of God to minister. This ideal fulness is the standard of his personal aim. For ἡλικία, maturity of development, see John ix. 21, 23.

14. This verse appears to be coordinate with c. 13 and not dependent upon it. The ministry of the Church serves both for growth and for protection.

νήπιοι] opposed to τέλειοι (Hebr. l.c.).

ζόμενοι καὶ περιφερόμενοι παντὶ ἀνέμῳ τῆς διδασκαλίας ἐν τῇ κυβείᾳ τῶν ἀνθρώπων ἐν πανουργίᾳ πρὸς τὴν μεθοδίαν τῆς πλάνης, ¹⁵ ἀληθεύοντες δὲ ἐν ἀγάπῃ αὐξήσωμεν εἰς αὐτὸν τὰ πάντα, ὅς ἐστιν ἡ κεφαλὴ, Χριστός, ¹⁶ ἐξ οὗ πᾶν τὸ σῶμα συναρμολογούμενον καὶ συνβιβαζόμενον διὰ πάσης ἀφῆς τῆς ἐπιχορηγίας κατ' ἐνέργειαν ἐν κλυδωνιζόμενοι] Latt. fluctuantes. The word does not occur elsewhere in N. T. Comp. James i. 6.

περιφ.] This word (in the passive) occurs in the New Testament here only. In Heb. xiii. 9, as also in Jude 12, it is a false reading. But the former passage (διδαχαῖς ποικίλαις κ. ξένοις μὴ παραφέρεσθε) is to be compared, as describing the same dangers under a slightly different image,—that of being 'carried away from the straight course' (see note ad loc.). [Here the Ephesians are warned against being carried about hither and thither by various winds of erroneous doctrine, which are thus characterised in contrast with the unity of Christian teaching.]

τῆς διδασκ.] The teaching of such as lead astray.

ἐν τῇ κυβ...] Latt. in nequitia (fallacia, illusionē) hominum, in astutia ad circumventionem (remedium, machinationem) erroris: encompassed, as it were, by the fraud (or the gambling spirit) of religious adventurers, who turn them by their selfish ability after the scheming of error.

κυβεία] The word κυβεία occurs in the literal sense of 'dice-playing' in Pl. Phaedr. 274 D; Xen. Mem. i. 3, 2 &c. It is used metaphorically in Arr. Epict. ii. 19; iii. 21. The word was transliterated in Rabbinic. [See Add. Note.]

πανουργία] Luke xx. 23; 1 Cor. iii. 19; 2 Cor. iv. 2; xi. 3. (2 Cor. xii. 16 πανουργος.)

For πρὸς τ. μ. see Gal. ii. 14; Lk. xii. 47; and for μεθοδία c. vi. 11.

15. ἀληθεύοντες...] Latt. veritatem facientes, living the truth in love, not simply speaking the truth. The appropriation of the truth is not intellectual only but moral, expressed through our whole being, in character and action.

αὐξήσ. εἰς αὐ.] Latt. crescamus in illo: may realise our fellowship with Him more closely as our growth advances and be conformed to Him more perfectly.

16. ἐξ οὗ...] from Whom, as the source of all vital energy, all the body ...maketh for itself the growth of the body unto the building up of itself in love. While Christ is the one source of life, the gradual formation of His body, the Church, is still described under the two complementary figures of 'a growth' and 'a building up.' Αὐξήσις obviously refers to αὐξήσωμεν in v. 15. The increase of the Church depends in part on the due development of its members, and in part on their harmonious combination.

The process of increase is continuous (συναρμολογούμενον pres. as c. ii. 21 f.), and it involves the putting together of parts (συναρμ. c. ii. 21), and the combination of persons (συνβιβ. Col. ii. 19).

διὰ π. ἀ.] Latt. per omnem juncturam subministratiōnis, through every contact. Wherever one part comes into close connexion with another, it communicates that which it has to give. For the sense of ἀφή see Lightfoot on Col. ii. 19.

The construction of τῆς ἐπιχορηγίας is uncertain. The only connexion which gives a satisfactory meaning appears to be τῆς ἐπιχ. κατ' ἐνέργ.

μέτρῳ ἐνὸς ἐκάστου ἁμέρους τὴν αὐξήσιν τοῦ σώματος ποιεῖται εἰς οἰκοδομὴν ἑαυτοῦ ἐν ἀγάπῃ.

16 μέρους BND₂G₃K₂L₂P₂ 17 37 Iren ; μέλους AC vg syr-vg bo

The unusual order is intelligible from the emphasis on τῆς ἐπιχ. (comp. iii. 17 note). The sense will then be: 'according to the effectual working of the service rendered in due measure by every part.' If ἐν μέτρῳ cannot be used absolutely, then ἐν μέτρῳ ἑ. ἑ. μ. gives the same meaning.

The rendering 'through every contact with the supply' gives no clear sense. The 'supply' is not a definite current of force, but varies with every part. In any case the sense is clear. Each part as it is brought into contact with other parts, fulfils its own office and contributes to the growth of the whole.

ἐπιχορηγία occurs again Phil. i. 19.

ἐν ἀγάπῃ] The words re-echo the language of σ. 2. The repetition of ἐν ἀγάπῃ is characteristic of the Epistle: i. 4; iii. 18; iv. 2, 15; v. 2.

(3) The contrast of the old life and the new (17—24).

The new life (20—24).

¹⁷This I say therefore and adjure you in the Lord that ye no longer walk as the Gentiles also walk in the vanities of their mind, ¹⁸being darkened in their understanding, alienated from the life of God, because of the ignorance that is in them because of the hardening of their heart; ¹⁹in that having lost feeling they gave themselves up to lasciviousness to work all uncleanness in selfishness. ²⁰But ye did not so learn the Christ, ²¹if at least it was He Whom ye heard, and it was in Him ye were taught, even as there is truth in Jesus; that ye put away, ²²having regard to your former conversation, the old man, which waxeth corrupt after the lusts of deceit; ²³and that ye be renewed in the spirit of your mind, ²⁴and put on the new man, which hath been created after God in righteousness and holiness of the truth.

17—24. St Paul now returns to the practical counsels on which he had entered (σ. 1—3), and contrasts generally the old life (17—19) and the new (20—24).

17. τοῦτο οὖν λ. καὶ μαρτ.] This I say therefore and adjure you in the Lord.... The words take up παρακαλῶ οὖν of σ. 1. Here there can be no question of the connexion of ἐν κυρίῳ with μαρτύρομαι: I adjure you, recognising as I do so my fellowship with the Lord, speaking as in Him. Comp. 1 Thess. iv. 1. For similar combinations see 2 Thess. iii. 4 πεποιθαμεν ἐν κ.; Gal. v. 10; Phil. ii. 24; Rom. xiv. 14 πέπεισμαι ἐν κ. ἰ.; xvi. 2 ἵνα προσδέξῃσθε... ἐν κ.; Phil. ii. 29; ii. 10 ἐλπίζω ἐν κ.; iv. 10 ἐχάρην ἐν κ.; Col. iv. 17 παρέλαβες ἐν κ.

μηκέτι ὑμᾶς... καθὼς καὶ τὰ ἔ.] that you who have embraced the faith walk no longer as in fact the Gentiles walk. No longer should it so be that there is no difference between your life and theirs.

Ἐν καθὼς καί, the καὶ emphasises the words which follow: c. iv. 4, 32; v. 2, 25, 29, &c.

The description of heathen life is closely parallel both in thought and language with Rom. i. 21 ff.

For διάνοια see Hebr. viii. 10 ; 1 Pet. i. 13 ; 2 Pet. iii. 1 ; 1 John v. 20. It is combined with καρδία Lk. i. 51.

The rhythm of the sentence is decisive for the connexion of ὄντες with ἔσκοτωμένοι, in spite of the parallel Col. i. 21, the only other passage in the N.T. in which the double participle is found.

ἀπηλλοτρ. τ. ζ. τ. θ.] For ἀπηλλοτρ. see c. ii. 12. The life of God is that life which answers to the nature of God and which He communicates to His children. This had become wholly foreign to their nature. Their spiritual darkness corresponded with a moral alienation from God.

See Ruskin Modern Painters ii. Pt. iii, c. 2 § 8, p. 18 small edn.

Ignorance or forgetfulness of God is the spring of all error, as 'the fear of God is the beginning of wisdom.' Comp. 1 Thess. iv. 5 τὰ ἔθνη τὰ μὴ εἰδῶτα τὸν θεόν [a description which goes back to Jer. x. 25 ; Ps. lxxix. 6].

διὰ τὴν ἄγν...διὰ τὴν πώρ...] Latt. per ignorantiam quae est in illis, propter caecitatem... The style of the Epistle suggests that these two clauses are coordinate. Even if they are so taken, it still remains true that their ignorance was due to hardening of their heart, though the two are noted separately ; and it must be admitted that τὴν οὖσαν ἐν αὐτοῖς has more force if it is joined directly with what follows : 'the ignorance that is in them because of...'

For πώρωσις see Rom. xi. 7, 25 ; 2 Cor. iii. 14 (ἐπωρ. τὰ νοήματα) ; and specially in connexion with καρδία : Mk. iii. 5 ; vi. 52 ; viii. 17 ; John xii. 40. The root of the word is πῶρος, callus.

19. The issue of moral insensibility and guilty ignorance was gross corruption of life. This is represented as the result of their own action here (ἑαυτ. παρέδωκαν τῇ ἀσελγ.), and on the other hand is ascribed to God in Rom. i. 24 παρέδωκεν αὐτοὺς ὁ θεός...εἰς ἀκαθαρσίαν.... God does that which follows from the laws that express His will ; yet man does not lose his responsibility.

οἵτινες] being such that they... ἀπηλγηκότες] Hier. dicamus indolentes sive indolorios, having lost feeling, expresses exactly the result of πώρωσις. The reading ἀπηλπηκότες, Latt. desperantes, is inadequately supported and less suitable to the context.

τῇ ἀσελγείᾳ] as a mistress. εἰς ἐργασίαν ἀκ. π.] They made a business (Acts xix. 24f.) of impurity, not simply yielding to passion but seeking out deliberately the means of sensual gratification.

20^c Ὑμεῖς δὲ οὐχ οὕτως ἐμάθετε τὸν χριστόν, ²¹ εἴ γε αὐτὸν ἠκούσατε καὶ ἐν αὐτῷ ἐδιδάχθητε, ἡ καθὼς ἔστιν ἀλήθεια ἐν τῷ Ἰησοῦ, ²² ἀποθέσθαι ὑμᾶς κατὰ τὴν προτέραν

21 καθὼς ἔστιν ἀλήθεια, ἐν

For ἐργασία see Plat. Protag. 353 D τῆς ἡδονῆς ἐργασίαν. [For the word cf. also Lk. xii. 58 δὸς ἐργασίαν and for the mode of speech the phrase ἐργάται ἀδικίας (Lk. xiii. 27), which itself comes from Ps. vi. 8.]

ἐν πλεονεξίᾳ] in selfishness. This appears to be the general sense of πλεονεξία, whatever form it may take. The commonest and most typical form is when one sacrifices another to the gratification of his own appetite, as here: c. v. 3. This sense of the word is constant in the N.T.: Mk. vii. 22; Rom. i. 29; 2 Pet. ii. 14; compare 1 Thess. iv. 6. Self takes the place of God (Col. iii. 5).

20—24. In contrast with the old life which was summed up in 'selfishness,' St Paul sketches the new life which answers to 'the new man,' an embodiment of Christ Himself in Whom the isolated self is lost.

20. ὑμεῖς δέ... taking up c. 17 μηκέτι ὑμᾶς.... But ye did not so learn the Christ.... This is not the life which answers to faith in Him. Christ is Himself the sum of the Gospel. He is preached, received, known (Phil. i. 15; Col. ii. 6; Phil. iii. 10). No similar phrase is quoted.

21. εἴ γε αὐτὸν...καὶ ἐν αὐτῷ...] If at least it was He Whom ye heard (c. i. 13) when He called you, and it was in fellowship with Him ye were further taught, as ye were then enabled to receive further instruction, that you as Christians should put away....

καθὼς ἔστιν...Ἰησοῦ] even as there is essentially truth in Jesus. The humanity of Christ (Jesus) gives reality to our limited conceptions. Truth is no convention. Just as the Lord said 'I am the Truth,' so His disciples may say, perplexed by the many conflicting appearances and representations of things and duties, 'There is Truth—we can find it—in Jesus.' The Son of man helps us to find that there is something substantial under all the fleeting forms of earthly phenomena. Ἐν τῷ Ἰ. refers back to τὸν χ. The Messialic was revealed in Jesus in terms, so to speak, of human experience. As we look to Him we see that Pilate's question (John xviii. 38) τί ἐστὶν ἀλήθεια; is answered. Compare the converse declaration John viii. 44 ἐν τῇ ἀληθείᾳ οὐκ ἔστηκεν, ὅτι οὐκ ἔστιν ἀλήθεια ἐν αὐτῷ. [v. Add. Note, p. 70.]

For the position of ἐστὶν see Hebr. xi. 1 note; and for the anarthrous ἀλήθεια c. 25; c. v. 9; 2 Cor. xi. 10; Rom. xv. 8 [contrast iii. 7]; Jo. xviii. 38.

The whole structure of the passage seems to shew that the clause is parenthetical. It seems to indicate why Christian conduct must correspond to Christian doctrine.

22 ff. The new life is realised by three processes: the putting off 'the old man,' the renewal of spiritual power, the putting on 'the new man.' The first and third are acts done once for all (ἀποθέσθαι, ἐνδύσασθαι); and the second and third are connected together (ἀνανεοῦσθαι δέ...καὶ ἐνδύσ.) so that the decisive change is apprehended little by little by growing spiritual discernment. The infinitives depend on ἐδιδάχθητε in c. 21.

22. ἀποθέσθαι ἑ...] that you should put away. The word, though it is used of garments (Acts vii. 58), appears to be chosen instead of ἐκδύσασθαι (2 Cor. v. 4), ἀπεκδύσασθαι (Col. iii. 9), the natural correlative to ἐνδύσασθαι (c. 24) as expressing a ἀναστροφὴν τὸν παλαιὸν ἄνθρωπον τὸν φθειρόμενον more complete separation: v. 25; Rom. xiii. 12; Col. iii. 8; Hebr. xii. 1, &c. The ὑμᾶς is emphatic, 'you as Christians' (vs. 17, 20).

κατὰ τ. πρ. ἀν.] having regard to... Their former conversation was the measure and rule of their renunciation.

For ἀναστροφή see Hebr. xiii. 7. [Comp. Gal. i. 13; Ja. iii. 13; 1 Pet. i. 15 ἐν πάσῃ ἀναστροφῇ (where see Hort's note), 18 ἐκ τῆς ματαίας ὑμῶν ἀναστροφῆς πατροπαράδοτου, ii. 12, iii. 1, 2, 16. The manner of life and intercourse to be renounced has already been described by St Paul in c. ii. 2, 3 ἐν αἷς ποτε περιεπατήσατε..... ἐν οἷς καὶ ἡμεῖς πάντες ἀνεστράφημέν ποτε ἐν ταῖς ἐπιθυμίαις τῆς σαρκὸς ἡμῶν.]

τὸν παλ. ἄν.] the whole character representing the former self. This was not only corrupt, but ever growing more and more corrupt (φθειρόμενον. cf. Rom. viii. 21 τῆς δουλείας τῆς φθορᾶς) under the influence of lusts, of which deceit was the source and strength (cf. Hebr. iii. 13). To follow these was the exact opposite to 'living the truth' (v. 15).

Compare Rom. vi. 6; Col. iii. 9. Corresponding phrases are ὁ καινὸς ἄνθ. v. 24 note; ὁ ἔσω ἄνθ. c. iii. 16 note; ὁ κρυπτός τῆς καρδίας ἄνθ. 1 Pet. iii. 4; ὁ ἄνθ. τῆς ἀμαρτίας [al. ἀνομίας] 2 Thess. ii. 3; ὁ ἄνθ. τοῦ θεοῦ 1 Tim. vi. 11; 2 Tim. iii. 17.

There is much in the general temper of the world—self-assertion, self-seeking—which answers to 'the old man.'

23 f. Two things are required for the positive formation of the Christian character, the continuous and progressive renewal of our highest faculty, and the decisive acceptance of 'the new man.'

ἀνανεοῦσθαι δέ...] and on the other hand that ye be... The word ἀνανεοῦσθαι occurs here only in the N.T.; ἀνακαινοῦσθαι occurs Col. iii. 10; 2 Cor. iv. 16 (ἀνακαινώσις Rom. xii. 2; Tit. iii. 5). The general distinction of νέος and καινός passes into the two words. The variations in Col. iii. 9 f. are instructive: ἀπεκδυσάμενοι τὸν παλαιὸν ἄνθρωπον σὺν ταῖς πράξεσιν αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἐνδυσάμενοι τὸν νέον τὸν ἀνακαινούμενον εἰς ἐπίγνωσιν κατ' εἰκόνα τοῦ κτίσαντος αὐτόν.

τῷ πν. τοῦ ν.] The spirit, by which man holds communion with God, has a place in his higher reason. The spirit when quickened furnishes new principles to the νοῦς (comp. Arist. Eth. N. vi.) by which it is delivered from ματαιότης (v. 17). This St Paul speaks of as ἡ ἀνακαινώσις τοῦ νοῦς (Rom. xii. 2). When the spirit is dormant, man is led astray εἰκῆ φυσιοῦμενος ὑπὸ τοῦ νοῦς τῆς σαρκὸς αὐτοῦ (Col. ii. 18), a vivid description of 'vanity of the mind.' But the νοῦς itself must fulfil its true function: 1 Cor. xiv. 14.

24. ἐνδύσ. τ. κ. ἄ.] Comp. Gal. iii. 27 Χριστὸν ἐνεδύσασθε. Rom. xiii. 14 ἐνδύσασθε τὸν κύριον Ἰ. Col. iii. 10. Christ is 'the new man' (1 Cor. xv. 45 ff.) Who through His Divine personality makes His human nature effective in due measure for every believer.

τὸν κ. θ. κτ.] This ideal humanity already exists, answering perfectly to the will of God; but it has to be personally appropriated.

For κατὰ θεόν see 2 Cor. vii. 9 ff.; c. ii. 2 note.

ἐν δικ. καὶ ὄσ. τ. ἀλ.] finding its expression in righteousness and holiness—in the fulfilment of duties to others and to self—inspired and supported by the influence of the truth.

Additional Note on the reading of Eph. iv. 21.

(The following discussion of the text of Eph. iv. 21 is taken by permission from the private correspondence between Dr Westcott and Dr Hort preparatory to the formation of the text of the Epistle in their edition of the Greek Testament.)

καθὼς ἔστιν ἀλήθεια ἐν τῷ Ἰησοῦ

Dr Hort writes: 'I have never from a boy been able to attach any meaning to the nominative here.'

He accordingly proposes to read

καθὼς ἔστιν ἀληθεία ἐν τῷ Ἰησοῦ

'with or without a comma after ἀληθεία, though the comma seems to give a fuller and truer sense.'

Dr Westcott replies: 'I cannot construe ἀληθεία. And ἐδιδάχθητε requires ἀλήθεια as does v. 24. Surely such a use of the dative with such a pregnant word as ἀλήθεια is inconceivable, to say nothing of authority.'

Dr Hort rejoins: 'Not a word to help me to the right meaning! Mine may be wrong; it only seems more likely to me than others to which I can attach no meaning.'

'In v. 24 τῆς ἀληθείας simply corresponds to τῆς ἀπάτης of v. 22 according to St Paul's favourite antithesis, and needs no other explanation. Again, even if I took ἀληθεία (cf. Phil. i. 18) as only equivalent to ἀληθῶς, I do not know why every single word is bound to be pregnant. But it seems to me that I give it its full theological sense, as full as in St John's Epistles. What is the alternative? Surely not with Meyer to join it with what follows "as it is in Jesus for you to put off..." I could easier believe with Credner (and, apparently, Origen) that it means 'As He is in truth in Jesus': but then that is only my own sense in a clumsy and unnatural form. All the other multitudinous renderings in Meyer convey nothing to my mind. A modification of Meyer's own view has just struck me as imaginable: "were taught that, as is truth in Jesus, ye should put off..." But (1) this renders the Greek horribly obscure, and (2) it requires ἐν τῷ χριστῷ. The right interpretation must be one which justifies the transition to ἐν τῷ Ἰησοῦ. Surely ἐν αὐτῷ ἐδιδάχθητε needs nothing to follow: first the learning Him, then the expansion of that by all manner of teaching received, but still in Him.'

Dr Westcott replies: 'I thought that I had indicated my meaning clearly enough. My idea is that, just as the Lord said "I am the Truth," so here St Paul reminds the Ephesians that there is Truth in Jesus, i.e. in the true humanity of the Word, whereby all the offices of life are revealed in the right relations. This appears to me obvious and pointed.

Dr Hort rejoins: 'Your construction fits the Greek (if ἀλήθεια is read) better than any other; but the chasm which divides it from your interpretation is surely wide. I cannot by any process read such a sense into the statement, surely on any view a strange understatement, "there is truth in Jesus." The idea seems to me on the other hand to be already given in my interpretation in the words αὐτὸν ἠκούσατε καὶ ἐν αὐτῷ ἐδιδάχθητε, and without some such sense as mine I do not see how you can pass from τὸν χριστὸν (v. 20) to τῷ Ἰησοῦ, all the more as this is the only passage of Ephesians where Ἰησοῦς occurs not combined with Χριστός.

'The whole idea may be thus analysed:

- (α) Jesus is the truth of the Christ.
- (β) The Christ is the truth of humanity.
- (γ) The Christ is the truth of God.

'Now according to my view v. 20 expresses (β), the special doctrine of this Epistle, and v. 21 expresses (α), shewing that those who had received the Gospel had implicitly received (β). But it seems to me that your view either omits (α) or confuses it with (β), and fails to explain either καθὼς or τῷ Ἰησοῦ. The use of ἀληθεία seems to me analogous (at a different level) to the use of ἀληθινός in 1 Jo. v. 20: the God in His Son is the true God. I must claim margin for ἀληθεία, ἐν.'

Dr Westcott replies: 'I don't in the least degree admit the force of your objections to my interpretation, nor see the possibility of such a dative as ἀληθεία; but I admit your "claim" as a freeborn Englishman—till you give it up!'

Dr Hort writes finally: 'I don't see how margin can be dispensed with, as your interpretation seems to me absolutely impossible; and, as far as I can find, it is as completely without authority as, I fear, mine is. But your construction has all authority; so I do not ask for text, as I have failed to persuade you.'

Dr Westcott replies: 'Very well.'

(As a result of this discussion Dr Hort's proposed emendation καθὼς ἐστὼ ἀληθεία, ἐν was placed in the margin, as an alternative reading to that of the text, in Westcott and Hort's edition.)

II. THE OUTWARD MANIFESTATION OF THE CHRISTIAN LIFE PERSONAL AND SOCIAL (iv. 25—vi. 9).

1. Special features in the Christian character (iv. 25—v. 14).

2. Cardinal social relationships (v. 15—vi. 9).

After completing the general view of the Christian Life, St Paul illustrates it in detail. He first deals with some personal characteristics of Christians (iv. 25—v. 14); and then with the cardinal social relationships (v. 15—vi. 9).

(1) Some personal characteristics of Christians (iv. 25—v. 14).

St Paul notices first special traits as to truth (iv. 25), self-control (26 f.), labour (28), language (29 f.), tenderness (31 f.). He then marks the fundamental contrast between self-sacrifice and selfishness (v. 1—6); and develops the thought that the Christian life is the life of a child of light (7—14).

dren; and walk in love, even as Christ also loved you and gave Himself up for us, an offering and a sacrifice to God for an odour of fragrance. ³ But fornication and all uncleanness or selfishness, let it not even be named among you as becometh saints; and so of filthiness and foolish talking or jesting, which are not befitting; but rather giving of thanks. ⁵ For this ye know by what ye observe, that no fornicator nor unclean person nor selfish man, which is an idolater, hath any inheritance in the kingdom of Christ and God. ⁶ Let no man deceive you with empty words; for because of these things cometh the wrath of God upon the sons of disobedience. ⁷ Do not therefore shew yourselves partakers with them; for ye were once darkness, but now are light in the Lord; walk as children of light—⁹ for the fruit of light is in all goodness and righteousness and truth—¹⁰ proving what is well-pleasing to the Lord; and have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather even shew them in their true nature (convict them); ¹² for the things which are done by them in secret it is a shame even to speak of. ¹³ But all things when they are shewn in their true nature (convicted) by the light are made manifest; for everything that is made manifest is light. ¹⁴ Wherefore the poet saith

and Christ shall shine upon thee.*

iv. 25—32. At first sight the Apostle appears, as in cc. 1—3, to descend to humble deductions from great principles; but the point of his teaching lies not in the precepts themselves, but in the sanctions by which he enforces them. Christian action is shewn to be ruled not by law, but by love. The obligations of Christian to Christian, determined by their personal relation to Christ, reveal and determine the relations of man to Falsehood is unnatural: it is disloyalty to Christ in Whom we all are. In a healthy body the eye cannot deceive the hand.

ὁ ἥλιος...] Perhaps as if he would say 'Let the returning calm of nature restore calm to your soul,' or simply 'Let the feeling of provocation end with the day.' This rule was followed by the Pythagoreans: Plut. de am. frat. p. 488 B.

ἐπὶ παροργισμῶ ὑ.] Latt. super iracundiam vestram. Παροργισμός, which occurs here only in N.T., is not the feeling of wrath but that which provokes it (cf. τ. vi. 4 μὴ παροργίζετε, Deut. xxxii. 21, Rom. x. 19). The first keenness of the sense of provocation must not be cherished, though righteous resentment may remain.

²⁸ ὁ κλέπτων...] Let him that stealeth.... If sins from the old life still remain, they must be abandoned under the constraining force of a new obligation. Our faith constrains us to serve one another. Stealing is the typical form of using the labour of another to supply our wishes, while it is our duty to make our own labour minister to the needs of others. The inspiration of labour is not personal gain but fulness of service.

Ὁ κλέπτων must mean 'he that stealeth' and not 'he that used to steal' (Vulg. qui furabatur).

πρὸς οἰκοδ. τ. χρ.] Latt. ad aedificationem fidei, Hier. ad aedif. opportunitatis, to supply that which is needed in each case. The need represents a gap in the life which the wise word 'builds up,' fills up solidly and surely. Of the Latin text Jerome says: propter euphoniā mutavit interpres.

δῶ χάριν τ. ἀκ.] That which is elsewhere a Divine prerogative (Acts vii. 10; 1 Cor. i. 4; Rom. xii. 3; xv. 15; Eph. iii. 8; iv. 7; 2 Tim. i. 9; James iv. 6; 1 Pet. v. 5) is here attributed to human speech. Words can, by God's appointment, convey spiritual benefit to those who hear them. Their influence reaches beyond those to whom they are addressed.

θυμὸς...ὀργή...] Comp. Rom. ii. 8; Col. iii. 8; Apoc. xix. 15. Θυμὸς is the special, transient excitement; ὀργή the settled feeling; see Lk. iv. 28; Acts xix. 28; Heb. xi. 27; Matt. ii. 16.

ἀρθήτω] Comp. Matt. xiii. 12; xxi. 21 &c.; 1 Cor. v. 2. The difference in thought from ἀποθέσθαι, ἀποθέμενοι (c. 22, 25) will be noticed.

For the thought comp. Lk. vi. 36; Matt. xviii. 33; 1 John iv. 11.

ἑαυτοῖς] V. The pronoun suggests the thought of their corporate union in Christ: Orig. διὰ τὸ συσσωμῶν ἡμᾶς εἶνα.

Comp. Col. iii. 12 (and Lightfoot's note); 1 Pet. iv. 8—10.

ἐν Χριστῷ] Compare 2 Cor. v. 19 θεὸς ἦν ἐν Χριστῷ κόσμον καταλλάσσων ἑαυτῷ. So in Col. iii. 13 ὁ κύριος ἐχαρίσατο ὑμῖν.

v. 1—6. The thought of the loving-kindness of God in Christ leads St Paul to speak of the self-sacrifice of Christ which is our pattern (1, 2), as contrasted with the life of selfish indulgence (3, 4), which is exposed to the wrath of God (5, 6).

1. γίνεσθε οὖν...] Shew yourselves therefore, touched by the love of God... 1 John iv. 10 f.; iii. 1. Γίνεσθε is emphatic: c. iv. 32; James i. 22; Apoc. ii. 10; iii. 2. Contrast 1 Cor. iv. 16 μιμηταὶ μου γίνεσθε; xv. 58; Phil. iii. 17; Col. iii. 15; 1 Tim. iv. 12; 1 Pet. i. 16. The attainment of the Divine character is a process of life and growth. It was purposed and prepared at the Creation, Gen. i. 26 'after our likeness.' This expressed purpose is the true Proterangelium.

μιμηταὶ τοῦ θ.] Elsewhere of human examples: 1 Cor. iv. 16; xi. 1; 1 Thess. ii. 14; Heb. vi. 12; 1 Pet. iii. 13; 2 Thess. iii. 7, 9; Heb. xiii. 7 (μιμῆσθαι). Compare Matt. v. 45, 48; Luke vi. 36 γίνεσθε οἰκτίρμονες καθὼς ὁ πατὴρ ὑμῶν οἰκτίρμων ἐστίν.

ὡς τέκνα ἀγ.] as sharing His nature and conscious of His love. The child grows up by effort to the Father's likeness. For τέκνον see v. 8 note. Note the sequence ἀγαπητά, ἐν ἀγάπῃ, ἠγάπησεν.

2. περιπ. ἐν ἀ.] in love, which is the essence of God: 1 John iv. 8, 16. For περιπατεῖν see Rom. vi. 4 ἐν καινότητι ζωῆς π.; 2 Cor. x. 3; Col. iv. 5 ἐν σοφίᾳ π. πρὸς τοὺς ἔξω; 1 John i. 6 ἐν τῷ σκοτεινῷ π.; 2 John 4 π. ἐν ἀληθείᾳ.

καθὼς καὶ...] c. iv. 17 note. The love of Christians answers to the love of Christ: John xiii. 34; xv. 12 f.; 1 John iii. 16.

ἠγάπ. ... καὶ παρέδ. ...] Gal. ii. 20 τοῦ ἀγαπήσαντός με καὶ παραδόντος ἑαυτὸν ὑπὲρ ἐμοῦ. Παρέδωκεν is absolute (not to be taken with τῷ θεῷ).

προσφ. καὶ θυσ.] The one word expresses the devotion and the other the sacrifice of life. Comp. Hebr. x. 5. εἰς ὄσ. εὐωδ.] Latt. in odorem suavitatis, for an odour of fragrance. The phrase (cf. Ezek. xx. 41 ἐν ὀσμῇ εὐωδίας προσδέξομαι ὑμᾶς) is used in the O.T. only of free-will offerings. In Christ the free-will offering and the sin-offering are combined.

So Christian teachers are 'a fragrance of Christ (Χριστοῦ εὐωδία) to God; 2 Cor. ii. 15.

In Phil. iv. 18 St Paul describes the gifts received by him, Christ's apostle and bondservant, from the Philippian (τὰ παρ' ὑμῶν) as ὁσμὴν εὐωδίας, θυσίαν δεκτὴν, εὐάρεστον τῷ θεῷ [language which recalls not only Ez. xx. 41, but also Mal. iii. 3, 4 καὶ ἔσονται τῷ κυρίῳ προσάγοντες θυσίαν ἐν δικαιοσύνῃ, καὶ ἀρέσει τῷ κυρίῳ θυσία Ἰουδα καὶ Ἱερουσαλὴμ καθὼς αἱ ἡμέραι τοῦ αἰῶνος καὶ καθὼς τὰ ἔτη τὰ ἔμπροσθεν].

3. Love answers to holiness, and honours and cherishes the highest in all. All sins of self-indulgence therefore, in which a man sacrifices another to himself, or his own higher nature to the lower, are diametrically opposed to love.

πορνεία] This is a general term for all unlawful intercourse, (1) adultery: Hos. ii. 2, 4 (LXX.); Matt. v. 32; xix. 9; (2) unlawful marriage, 1 Cor. v. 1; (3) fornication, the common sense as here.

ἀκαθ. π. ἢ πλεον.] One sin under two aspects as affecting the man himself and others. For πλεονεξία, which here evidently means sensual indulgence at the cost of others, see c. iv. 19; and cf. 1 Thess. iv. 6.

μηδὲ ὀνομ.] Such sins are not to be spoken of. This simple sense is better than that no occasion should be given for even a rumour of their existence among Christians.

πρέπει] Comp. 1 Tim. ii. 10; Tit. ii. 1; Hebr. ii. 10 (with note), vii. 26.

4. καὶ αἰσχρ.] that is, let it not be named among you. Αἰσχροτής (Latt. turpitude) occurs here only in N.T. It is probably not to be limited to language (αἰσχρολογία Col. iii. 8).

μωρ. ἢ εὐτραπ.] Latt. stultiloquium aut scurrilias, foolish talking, or— if it is called by its fashionable name— ready wit. For μωρολογία see Plut. Moral. p. 504 B. For εὐτραπελία see Arist. Eth. Nic. ii. 7, 13, Rhet. ii. 12, 16.

ἃ οὐκ ἀνῆκ.] Latt. quae ad rem non pertinet (-ent). See Lightfoot's note on Col. iii. 18.

ἀλλὰ μᾶλλον] a sharper opposition than μᾶλλον δέ (c. 11). It occurs also Matt. xxvii. 24; Mk. v. 26; 1 Tim. vi. 2; while μᾶλλον δέ is found also in c. iv. 28; Acts v. 14; 1 Cor. xiv. 1; Gal. iv. 9.

εὐχαριστία] It is our duty to look at the noble, the divine, aspect of things and not at the ludicrous, as recognising the manifold endowments of humanity, and the signs of God's love in every good thing. In the reverent mind not 'the thought of past years' alone, but the great spectacle of life and nature 'doth breed perpetual benediction.' Compare 1 Thess. v. 18; Col. ii. 7; and v. 20. The words εὐχαριστεῖν, εὐχαριστία, are characteristic of St Paul.

5, 6. Such sins as have been enumerated exclude from the kingdom of God and bring down the wrath of God upon those who are guilty of them.

5. τοῦτο γὰρ ἴστε γιν...] Latt. hoc enim scitote (scire debetis) intelligentes. For this ye know by what you observe.... Actual experience confirms the lessons of the teacher. The indicative appears to be more suited to the context than the imperative.

πᾶς...οὐκ...] Compare c. iv. 29 note. For πλεονέκτης see c. iv. 19 note.

ὁ ἐστῶ...] Latt. quod est idolorum servitus: which character is.... In ἔχει κληρον.] Cf. Heb. vi. 12 (Add. Note); ix. 15.

ἐν τῇ βασ. τοῦ χριστοῦ καὶ θεοῦ] The phrase is without parallel. The kingdom is spoken of as 'the kingdom of the Son of [God's] love' (Col. i. 3). And again it is said 'The kingdom of the world is become the kingdom of our Lord and of His Christ' (Apoc. xi. 15). The names occur substantially in a different order in 2 Thess. i. 12 κατὰ τὴν χάριν τοῦ θεοῦ ἡμῶν καὶ κυρίου Ἰ. Χρ.; 1 Tim. v. 21 ἐνώπιον τοῦ θεοῦ καὶ Χρ. Ἰ.; 1 Tim. vi. 13 ἐνώπιον τοῦ θεοῦ τοῦ ζωογονούντος τὰ πάντα καὶ Χρ. Ἰ. τοῦ μαρτυρ. ἐπὶ Π. Π....; 2 Tim. iv. 1 ἐνώπιον τοῦ θεοῦ καὶ Χρ. Ἰ. τοῦ μέλλοντος κρίνειν ζῶντας καὶ νεκρούς. Compare also Tit. ii. 13 τοῦ μεγάλου θεοῦ καὶ σωτήρος ἡμῶν Χρ. Ἰ.; 2 Pet. i. 1 τοῦ θεοῦ ἡμῶν καὶ σωτήρος Ἰ. Χρ. From these passages it appears that Χριστοῦ and θεοῦ are to be treated as proper names. But the combination under a common article brings them into a connexion incompatible with a simply human view of the Lord's Person (comp. Tit. ii. 13; 2 Pet. i. 1).

6. μηδεὶς ὑ. ἀ.] The ὑμᾶς is emphatic. Let no one deceive you who have learnt the truth.... The μηδεὶς probably refers to heathen friends who thought lightly of the offences.

ἀπατάτω] deceive you by giving a false appearance to the sins: 1 Tim. ii. 14; James i. 26; ἐξαπατᾶν 2 Thess. ii. 3; 1 Cor. iii. 18 (c. l.); 2 Cor. xi. 3; Rom. vii. 11; xvi. 18.

ἔρχεται] even now.

ἡ ὀργὴ τ. θ.] John iii. 36; Col. iii. 6;

Apoc. xix. 15. Compare Rom. iii. 5; ix. 22. See also Rom. i. 18 (ὀργὴ θ.); 1 Thess. ii. 16 (ἡ ὀργὴ); Rom. v. 9; xii. 19.

The phrase is not to be limited to any particular manifestation of God's wrath. So He regards such offenders generally.

ἐπὶ τ. υἱ. τ. ἀπ.] Conscience gave the law and they disobeyed it. Comp. ii. 2 note.

7—14. The lessons already enforced are now gathered together under the familiar contrast of darkness and light.

7. μὴ οὖν γίν....] Do not therefore, knowing God's judgment, shew yourselves partakers with them in such conduct. The present (γίνεσθε) indicates the imminence of the danger: r. 17; John xx. 27; Rom. xii. 16; 1 Cor. vii. 23; x. 7; xiv. 20; 2 Cor. vi. 14.

συνμέτοχοι] Latt. participes (com-participes), partakers with them in their sins and in their punishment: c. iii. 6. Contrast συγκοινωνός 1 Cor. ix. 23; Rom. xi. 17; Phil. i. 7; Apoc. i. 9. See r. 11.

8. ἦτε...σκότος] Not simply ἐν σκότει. The thought is dominantly not of individual character but of social influence. No parallel to this use is quoted.

φῶς ἐν κυρίῳ] Light in fellowship with Him Who is the light of the world (John viii. 12), which you are called to be derivatively (Matt. v. 14).

τέκνα φ.] Compare John xii. 36 υἱὸς φ.; Lk. xvi. 8 οἱ υἱοὶ τ. φ.; 1 Thess. v. 5. Τέκνον indicates a community of nature as υἱὸς marks privilege. See 1 John iii. 1 τέκνα θεοῦ (and note).

Υἱός is widely used and is found both in the singular and in the plural: υἱ. τῆς βασιλείας Matt. viii. 12; xiii. 38; υἱ. γεέννης Matt. xxiii. 15; υἱ. εἰρήνης Lk. x. 6; υἱ. ἐν πάσῃ...] The life in light is not rigid and monotonous. It is shewn in every form of goodness and righteousness and truth, in all moral duties reckoned under the familiar classification, the good, the right, the true. The first includes personal character, the second social dealings, the third ruling principles, marking generally our obligation to self, our neighbours, God.

For ἀγαθωσύνῃ see Lightfoot on Gal. v. 22.

10. δοκιμάζοντες] Each step in action involves careful thought. We cannot divest ourselves of the responsibility of judgment. An important part of the discipline of life lies in the exercise of that power of discrimination which God quickens and strengthens. Comp. Rom. xii. 2. For δοκιμάζω see 1 Thess. v. 21; Gal. vi. 4; Rom. ii. 18; xii. 2; 1 John iv. 1.

εὐάρεστον] V. beneplacitum. Εὐάρεστος is used both of things, Rom. xii. 1, 2; Phil. iv. 18; Col. iii. 20; Hebr. xiii. 21; and of persons, 2 Cor. v. 9; Rom. xiv. 18; Tit. ii. 9.

τῷ κυρίῳ] The Lord Jesus. His judgment is the judgment of God: Rom. xii. 1; xiv. 18.

11. μὴ συνκοινωνεῖτε] Lat. nolite communicare. Phil. iv. 14; Apoc. xviii. 4. In this word, as in συνκοινωνός see v. 7 note, the idea of personal fellowship prevails over that of participation in something outward. Comp. Hebr. ii. 14 (κεκοινωνήκεν, μετέσχευ) note.

τοῖς ἔργοις τοῖς ἀκ.] The form of expression, as distinguished from τοῖς ἀκ. ἔργοις, gives emphasis to the epithet: 'the works, the fruitless works.' Comp. c. vi. 13, 16; Col. i. 15, 21; iv. 14 &c.

ἀκάριοις] The self-originated sinful deeds of men have no 'fruits,' divinely ordered issues of lasting good, though terrible results follow them. Notice Gal. v. 19 ff. contrasted with v. 22; and compare Rom. ii. 7 ζῶν αἰώνιον, ὁ ὀργῆ καὶ θυμός.

ὑπ' αὐτῶν] i.e. the source of disobedience v. 6. The verses 8—10 are substantially parenthetical, and v. 11 takes up v. 7.

13. And yet more follows: the evil is not only condemned, it is destroyed. All things, when they are convicted, tried, tested, shewn to be what they really are, by the light, are made manifest; and that only can bear the light and be made manifest, which is akin to it. Darkness perishes in its presence. For everything that is made manifest is light (Latt. omne enim quod manifestatur lumen est), it is manifest only so far as it partakes of the light. A man who receives the light of Christ reflects it. He cannot receive it except so far as he has affinity with it, and he cannot receive it without reflecting it. The light is itself a purifying force. When it acts it brings out all that is able to sustain its presence. All else 'is null, is nought.'

Compare John iii. 20 f. which serves as a commentary on this passage.

The course of the argument is certainly obscure, but it is inconceivable that after φανεροῦνται, which is unquestionably passive, the φανερούμενον in the next clause which obviously refers to it should be 'middle.' Nor indeed is there any force in the statement 'for everything that makes manifest is light.' On the other hand if we suppose that St Paul is filled with the thought that darkness flies before the light, the πᾶν γὰρ φανερούμενον becomes intelligible: 'All things being tested by the light are made manifest. And this is what we desire; the darkness goes from them; for everything that is made manifest is light.' This thought is illustrated by the quotation which follows. So Primasius: Incipit lumen esse cum credit et nobis jungitur. There is a similar assumption of an unexpressed consequence in v. 29.

14. διὸ λέγει...] Wherefore, because the light has this transforming power, the poet saieth.... Just as the subject of λέγει in iv. 8 is the author of the familiar Psalm, so here the subject is the author of the Hymn, of which however no other trace has been preserved. Comp. Is. lx. 1.

ἐπιφάσει σοι] V. illuminabit (il-lucescet) te (tibi), Christ shall shine upon thee, and in His light thou too shalt become light. For ἐπιφ. see Gen. xlv. 3. The V. L. implies the reading ἐπιφάσει σοι ὁ χριστός or ἐπιφάσεις τοῦ χριστοῦ and gives continget te Christus or continges Christum.

In looking back over the sanctions on which the different precepts (iv. 25—v. 14) are based, it will be seen that they spring from the relation of the believer to Christ. The loftiest Christian doctrine becomes the motive of the simplest duty. Truthfulness rests on the position in which we stand towards one another as members of one body (iv. 25). Undisciplined resentment opens a way to Christ's adversary (27). Honest labour enables us to fulfil our corporate duty (28). Evil speech grieves the Holy Spirit, Who works through good words (29, 30). All bitterness is alien from Christ's mind and work (31, 32). Generally all sensual self-indulgence is opposed to love (v. 1—6). The light which Christ has given must have its perfect work (7—14).

At the same time positive duties are enjoined. 'Thou shalt' is added to 'Thou shalt not': 'put on' completes 'put off': iv. 25 speak truth: 28 let him labour: 29 give grace to them that hear: 32 be kind: v. 1 walk in love: 4 giving of thanks: 8 walk as children of light: 11 reprove works of darkness.

Christian morality cannot be separated from the Christian revelation. In Christ man is seen in new relations. His conduct cannot be rightly considered apart from these.

(2) Cardinal social relationships (v. 15—vi. 9).

St Paul now passes on to the consideration of social duties. As 'light' Christians must affect those among whom they live. Both in their general temper (v. 15—21) and in the relations of the family (v. 22—vi. 9) they will shew the power of their Faith.

v. 15—21. The general temper of Christians.

¹⁵ Look therefore carefully how ye walk, not as unwise but as wise, ¹⁶ buying up the opportunity, because the days are evil. ¹⁷ For this reason do not shew yourselves foolish, but understand what the will of the Lord is. ¹⁸ And be not drunken with wine wherein is riot, but be filled in spirit, ¹⁹ speaking one to another in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing and making melody with your heart to the Lord; ²⁰ giving thanks always for all things in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, to our God and Father; ²¹ subjecting yourselves one to another in the fear of Christ.

15. βλέπετε οὖν...] Look therefore carefully how ye walk, because you are called to a great service and are enabled to fulfil it. Conduct is difficult; and it is for action not for knowledge we were made.

ἀκριβῶς] Comp. ε. 10. The Divine light does not make man's carefulness less needful. For βλέπετε see 1 Cor. iii. 10.

μὴ ὡς...] The negative is determined by the implied command.

16. ἐξαγορ. τ. κ.] Latt. redimentes tempus, buying up the opportunity, making your own at all cost the season for action. For each one there is but a limited time for service and that under special conditions. Each one therefore must make himself master of his position and use all the helps and occasions which it brings.

Elsewhere ἐξαγοράζω (act.) is used for redeem Gal. iii. 13; iv. 5; and some have supposed that it has that sense here: redeeming the season from

the evil powers who are lords of the world (c. vi. 12; 1 John v. 19). The use of the middle in Col. iv. 5 is parallel to the use in this passage; and there can be no doubt that in these two places the word means 'buying up for yourselves.' Ἐξαγοράζω occurs in Plut. Crass. 2: i. 543 E and in Polyb. iii. 42, 2 in the sense of 'buying up,' and this sense of ἐκ in compounds is justified by abundant examples (e.g. ἐκδανῶ 2 Cor. xii. 15). Comp. Dan. ii. 8 καὶ τὸν ἡμέραν ἐξαγοράζετε: Polyc. Mart. 2, διὰ μίας ὥρας τὴν αἰώνιον κόλασιν ἐξαγοραζόμενοι.

ὅτι αἱ ἡμέραι...] because the days are evil, and the season for action is brief and precarious and precious. The connexion in Col. iv. 5 is different: walk in wisdom toward them that are without, buying up the opportunity. Wise conduct in some degree disarms opposition and makes it easier to obtain our end.

17. διὰ τοῦτο...] For this reason, because the danger is great and the need of walking carefully is urgent,... do not fall to a lower level, but....

For μὴ γίνεσθε see v. 7 note. Such degeneracy is noticed Hebr. v. 11 ναθροὶ γεγονάτε ταῖς ἀκοαῖς; vi. 12 ἵνα μὴ ναθροὶ γένησθε.

Ἄφρων, as distinguished from ἄστροφος, expresses a want of practical judgment: 1 Cor. xv. 36; 1 Pet. ii. 15. Compare i. 8 note.

συνιέτε τί τὸ θ. τ. κ.] understand by careful consideration of the circumstances in each case what the will of the Lord is, which it is your purpose to recognise and to fulfil. Generally we read τὸ θέλ. τοῦ θεοῦ

c. vi. 6; 1 Thess. iv. 3; Hebr. x. 36; 1 Pet. ii. 15, &c. But τὸ θέλ. τοῦ κυρίου is found Acts xxi. 14.

18. καὶ μὴ μεθ.] The transition to a particular precept is abrupt. But the precept affects the whole temper of the Christian like the teaching of ec. 15—17. It expresses in the most striking form the necessity of guarding carefully the completeness of self-control in the times of highest exaltation. Men naturally seek for times of keener life in which feeling, thought, expression are quickened. This is good, but do not, St Paul says, look for your exhilaration from unlawful sources. Be not drunken with wine, in which indulgence is not healthy excitement but riot, but be filled in spirit: seek a loftier inspiration: let your highest faculty, not your lowest, be richly supplied with that which you crave, so that its especial powers are called into play. It is assumed that the Spirit of God can alone satisfy the spirit of man.

ἀσωτία] Latt. luxuria (lascivia). The word occurs Tit. i. 6; 1 Pet. iv. 4. Compare Arist. Eth. N. iv. 1, 4 f.

πληροῦσθε] be filled, that is, let your utmost capacities be rightly satisfied: find the completest fulfilment of your nature. For this absolute sense of πληροῦσθαι compare c. iii. 19 (i. 23); Phil. iv. 18; Col. ii. 10.

ἐν πνεύματι is opposed to ἐν σαρκί. 19—21. The intenser quickening of the higher life shews itself in many ways, in the joy of intercourse, in personal feeling, in thanksgiving to God, in mutual consideration.

19. Men whose spirit is kindled by noble emotion express themselves in the highest forms of speech, and their hearts are in harmony with their words.

λαλοῦντες ἑαυτοῖς] Vulg. loquentes vobismet ipsis. The Christian congregation as Christian joins in the various forms of praise; and the same strains which set forth aspects of God's glory elevate the feelings of those who join in them.

In the earliest picture of a Christian service which has been preserved (Plin. epist. x. 97) Christians in the reign of Trajan (A.D. 98—117) are described as 'soliti stata die ante lucem convenire carmenque Christo, quasi Deo, dicere secum invicem.'

This 'divine music,' however, is not to be confined to religious assemblies alone.

ψ. καὶ ὕ. καὶ ᾠ. πν.] Jerome after Origen says: Quid intersit inter psalium et hymnum et canticum in Psalterio plenissime discimus. Nunc autem breviter hymnos esse dicendum, qui fortitudinem et majestatem praedicant Dei et ejusdem vel beneficia vel facta mirantur.... Psalmi autem propria ad ethicum locum pertinent, ut per organum corporis quid faciendum sit et quid vitandum noverimus. Qui vero de superioribus disputat et concentum mundi omniumque creaturarum ordinem atque concordiam subtilis disputator eduxerit, iste spirituale canticum canit.

The Codex Alex. A includes a rudimentary collection of Psalms, Canticles and Hymns.

ᾠδ. καὶ ψάλλ. τῇ κ.] The outward music was to be accompanied by the inward music of the heart.

ἐν φόβῳ Χρ.] 2 Cor. v. 11 τὸν φόβον τοῦ κυρίου; Acts ix. 31.

The special family relationships (v. 22—vi. 9).

After describing the general temper of Christians, St Paul goes on to illustrate their mutual subjection by their fulfilment of the special family relations, (1) wives and husbands (22—33), (2) children and parents (vi. 1—4), (3) servants and masters (5—9). In each case he considers the weaker first; and the fulfilment of duty by the weaker is met by the answering duty of the stronger: subjection by love; obedience by tender education; obedient and sincere service by corresponding service.

It is to be observed that he limits his instructions to the members of families. He says nothing of civic relations. The home, in its fullest sense, is a creation of the Gospel, the immediate application of the Incarnation to common life.

In each case the obligation is based on the connexion of the believer with Christ (c. 22 ὡς τῷ κυρίῳ. vi. 1 ἐν κυρίῳ. vi. 5 ὡς τῷ χριστῷ). We are to see Christ in those to whom we owe subjection and reverence. Our duty does not depend on their personal character.

It may be added that there is more instruction on the duties of home in the Epistles to the Ephesians and the Colossians than in all the rest of the New Testament.

Wives and husbands (22—33).

The Apostle deals first with the relation which is the foundation of ordered human life. He points out that the wife is to the husband as the Church to Christ. In this we find the type of the wife's subjection (22—24), and of the husband's love (25—30). Marriage issues in a vital unity which points to the ideal consummation of humanity (31, 32).

²² Wives, be in subjection to your own husbands, as unto the Lord.

²³ For a husband is head of the wife, as Christ also is head of the Church, being Himself Saviour of the body.

²⁴ But as the Church is subject to Christ, so let the wives be to their husbands in everything. ²⁵ Husbands, love your wives even as Christ also loved the Church and gave Himself up for it; ²⁶ that He might sanctify it, having cleansed it by the bath of water accompanied by a confession of faith (a word), ²⁷ that He might present the Church to Himself a glorious Church, not having spot or wrinkle or any such thing; but that it should be holy and without blemish.

to Israel runs through the O.T. The application of this relation to Christ and the Church—the spiritual Israel—implies His Divinity.

The Church offers to Christ the devotion of subjection, as the wife to the husband. Christ offers to the Church the devotion of love, as the husband to the wife. Both are equal in self-surrender.

25. As the duty of the wife is subjection, so the duty of the husband is love, answering to the love of Christ crowned by His sacrifice of Himself.

ἠγάπησεν τὴν ἐκκλ.] Comp. Acts xx. 28. So Christ spoke to the representatives of the Church on the eve of the Passion: John xiii. 34; xv. 9, 12. Christ loved the Church not because it was perfectly lovable, but in order to make it such.

For ἐ. παρέδωκεν see v. 2; Gal. ii. 20. The word is used of the Father in relation to the Son: Rom. viii. 32 ὑπὲρ ἡμῶν πάντων παρέδωκεν αὐτόν.

26—7. The purpose of the self-sacrifice of Christ for the Church is described as threefold, (1) to hallow it (ἵνα ἀγίαση), (2) to present it to Himself a glorious Church (ἵνα παραστήσῃ...ἔνδοξον), (3) that it may continue to be holy and without blemish (ἵνα ᾖ ἁγ. καὶ ἄμ.). Under the imagery which is chosen, the bride is first prepared for her Husband (Apoc. xxi. 2, 9): she is then presented to Him: and afterwards in fellowship with Him she fulfils her work.

26. ἵνα...ἀγ. καθαρ....] The initiatory sacrament of Baptism is the hallowing of the bride. In this she is, as by a bridal bath, at once cleansed and hallowed. The actions are coincident (ἀγίαση καθαρίσας comp. i. 8, 9).

There can be little doubt that this simple creed κύριος Ἰησοῦς (comp. 1 Cor. xii. 3) was the Baptismal Confession. This Confession is involved in the baptismal formula εἰς τὸ ὄνομα τοῦ πατρὸς καὶ τοῦ υἱοῦ καὶ τοῦ ἁγίου πνεύματος (Matt.

xxviii. 19). The use of the formula implies the acceptance of it. Both τῷ λ. and ἐν ῥήματι are connected with καθάριας, the different relations of the effect to the material act and the spiritual accompaniment being indicated by the change from the instrumental dative to the preposition. The omission of the article is intelligible on the ground that St Paul wishes to insist on the fact of a personal response in the administration of the sacrament and not on the contents of it. For ἐν compare c. vi. 2 ἐν ἐπαγγελίᾳ.

The two phrases τῷ λουτρῷ (or διὰ λουτροῦ) and ἐν ῥήματι mark what was afterwards known technically as the 'matter' and 'form' of the sacrament.

Compare Aug. in Joh. lxxx. 3 (on John xv. 3): Quare non ait, Mundi estis propter Baptismum quo loti estis, sed ait Propter verbum quod locutus sum vobis, nisi quia et in aqua verbum mundat? Detrahe verbum et quid est aqua nisi aqua? Accedit verbum ad elementum et fit sacramentum, etiam ipsum tanquam visibile verbum.... Unde ista tanta virtus aquae ut corpus tangat et cor abluat, nisi faciente verbo, non quia dicitur sed quia creditur? Nam et in ipso verbo aliud est sonus transiens, aliud virtus manens.

27. ἵνα παρσ. αὐτὸς ἐ....] In this case it is the work of the Bridegroom to prepare and to present (αὐτὸς ἑαυτῷ) the bride. Her fitness and her beauty are alike due to His sacrifice of Himself.

παρστ.... ἔνδ. τὴν ἐκκλ....] present the Church—the one Church—to Himself ἀλλ' ἵνα ἡ] and not only without spot or wrinkle for the marriage; but that it should be abidingly holy and blameless. For ἁγία καὶ ἀμωμος see c. i. 4 note.

28—30. The love of Christ for the Church is the pattern and measure of the husband's love for his wife. He loved the Church not because it was holy, but in order to make it holy by union with Himself. The husband's love must bear the same test, and overcome all failings in the wife. She is part of him, as Christians are of Christ, and claims the same tender affection which Christ bestows on the Church.

28. οὕτως...] Even so ought husbands also.... For ὀφείλουσιν see Hebr. ii. 17 note.

τὰς ἑαυτ. γυν.] answering to τοῖς ἰδίοις ἀνδράσιν in v. 22. Notice the repetition: τὰς ἑαυτῶν γ., τὰ ἑαυτῶν σ., τὴν ἑαυτοῦ γ., τὴν ἑαυτοῦ σ.

τὴν ἑαυτοῦ σ.] The words quoted in v. 31 are already in the Apostle's mind.

The words that follow in the common text are an unintelligent gloss, in which an unsuccessful endeavour is made to give greater distinctness to the Apostle's statement. [v. inf. p. 91, Addit. Note.]

³¹ ἀντὶ τούτου...] For this cause, in consideration of this unique connexion of the husband and the wife, a man shall leave... The words are to be understood literally as in Gen. ii. 24. At the same time the union of husband and wife points to that of Christ and the Church and suggests what Christ gave up for the accomplishment of His work.

ἔσονται...εἰς σ. μ.] Latt. erunt duo in carne una.

³² τὸ μυστήριον τοῦτο...] This revelation of the unity of man and woman in one complex life is of great moment. It opens before us a vision of a higher form of existence, and enables us to feel how parts which at present are widely separated may be combined into some nobler whole without ceasing to be what they are. But I speak looking to Christ and to the Church. In this final union we can see that humanity reaches its consummation.

After writing the words τὸ μυστήριον τοῦτο μέγα ἐστίν, St Paul seems to pause for a while and contemplate the manifold applications of the primitive ordinance (comp. 1 John iii. 1); and then he marks the greatest of all.

λέγω εἰς...] Latt. in Christo (-um) et in ecclesia (-am).

The exact form of expression εἰς Χριστὸν καὶ εἰς τὴν ἐκκλησίαν [if notwithstanding B and the early patristic evidence for omission of the εἰς we accept the reading which retains it] is significant. St Paul, speaking of 'Christ and the Church,' has regard not to their connexion only, he thinks also of each in its distinctness.

Χριστὸν] It will be observed that here, as in v. 21, St Paul uses the personal name, not τὸν χριστόν.

It will be noticed that in this last ὑμεῖς οἱ καθ' ἕνα ἕκαστος τὴν ἑαυτοῦ γυναῖκα οὕτως ἀγαπάτω ὡς ἑαυτόν, ἡ δὲ γυνὴ ἵνα φοβῆται τὸν ἄνδρα.

image of marriage the relation of Christ to the Church is presented somewhat differently from the view given in c. i. 22 f. and c. iv. 15 f. In the image of the body of which Christ is the head the Church has, so to speak, no completeness as a Church; but as the bride of Christ the Church has her own perfect beauty. Yet this is not apart from Christ: the Church is still in a true sense His body, and believers are members of it. The complex thought is summed up in earlier words of St Paul: Gal. iii. 28 εἰς ἐστὲ ἐν Χριστῷ Ἰησοῦ. There is the personality of the body (εἰς) and it is realised in fellowship with Christ. Here, as it appears, we attain to the final conception which we can reach of life in the unseen order: τὸ μυστήριον τοῦτο μέγα ἐστίν.

Compare 'The Gospel of Creation,' Epistles of St John, p. 309.

It is scarcely necessary to remark that this passage does not in any way support the opinion that marriage is a sacrament, a conclusion which has been drawn from the rendering in the Vulgate Hoc sacramentum magnū est. Μυστήριον is commonly rendered by sacramentum in that version.

33. πλὴν καὶ ὑμεῖς...] However, not to pursue this overwhelming subject, do ye also severally each in his humble position, as Christ in His majesty, love his own wife as himself. For πλὴν see I Cor. xi. 11 (πλὴν οὕτε γυνὴ χωρὶς ἀνδρός οὕτε ἀνὴρ χωρὶς γυναῖκος ἐν κυρίῳ); Phil. iii. 16; iv. 14.

ὡς ἑαυτόν] as himself, not as his body or as his own flesh: the personal feeling is supreme (c. 28).

ἡ δὲ γ. ἵνα φοβ.] and let the wife see that she fear...

In such fear there is nothing servile.

Children and parents (vi. 1—4).

vi. ¹Children, obey your parents in the Lord; for this is just. ²Honour thy father and mother—seeing it is the first commandment with promise—³that it may be well with thee and so thou shalt live long upon the land. ⁴And, ye fathers, provoke not your children to wrath; but nurture them in discipline and admonition of the Lord.

1—4. The exposition of the relation of the wife to the husband is followed naturally by an exposition of the relation of children to parents. Obedience (1—3) is met by loving education (4).

1. τὰ τ. ὑπακ. τ. γ.] Obedience is substituted for subjection (v. 22 f.) here and in c. 5, parallel with Col. iii. 20, 22. For ὑπακούειν, ὑπακοή, compare Rom. vi. 16 f.; Hebr. v. 8 f.

ἐν κυρίῳ] The child can recognise his spiritual relation to Christ in the earliest years, before doctrine is grasped intellectually. There is from the first a Divine element in all the parts of human life, and St Paul assumes the ideal as the standard. [Origen, Cat. Cr. Eph. 208 observes ἀμφιβολόν ἐστι τὸ ρητόν· ἦτοι γὰρ τοῖς ἐν κυρίῳ γονεῦσιν χρὴ ὑπακούειν τὰ τέκνα ἢ ἐν κυρίῳ δεῖ ὑπακούειν τὰ τέκνα τοῖς γονεῦσιν.]

δίκαιον] The obligation lies in the nature of the relation. Compare Acts iv. 19; Phil. i. 7; 2 Thess. i. 6; 2 Pet. i. 13.

COY ΚΑΙ ΤΗΝ ΜΗΤΕΡΑ, ἥτις ἐστὶν ἐντολὴ ἡ πρώτη ἐν ἐπαγγελίᾳ, ³ ἵνα εἶ σοὶ γένηται καὶ ἔσῃ μακροχρόνιος ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς. ⁴ Καὶ οἱ πατέρες, μὴ παροργίζετε τὰ τέκνα ὑμῶν, ἀλλὰ ἐκτρέφετε αὐτὰ ἐν παιδείᾳ καὶ

2, 3 πρώτη, ἐν ἐπαγγελίᾳ ἵνα

2. τίμα] Obedience must be founded on honour and find expression, not only in act but in feeling. The general command (ὑπακούετε) is supplemented by the personal command (τίμα) from the Decalogue (Ex. xx. 12). [Cf. Deut. v. 16 τίμα τ. πατέρα σου κ. τ. μητέρα σου, ὃν τρόπον ἐνετείλατό σοι Κύριος ὁ θεός σου, ἵνα κ.τ.λ.] The commandment (ἐντολὴ) is quoted [but without the promissory clause] in the Gospels: Matt. xv. 4; xix. 19 and parallels (Mk. vii. 10; Lk. xviii. 20).

For τιμᾶν see 1 Tim. v. 3; 1 Pet. ii. 17 (πάντας τιμήσατε, τ. βασιλεία τιμᾶτε). ἥτις] c. iii. 13; seeing it is and therefore claims regard. The interpretation of ἐντολὴ πρώτη ἐν ἐπαγγελίᾳ is extremely uncertain. The words may mean 'seeing it is a commandment of primary importance accompanied also by a promise' (comp. Matt. xxii. 38 αὕτη ἐστὶν ἡ μεγ. καὶ πρώτη ἐντ., cf. Mk. xii. 28); or, as Chrysostom appears to take it, 'seeing it is a commandment preeminent in the promise which is attached to it' (οὐ τῇ τάξει εἶπεν αὐτὴν πρώτην ἀλλὰ τῇ ἐπαγγελίᾳ). Others take it as 'the first commandment in the Law to which a promise is attached,' or, since the words are addressed to children, 'the first, earliest, commandment to be learnt....' No explanation seems to be wholly satisfactory. [The alternative punctuation πρώτη, ἐν ἐπαγγελίᾳ ἵνα (Westcott and Hort marg.) leads to a slightly modified form of the first of the interpretations here recognised: 'a primary commandment, carrying with it the promise—the offer and the benediction—that it may be well with thee and that thou shalt live long upon the land.']

3. ἵνα...γένηται καὶ ἔσῃ...] A similar combination of moods with ἵνα in the reversed order is found in Apoc. xxii. 14, and ἵνα occurs elsewhere with the future: 1 Cor. ix. 18; Gal. ii. 4. The difference between the moods is preserved: that it may be well...and so thou shalt be...

ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς] upon the land. The remainder of the quotation is assumed to be known.

4. καὶ οἱ πατέρες...] The duty of parents is connected closely with the duty of children (so v. 9). There is no καὶ in c. v. 25. 'Fathers' stand in place of 'parents' (v. 1), because the government and discipline of the house rest with them.

μὴ παροργίζετε] Latt. nolite ad iracundiam provocare. The verb occurs Rom. x. 19 (a citation from the LXX. Deut. xxxii. 21). In c. iv. 26 we have παροργισμός. In Col. iii. 21 the word used is ἐρεθίζετε. Even in children there is a keen sense of injustice and inconsiderateness.

ἐκτρέφετε] V. educate, V. L. nutrite (enutrite): cf. c. v. 29. The ἐκ- is intensive as in ἐκπειράζειν, ἐκπληροῦν, ἐκτελεῖν &c.

ἐν παιδ. καὶ νοουθεσίᾳ τ. κ.] Latt. in disciplina et correptione domini, in discipline and admonition not self-chosen or self-invented but answering to the mind of the Lord, administered through them. Bengel says truly 'harum altera occurrit nuditati, altera oblivioni et levitati.' Παιδεία is discipline generally (2 Tim. iii. 16 πρὸς παιδείαν τὴν ἐν δικαιοσύνῃ; Hebr. xii. 5 ff.); νοουθεσία special admonition (1 Cor. x. 11 ἐγράφη δὲ πρὸς νοουθεσίαν ἡμῶν; Tit. iii. 10 μετὰ μίαν καὶ δευτέραν νοουθεσίαν).

νουθεσία Κυρίου. ⁵ Οἱ δούλοι, ὑπακούετε τοῖς κατὰ σάρκα κυρίοις μετὰ φόβου καὶ τρόμου ἐν ἀπλότητι τῆς καρδίας ὑμῶν ὡς τῷ Χριστῷ, ⁶ μὴ κατ' ὀφθαλμοδουλίαν ὡς ἀνθρωπάρεσκοι ἀλλ' ὡς δούλοι Χριστοῦ ποιοῦντες τὸ θέλημα τοῦ θεοῦ, ἐκ ψυχῆς ⁷ μετ' εὐνοίας δουλεύοντες, ὡς Servants (slaves) and masters (5—9).

⁵ Servants (slaves), be obedient to them that according to the flesh are your masters, with fear and trembling, in singleness of heart as unto Christ; ⁶ not in the way of eyeservice, as men-pleasers; but as servants of Christ, doing the will of God; ⁷ doing service from the heart with good-will, as to the Lord and not to men; ⁸ knowing that whatsoever good thing each one doeth, this shall he receive again from the Lord, whether he be bond or free. ⁹ And, ye masters, do the same things in dealing with them, and forbear threatening; knowing that both their Master and yours is in heaven, and there is no respect of persons with Him.

5—9. The third typical relation in the household was that of servants (slaves) and masters. The servant must remember that he renders his service to Christ (5—7), and that he will receive his reward from Him (8). The master must remember that in heaven the servant's Master is his own also (9).

The position of slaves (δούλοι) is touched on in 1 Tim. vi. 1 f.; Tit. ii. 9 f.; and 1 Pet. ii. 18 (οἰκέται).

In the Pastoral Epistles and 1 Peter the master of the slave is δεσπότης.

5. τοῖς κ. σ. κ.] Earthly relations are not neutralised by heavenly (Rom. xiii. 7). At the same time κατὰ σάρκα suggests the limit of the authority of earthly masters.

On this Primasius remarks: Non venit Christus mutare conditiones sed mores.

μετὰ φ. καὶ τρ.] with fear lest any duty should be left undone and trembling: the feeling and the sign of it. The phrase recurs in 2 Cor. vii. 15; Phil. ii. 12; comp. 1 Cor. ii. 3; and is not uncommon in the LXX.: Gen. ix. 2; Is. xix. 16; Ps. ii. 11.

Such feelings have a right place in the relations of men to men.

ἐν ἀπλ. τ. κ. ὑ.] in singleness of heart, without hypocrisy or one secondary or selfish thought. For ἀπλότης see Col. iii. 22; 2 Cor. i. 12. The obedience is to be rendered as unto Christ, 'Who knoweth the hearts of all men.'

ἀνθρωπάρεσκοι] Col. iii. 22. The word is found in Ps. lii. (liii.) 6 (LXX.); Ps. Sol. iv. 8, 10, 21.

ὡς δούλοι Χρ.] Comp. 1 Cor. vii. 22; 1 Pet. ii. 16 ὡς δούλοι θεοῦ. The phrase in a spiritual sense is the chosen title of apostles: Rom. i. 1; James i. 1; 2 Pet. i. 1; Jude 1; Apoc. i. 1.

ποι. τὸ θ. τ. θ.] Mk. iii. 35; John vii. 17; ix. 13; Hebr. x. 36; xiii. 21; 1 John ii. 17. Comp. Matt. vii. 21; xii. 50; xxi. 31; Lk. xii. 47; John iv. 34. The absolute use of the phrase in these passages suggests that it is so used here, and that ἐκ ψυχῆς is to be joined with the words which follow. True service bears two marks. It is rendered under a sense of a personal relation to Christ, and with a recognition of the Divine law written in the heart.

connexion of ἐκ ψ. with this verse is supported by the parallel in Col. iii. 23; and the two phrases ἐκ ψ. and μετ' εὐν. combine to characterise the service completely, in relation to the servant (ἐκ ψ.) and to the master (μετ' εὐνοίας, V. cum bona voluntate, V.L. cum benignitate). For ἐκ ψ. see Col. iii. 23 ὁ ἐάν ποιῆτε, ἐκ ψυχῆς ἐργάζεσθε, ὡς τῷ κυρίῳ καὶ οὐκ ἀνθρώποις; 1 Macc. viii. 25, 27; Mk. xii. 30 (not 33). Εὐνοια occurs here only in N.T. Kindly feeling must underlie loyal service.

ὡς τῷ κυρίῳ] The change of the title here (ὁ χρ. v. 23, 24, 25, 29; v. 5; Xp. v. 32; v. 6) is natural. Stress is laid on the thought of sovereignty.

8. εἰδότες...] The Divine judgment lies essentially in each deed of man. The good which we do remains ours still; and the evil (Col. iii. 25) also. The doer in each case will receive what he has done. Cf. 2 Cor. v. 10 ἵνα κομισθῆται ἕκαστος τὰ διὰ τοῦ σώματος πρὸς ἃ ἐπραξεν, εἴτε ἀγαθὸν εἴτε φαῦλον; Col. iii. 25; 2 Pet. ii. 12 f. Comp. III. THE CHRISTIAN WARFARE (vi. 10—20).

The general survey of the conditions of social life which St Paul has now completed leads him to consider the whole range of the Christian conflict. This deals with the unseen as well as with the seen. In order to understand its character we must take account of spiritual hosts of wickedness by which we are assailed and of the heavenly forces which are within our reach. He first shews our actual position (10—12); and then describes in detail the Divine equipment of the Christian soldier (13—17) passing to the duties of intercession (18—20).

10—12. The Christian position. Claim all the help which God offers you. Your enemies are not men only but the whole hierarchy of evil. We must face the stern, tragic view of life.

10. τοῦ λοιποῦ] Latt. de cetero. This phrase occurs again Gal. vi. 17, in the future. We should expect τὸ λοιπὸν (which is less well supported) for the future (2 Thess. iii. 1; 1 Cor. vii. 29; Phil. iv. 8; Hebr. x. 13). Perhaps both here and in Galatians the thought is turned to special crises of trial.

ἐνδυναμούσθε...] Latt. confirmamini (confirmamini); be made powerful for your work in the Lord and, through fellowship with Him, in the might of His strength. Ἐνδυναμούσθε is certainly passive (Acts ix. 22; Rom. iv. 20; Hebr. xi. 34. Comp. Col. i. 11; Lk. i. 80; ii. 40. The active occurs Phil. iv. 13; 1 Tim. i. 12; 2 Tim. iv. 17), and has respect to the work to be done. Ἰσχύς expresses strength positively: κράτος might as abundantly effective for the end contemplated. Τὸ κρ. τῆς ἰσχ. occurs again c. i. 19 note. Ἐν τῷ κράτει answers to ἔν κυρίῳ: by fellowship with Him we share in all that is His.

11. ἐνδύσασθε τὴν παν...] Armour represents the aspect of Divine help in reference to the Christian warfare. The image occurs in each group of St Paul's Epistles: 1 Thess. v. 8; 2 Cor. vi. 7; x. 4; Rom. vi. 13; xiii. 12. Comp. Wisd. v. 17 ff. λήψεται πανοπλίαν τὸν ζῆλον αὐτοῦ κ.τ.λ.; Is. lix. 16 f.

τὴν παν. τ. θ.] V. arma (omnia arma), V.L. armaturam: the full, complete, armour of God, that is, which God supplies (c. 13; comp. Lk. xi. 22). Ἡ πανοπλία was properly the equipment of the heavy-armed soldier.

Polyb. vi. 23, 2 ff. Ἔστι δ' ἡ Ῥωμαϊκὴ πανοπλία πρῶτον μὲν θυρέος... ἅμα δὲ τῷ θυρεῷ μάχαιρα... πρὸς δὲ τοῦτοις ὕσσοι δύο, καὶ προσκεφαλαία χαλκῆ, καὶ προκνημῖς... Μεθοδεία (c. iv. 14) is not found in class. writers or in the LXX. though μεθοδεύω occurs. As μεθοδεία describes the general system, μεθοδεῖαι are the many forms in which it is embodied.

Compare Polycarp, ad Phil. 7 (ed. Lightfoot, p. 918) καὶ ὅς ἂν μὴ ὁμολογῇ τὸ μαρτύριον τοῦ σταυροῦ, ἐκ τοῦ διαβόλου ἐστίν· καὶ ὅς ἂν μεθοδεύῃ τὰ λόγια τοῦ Κυρίου πρὸς τὰς ἰδίας ἐπιθυμίας καὶ λέγει [?λέγει] μήτε ἀνάστασιν εἶναι μήτε κρίσιν, οὗτος πρωτότοκος ἐστὶ τοῦ Σατανᾶ, and Lightfoot's note (ad loc.) on μεθοδεύῃ; for which he cites Polybius xxxviii. 4, 10 πολλὰ πρὸς ταύτην τὴν ὑπόθεσιν ἐμπορευῶν καὶ μεθοδευόμενος and Philo Vit. Moys. iii. 27 ὅπερ μεθοδεύουσιν αἱ λογοθῆραι καὶ σοφισταί. [The verb occurs in the LXX. of 2 Sam. xix. 27 μεθώδευσεν ἐν τῷ δούλῳ σου, but not in the N. T. Commenting on μεθοδεία here Chrysostom says μεθοδεύσαι ἐστὶ τὸ ἀπατήσαι καὶ διὰ συντόμου ελεῖν. For μέθοδος in this sense cf. Plutarch, Moral. 176A ἐθαύμαζε τὴν μέθοδον τοῦ ἀνθρώπου (quoted by Lightfoot l. c.) and 2 Macc. xiii. 18 κατεπαίρασε διὰ μεθόδων τοὺς τόπους.]

ἀλλὰ πρὸς τὰς ἀρχάς...] but against the principalities.... All is definite and organised in the array of our spiritual enemies. Each is to be dealt with severally: πρὸς...πρὸς...πρὸς...πρὸς. Compare John xvi. 8 περὶ...περὶ...περὶ. The three classes distinguished all belong to 'this darkness.'

The forces with which we have to contend are not ultimately human. Our earthly adversaries are stirred by powers of another order (John xiii. 2; Acts v. 3). Comp. August. de verbo Dom. 8 Vasa sunt, alius utitur: organa sunt, alius tangit (Meyer).

τοὺς κοσμοκρ.] Latt. mundi rectores: the world-rulers. The title stands in significant contrast with παντοκράτωρ (2 Cor. vi. 18; Apoc. i. 8, iv. 8, xi. 17, xv. 3, xvi. 7, 14, xix. 6, 15, xxi. 22). Compare John xii. 31 ὁ ἄρχων τοῦ κόσμου τούτου; xiv. 30 ὁ τοῦ κόσμου ἄρχων; 2 Cor. iv. 4 ὁ θεὸς τοῦ αἰῶνος τούτου. The Tempter speaks of his power over the world as 'delivered unto him' (Lk. iv. 6 ἐμοὶ παραδέδοται). The word κοσμοκράτωρ was transliterated and used by Rabbinical writers for 'ruler of world-wide power.'

The phrase τὸ σκότος τούτο is moulded on ὁ αἰὼν οὗτος, ὁ κόσμος οὗτος.

πρὸς τὰ πν. τ. π. ἐν τ. ἐπ.] against the spiritual forces of wickedness in the heavenly order. This clause sums up in an abstract form all the powers of evil which work in the unseen order. Man's conflict, in man's life, is partly on earth and partly in 'the heavenly realm.' He is met by spiritual enemies in both. We are not to conceive of this heavenly realm as properly local, though we are constrained so to represent it. The term describes rather a mode of existence than a place. Comp. i. 3 note.

There appears to be no force in the combination of ἐν τ. ἐπ. with τὰ πν. τ. πν. as if the heavenly realm were their dwelling-place (comp. c. ii. 6).

It will be noticed that 'the world' itself is not spoken of as our antagonist, but the evil powers which have usurped the rule over it. We must 'overcome' the world (1 John v. 5) even as Christ 'overcame' it (John xvi. 33) by suffering. Compare Ruskin, Modern Painters, v. p. 385 (small edition).

'I do not know what my England desires, or how long she will choose to do as she is doing now; with her right hand casting away the souls of men and with her left the gifts of God. In the prayers which she dictates to her children, she tells them to fight against the world, the flesh, and the devil. Some day, perhaps, it may also occur to her as desirable to tell those children what she means by this. What is the world which they are to "fight with," and how does it differ from the world which they are to "get on in"? The explanation seems to me the more needful, because I do not, in the book we profess to live by, find anything very distinct about fighting with the world. I find something about fighting with the rulers of its darkness, and something also about overcoming it; but it does not follow that this conquest is to be by hostility, since evil may be overcome with good. But I find it written very distinctly that God loved the world, and that Christ is the light of it.'

When does 'the world, the flesh, and the devil' first appear?

The Christian armour (13—17).

¹³ For this reason take up the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day and, having accomplished all, to stand. ¹⁴ Stand therefore having girded your loins with truth, and having put on the breastplate of righteousness, ¹⁵ and having shod your feet in the preparedness of the gospel of peace, ¹⁶ in all taking up the shield of faith, in which ye shall be able to quench all the darts of the evil one that are set on fire. ¹⁷ And receive the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God.

13. διὰ τοῦτο] For this reason, that our conflict is essentially spiritual. There is a perceptible difference in tone between διὰ τοῦτο and διό: the former appears to point to a specific, the latter to a general reason. See also iii. 1 τούτου χάριν.

ἀναλάβετε τ. π.] v. 16 (Acts vii. 43), opposed to καταθέσθαι. The armour is laid at the feet of the warrior.

ἵνα δυν.] the conflict is imminent: the adversaries are on the field (ἀντιστῆναι). Ἀντιστῆναι is not used absolutely elsewhere in the N. T.

ἐν τ. ἡ. τ. π.] the day preeminently evil in evil days (v. 16): in the most violent outbreak of the powers of evil. Comp. Lk. iv. 13; John xiv. 20.

ἅπαντα κατεργ. στ.] V. in omnibus perfecti stant: having accomplished all, to stand, having accomplished all that belongs to your duty and to your position, still to hold your ground. Κατεργάσθαι implies the accomplishment of something grave and difficult: Phil. ii. 12; Rom. vii. 15, 17, 20

(κατεργάσθαι, πράσσειν, ποιεῖν). The Christian has not only to repel assaults but also to achieve great results. The rendering 'having overcome' is un-Pauline.

For στῆναι see Apoc. vi. 17 καὶ τίς δύναται σταθῆναι; (Lk. xxi. 36).

14—16. στήτε οὖν...] stand therefore.... In this confidence take up the position which you will be enabled to maintain to the end, having duly equipped yourselves (περιζωσάμενοι, ἐνδυσάμενοι, ὑποδησάμενοι, ἀναλαβόντες).

περιζωσάμενοι ... ἀναλαβόντες] As the first preparation for the conflict the combatant braces up himself. The value of his arms must depend on his own vigour. Truth, perfect sincerity, perfect reality, is the stay of the Christian character. Hypocrisy or falsehood paralyses one who is strong as a believer. Before all things the Christian warrior is true. Such a man applies truth to life. In his dealings with others he aims at intellectual and moral rectitude. He puts on the breastplate of righteousness, which guards the heart.

Yet further (v. 15) he secures his foothold and power of vigorous advance, having shod his feet with the preparedness of the gospel of peace. And, as affecting all he has to do, he takes up the shield of faith, to be a protection against spiritual assaults.

14. περιζωσάμενοι] Comp. Lk. xii. 35, 37; xvii. 8; 1 Pet. i. 13 (ἀναζωσ.).

Isaiah (xi. 5 καὶ ἔσται δικαιοσύνη ἐξωσμένος τὴν ὄσφυν αὐτοῦ καὶ ἀληθεία εἰλημένος τὰς πλευράς) indicates the close connexion between righteousness and truth.

righteousness, truth applied to our relations with others (Acts x. 35), illuminated, purified, strengthened by the grace of Christ. Comp. Is. lix. 17 ἐνεδύσατο δικαιοσύνην ὡC θώρακα; Wisd. v. 19 ἐνδύσεται θώρακα δικαιοσύνην. In 1 Thess. v. 8 St Paul speaks of 'faith and love' as the Christian breastplate. The two statements are completely harmonious. By faith we are able to realise the Divine will and the Divine power and by love to embody faith in our dealings with men: this is righteousness.

The gen. τῆC δικαιοσύνηC describes that which constitutes the breastplate, just as in v. 17 (τὴν περικεφ. τοῦ σωτηρίου) salvation is the helmet. Comp. ii. 14 τὸ μεσότοιχον τοῦ φραγμοῦ; iv. 3 ἐν τῷ συνδέσμῳ τῆC εἰρήνηC; Rom. iv. 11 σημεῖον—περιτομῆC; Col. iii. 24 τὴν ἀναπαύσασιν τῆC κληρονομίας.

Acts xii. 8 ζῶσαι καὶ ὑπόδησαι τὰ σανδάλια σου. ἐν ἑτοιμ. τ. εὐ. τ. εἰρ.] in the preparedness of the gospel of peace. In the midst of the conflict that which brings alacrity at once and firmness is the consciousness of a message of peace for the world. Warfare is the work of an enemy whom our Lord has overcome.

'Ἐτοιμασία occurs in the LXX. in the sense of 'preparedness' in Ps. x. 17 (ix. 38 LXX.) τὴν ἑτοιμασίαν τῆC καρδίας αὐτῶν: but more commonly in the sense of 'preparation,' as Wisd. xiii. 12 εἰς ἑτοιμασίαν τροφῆC, or 'prepared foundation,' as Ps. lxxxix. 14 (lxxxviii. 15) δικαιοσύνη καὶ κρίμα ἑτοιμασία τοῦ θρόνου σου; Ezra ii. 68 τοῦ στήσαι αὐτὸν ἐπὶ τὴν ἑτοιμασίαν αὐτοῦ (cf. Dan. xi. 7, Theodot.).

τοῦ εὐαγγ. τῆC εἰρ.] The phrase is unique, but the thought is given in Nahum i. 15 οἱ πόδες εὐαγγελιζομένου καὶ ἀπαγγέλλοντος εἰρήνην; Is. lii. 7; c. ii. 17 καὶ ἐλθὼν εὐηγγελίσατο εἰρήνην ὑμῖν τοῖC μακρὰν καὶ εἰρήνην τοῖC ἐγγύC; Rom. x. 15. Compare Lk. ii. 14; John xiv. 27; Acts x. 36.

Similar titles are found: Acts xx. 24 τὸ εὐαγγ. τῆC χάριτοC τοῦ θεοῦ. 2 Cor. iv. 4 τὸ εὐαγγ. τῆC δόξηC τοῦ χριστοῦ. 1 Tim. i. 11 τὸ εὐαγγ. τῆC δόξηC τοῦ μακαρίου θεοῦ. c. i. 13 τὸ εὐαγγ. τῆC σωτηρίας ὑμῶν.

Compare ὁ θεὸC τῆC εἰρήνηC 1 Thess. v. 23 (2 Cor. xiii. 11); Rom. xv. 33; xvi. 20; Phil. iv. 9; Hebr. xiii. 20; 2 Thess. iii. 16 ὁ κύριος τῆC εἰρ.

16. ἐν πάσιν ἀναλ.] in all—as affecting your whole action—having taken up the shield of faith.... For ἀναλαμβάνοντες see v. 13. The θυρεὸC (scutum) was a large oblong shield capable of being used as a protection for every part. This is the quality of faith, and specially in this the Christian is able to quench all the darts of the evil one that are set on fire (as they strike harmlessly upon it).

τὰ β...τὰ πεπυρ.] Such πυρφόροι οἶστοι (Thuc. ii. 75), malleoli (Amm. Marcell. 23, 4) were used in Greek and Roman warfare: see also Ps. vii. 13 and Hupfeld. The image describes vividly the manifold and deadly malignity of the attack of the Evil One.

τοῦ πονηροῦ] Latt. nequissimi (maligni). This title is not found elsewhere in St Paul. It is characteristic of the first Epistle of St John (ii. 13 f.; iii. 12; v. 18 f.). It occurs also in Matt. v. 37; vi. 13; xiii. 19, 38 (not Lk. xi. 4); John xvii. 15.

17. When the Christian soldier has taken his stand, well-girt with τὴν περικεφαλλίαν τοῦ σωτηρίου δέξασθε, καὶ τὴν μάχαιραν τοῦ πνεύματος, ὅ ἐστιν ῥῆμα θεοῦ, ¹⁸ διὰ πάσης προσευχῆς καὶ δέσεως, προσευχόμενοι ἐν παντί breastplate, shoes, shield, he yet needs helmet and sword. So St Paul continues, changing the construction, καὶ ...δέξασθε.

τὴν περικ. τοῦ σωτ. δέξασθε] receive—accept from God—the helmet of salvation.... Δέξασθε suggests a personal welcome of God's gift, and a glad appropriation of it: 2 Cor. vi. 1; viii. 17; 2 Thess. ii. 10.

The helmet guards the centre of life. The sense of salvation puts life beyond all danger.

For the image compare Is. lix. 17 καὶ περιέθετο περικεφαλαίαν σωτηρίου ἐπὶ τῆς κεφαλῆς. In 1 Thess. v. 8 St Paul describes 'the hope of salvation' (ἐλπ. σωτηρίας) as our helmet.

Τὸ σωτήριον is used frequently in the LXX. for salvation.

In the N. T. it occurs (τὸ σωτ. τοῦ θεοῦ) Lk. ii. 30; iii. 6 (Is. xl. 5); Acts xxviii. 28. The phrase expresses rather 'that which brings salvation' than 'salvation' itself.

τὴν μάχ. τοῦ πν.] the sword which the Spirit provides and through which it acts.

ῥῆμα θεοῦ] a definite utterance of God: Matt. iv. 4; John vi. 63. Comp. c. v. 26 note. The ῥήματα are manifold expressions of the λόγος: Hebr. iv. 12.

The Christian spirit (18—20).

¹⁸ In all prayer and supplication praying at every season in spirit, and watching thereunto in all perseverance and supplication for all the saints; ¹⁹ and on my behalf, that utterance may be given me in opening my mouth to make known with boldness the revelation (mystery) of the gospel, ²⁰ for which I am an ambassador in chains; that in it I may speak boldly, as I ought to speak.

The description of the armour of the warrior is followed by the description of his spirit. He must use the vital powers and the instruments of service which he has received in unceasing prayer for all his fellow-believers. Prayer is naturally connected with action.

διὰ πάσης...] V. in omni instantia et observatione pro omnibus. The universality of the duty as to mode, time, persons, is enforced by πάσης, παντί, πάση, πάντων. Προσευχή is addressed to God only and includes the element of devotion: δέσις is general in its application and includes some definite request. The words occur together Phil. iv. 6 (see Light-foot's note); 1 Tim. ii. 1; v. 5.

Διά marks the condition 'in every prayer,' that is, while you use every prayer: compare 2 Cor. ii. 4 διὰ πολλῶν δακρῶν.

It appears to be most natural to connect διὰ π. προσ. καὶ δέσις. with προσευχόμενοι, and not to take them absolutely: 'using every kind of prayer and supplication, praying....'

ἐν π. κ.] 1 Thess. v. 17 (ἀδιαλείπτως); Rom. xii. 12 (προσκατεροῦντες); Phil. iv. 6 (ἐν παντί).

ἐν πνεύματι] in spirit, not in form or in word only, but in that part of our being through which we hold communion with God. Thus praying in spirit, when viewed from the other side, is 'praying in the Holy Spirit' (Jude 21). Comp. c. ii. 22 note; iii. 5 note.

καὶ...ἀγρυπ.] not merely praying under the influence of a natural desire, but also watching thereunto with resolute effort. Ἀγρυπνεῖν is found in N.T., Mark xiii. 33; Lk. xxi. 36; Hebr. xiii. 17 αὐτοὶ γὰρ ἀγρυπνοῦσιν ὑπὲρ τῶν ψυχῶν ὑμῶν ὡς λόγον ἀποδώσοντες: and in the LXX., Ps. cxxvii.

iv. 2 (αγρηγοροῦντες).

εἰς αὐτό] The power of prayer is gained by systematic discipline.

ἐν πάσῃ προσκ...] in all perseverance, steadfastness.... The word προσκαρτέρησις is found here only.
Προσκαρτερεῖν is used in connexion with prayer: Acts i. 14; vi. 4; Rom.
xii. 12; Col. iv. 2.

περὶ π. τ. ἀγ.] in close connexion with προσευχόμενοι. The words between define the nature of the prayer as constant, spiritual, resolute, manifold.

The combatant even in the stress of personal conflict thinks of all with whom he is united (ἀγίων); and in this way—to regard the truth from the other side—the weakest and simplest Christian can take part in the efforts of the strongest. There is now no difference of Jew and Gentile.
Comp. v. 24; c. i. 15; iii. 18.

19, 20. Specially the Apostle asks for prayer on his own behalf, that he may declare his message boldly.

19. καὶ ὑπὲρ ἐμοῦ] and on my behalf.... More direct and definite than for, c. 18 (περὶ).

ἵνα μοι δοθῇ...] The one thing which St Paul asks is, not success, not deliverance, but simply boldness to deliver the Gospel which had been revealed to him. The first was an encouragement but not a ground for self-confidence. Day by day he looked for a new gift through the prayers of Christians. For λόγος see 1 Cor. xii. 8 ὃ μὲν γὰρ διὰ τοῦ πνεύματος δίδεται λόγος σοφίας, ἄλλω δὲ λόγος γνώσεως κατὰ τὸ αὐτὸ πνεῦμα.

ἐν ἀνοίξει τ. στ. μ.] in opening my mouth, that is probably 'when I open my mouth to speak'; or the words may be closely connected with δοθῇ λόγος in the sense 'that utterance may be given me by God when He opens my mouth.' This interpretation is suggested by Col. iv. 3 (ἵνα ὁ θεὸς ἀνοίξῃ ἡμῖν θύραν τοῦ λόγου, λαλήσαι τὸ μυστήριον τοῦ χριστοῦ), though the image there is different. In either case ἀνοίγειν τὸ στόμα marks some weighty deliverance: Matt. v. 2; Acts viii. 32, 35.

ἐν παρρ. γν.] The structure of the sentence no less than the sense favours the connexion of ἐν παρρησίᾳ with γνωρίσαι and not with the preceding words. That which was before 'spoken in proverbs' is now 'spoken plainly' (John xvi. 25).

τὸ μυστ. τοῦ εὐαγγ.] the revelation of the gospel, the revelation contained in the gospel. The phrase is unique.

20. πρεσβ. ἐν ἀλ.] Latt. legatione fungor in catena. The words are an oxymoron. The dignity of the ambassador of the great king remains, though he is a prisoner and bearing the marks of bondage. Compare the language of Philemon 9 *τοιούτος ὢν ὡς
Παῦλος πρεσβύτης νυνὶ δὲ καὶ δέσμιος Χριστοῦ Ἰησοῦ*, and Lightfoot's note.

For ἄλλοις see Acts xxi. 33; xxviii.

ἵνα ἐν αὐ. παρρησ.] This clause is parallel with ἵνα μοι δοθῇ λόγος (comπάντα... Τυχικός...] There is no reserve in his communication. For Tychicus (Acts xx. 4 Ἀσιανοὶ δὲ Τυχικός καὶ Τρόφιμος; 2 Tim. iv. 12 Τυχικόν δὲ ἀπέστειλα εἰς Ἔφεσον; Tit. iii. 12 ὅταν πέμψω Ἀρτεμῖν πρὸς σε ἢ Τυχικόν) see Lightfoot on Col. iv. 17. This is the single personal reference in the Epistle, as is the reference to Timothy in the Epistle to the Hebrews (c. xiii. 23). The words ὁ ἀγαπ... ἐν κυρίῳ form one compound clause. The spiritual kinsmanship of Tychicus with St Paul and his service were alike realised in fellowship with the Lord (cf. Rom. xvi. 8f.). This interpretation appears to be more consonant with St Paul's manner than to confine ἐν κυρίῳ το πιστὸς διάκονος.

22. εἰς αὐτὸ τ. ἵνα...] Comp. 2 Cor. ii. 9; Rom. xiv. 9; 1 Pet. iii. 9; 1 John iii. 8.

ἵνα γνῶτε... καὶ παρακαλέση] For the change of person compare Col. iv. 8 ἵνα γνῶτε—καὶ παρακαλέση (as here), Phil. ii. 28 ἵνα ἰδόντες αὐτὸν πάλιν χαρῆτε κἀγὼ ἄλυπότερος ὢ.

τὰ περὶ ἡμῶν] St Paul now joins his companions with himself: compare Col. iv. 10 f.; Philemon 23 f. Ἐπαφρᾶς ὁ συναυχμαλωτὸς μου ἐν Χριστῷ Ἰησοῦ, Μάρκος, Ἀρίσταρχος, Δημᾶς, Λουκάς, οἱ συνεργοί μου.

The words παρακαλέση τὰς καρδίας ὑμῶν imply that the readers had been troubled by news which had reached them perhaps as to St Paul's approaching trial: comp. c. iii. 13. The phrase is found again in Col. iv. 8.

23 Peace be to the brethren and love with faith from God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ. 24 Grace be with all them that love the Lord Jesus Christ in incorruption.

A double salutation and blessing.

23, 24. St Paul first addresses the special society (οἱ ἀδελφοί); and then 'all that love the Lord Jesus.' The variation εἰρήνη τοῖς... ἡ χάρις μετά... is to be noticed. Peace is God's gift complete in itself: grace is realised through man's cooperation. Yet in the opening salutations St Paul writes χάρις ὑμῖν. In this connexion χάρις is always anarthrous.

The form of the salutation in the third (not the second) person differs from St Paul's usual manner. But compare Gal. vi. 16.

23. εἰρήνη τ. ἀ. καὶ ἀγ. μ. π.] 'With faith' is to be taken with 'peace' and 'love,' since 'from GOD' belongs to both. Peace and love are GOD's gifts, and faith is the condition of appropriating them. 'Love' occurs in benedictions 1 Cor. xvi. 24 (ἡ ἀγ. μου); 2 Cor. xiii. 13 (ἡ ἀγ. τ. θεοῦ); and 'peace' 2 Thess. iii. 16; Gal. vi. 16 (cf. Rom. xv. 33); 1 Pet. v. 14.

τοῖς ἀδ.] here only in the Epistle (τ. 10 a false reading). Comp. τ. 21 ὁ ἀδελφός. It occurs in Col. i. 2; iv. 15. ἀπὸ θ. π.] Gal. i. 3 ε. λ.; 2 Tim. i. 2; Tit. i. 4.

24. ἡ χ. μ. π.] 'Ἡ χάρις stands thus absolutely in benedictions: Col. iv. 18; 1 Tim. vi. 21; 2 Tim. iv. 22; Tit. iii. 15; Hebr. xiii. 25. Elsewhere

St Paul writes ἡ χάρις τοῦ κυρίου Ἰ. [Χρ.]. It is uniformly followed by μετά. Comp. τ. 23 note.

π. τῶν ἀγ. . . Ἰ. Χρ.] Compare 1 Pet. i. 8 ὃν οὐκ ἰδόντες ἀγαπᾶτε, James i. 12, John viii. 42, xiv. 15, 23.

ἐν ἀφθαρσίᾳ] with a love free from every element liable to corruption. The Lord 'brought incorruption (ἀφθαρσίαν) to light' (2 Tim. i. 10). Thus He revealed the eternal in things perishable in form. The Christian realises this in his love for his Lord. He knows Him no more after the flesh (2 Cor. v. 16). His love is directed to that which is beyond change, and is itself unchangeable. Primasius describes in part the character of such believers: in quorum corde nullo adulterino saeculi amore Christi dilectio violatur.

a mortuis et constituens ad dexteram suam in caelestibus ²¹supra omnem principatum et potestatem et virtutem et dominationem et omne nomen quod nominatur non solum in hoc saeculo sed et in futuro, ²²et omnia subiecit sub pedibus eius, et ipsum dedit caput supra omnia ecclesiae, ²³quae est corpus ipsius, plenitudo eius quia omnia in omnibus adimpletur.

II.

3 ¹Et vos, cum essetis mortui delictis peccatis vestris, ²in quibus aliquando ambulastis secundum saeculum mundi huius, secundum principem potestatis aeris huius, spiritus qui nunc operatur in filios diffidentiae; ³in quibus et nos omnes aliquando conversati sumus in desideriis carnis nostrae, facientes voluntatem carnis et cogitationem, et eramus natura filii irae sicut et ceteri. 4 ⁴Deus autem qui dives est in misericordiam, propter nimiam caritatem suam qua dilexit nos, ⁵et cum essemus mortui peccatis, convivicavit nos Christo, gratia estis salvati, ⁶et conresuscitavit et consedere fecit in caelestibus in Christo Iesu, ⁷ut ostenderet in saeculis supervenientibus abundantes divitias gratiae suae in bonitate super nos in Christo Iesu. 5 ⁸Gratia enim estis salvati per fidem; et hoc non ex vobis, dei enim donum est: ⁹non ex operibus, ut ne quis gloriatur: ¹⁰ipsius enim sumus factura, creati in Christo Iesu in operibus bonis, quae praeparavit deus ut in illis ambulemus. 6 ¹¹Propter quod memores estote quod aliquando vos gentes in carne, qui dicimini praeputium ab ea quae dicitur circumcisio in carne manu facta, ¹²quia eratis illo in tempore sine Christo, alienati a conversione Israhel et hospites testamentorum promissionis, spem non habentes et sine deo in mundo: 7 ¹³nunc autem in Christo Iesu vos qui aliquando eratis longe, facti estis prope in sanguine Christi. ¹⁴Ipse est enim pax nostra, qui fecit utraque unum, et medium parietem macheriae solvens, ¹⁵inimicitias in carne sua, legem mandatorum decretis evacuans, ut duos condat in semet ipsum in unum novum hominem, faciens pacem, ¹⁶et reconciliet ambos in uno corpore deo per crucem, interficiens inimicitiam in semet ipso. ¹⁷Et veniens evangelizavit pacem vobis qui longe fuistis et pacem his qui prope, ¹⁸quoniam per ipsum habemus accessum ambo in uno spiritu ad patrem. 8 ¹⁹Ergo iam non estis hospites et advenae, sed estis cives sanctorum et domestici dei, ²⁰superaedificati super fundamentum apostolorum et prophetarum, ipso summo angulari lapide Christo Iesu, ²¹in quo omnis aedificatio constructa crescit in templum sanctum in domino, ²²in quo et vos coaedificamini in habitaculum dei in spiritu.

III.

9 ¹Huius rei gratia ego Paulus vincetus Christi Iesu pro vobis gentibus, ²si tamen audistis dispensationem gratiae dei quae data est mihi in vobis, ³quoniam secundum revelationem notum mihi factum est sacramentum, sicut supra scripsi in brevi, ⁴prout potestis legentes intellegere prudentiam meam in mysterio Christi, ⁵quod aliis generationibus non est agnitum filiis hominum, sicuti nunc revelatum est sanctis apostolis eius et prophetis in spiritu, ⁶esse gentes coheredes et concorporales et comparticipes promissionis in Christo Iesu per evangelium, ⁷cuius factus sum minister secundum donum gratiae dei, quae data est mihi secundum operationem virtutis eius. ⁸Mihi omnium sanctorum minimo data est gratia haec, in gentibus evangelizare investigabiles divitias Christi, ⁹et inluminare omnes quae sit dispensatio sacramenti absconditi a saeculis in deo qui omnia creavit; ¹⁰ut innotescat principibus et potestatibus in caelestibus per ecclesiam multiformis sapientia dei, ¹¹secundum praefinitionem saeculorum quam fecit in Christo Iesu domino nostro; ¹²in quo habemus fiduciam et accessum in confidentia per fidem eius. ¹⁰ ¹³Propter quod peto ne deficiatis in tribulationibus meis pro vobis, quae est gloria vestra. ¹¹ ¹⁴Huius rei gratia flecto genua mea ad patrem domini nostri Iesu Christi, ¹⁵ex quo omnis paternitas in caelis et in terra nominatur, ¹⁶ut det vobis secundum divitias gloriae suae virtute conrobore per spiritum eius in interiore homine, ¹⁷habitare Christum per fidem in cordibus vestris, ¹⁸in caritate radicati et fundati, ut possitis conpraehendere cum omnibus sanctis quae sit latitudo et longitudo et sublimitas et profundum, ¹⁹scire etiam supereminentem scientiae caritatem Christi, ut impleamini in omnem plenitudinem dei. ¹² ²⁰Ei autem qui potens est omnia facere superabundanter quam petimus aut intellegimus secundum virtutem quae operatur in nobis, ²¹ipsi gloria in ecclesia et in Christo Iesu in omnes generationes saeculis saeculorum, amen.

IV.

Ascendens in altum captivam duxit captivitatem, dedit dona hominibus. ⁹Quod autem ascendit, quid est nisi quod et descendit in inferiores partes terrae? ¹⁰Qui descendit, ipse est et qui ascendit super omnes caelos, ut impleret omnia. ¹¹Et ipse dedit quosdam quidem prophetas, quosdam quidem apostolos, alios evangelistas, alios autem pastores et doctores, ¹²ad consummationem sanctorum, in opus ministerii, in aedificationem corporis Christi, ¹³donec occuramus omnes in unitatem fidei et agnitionis filii dei, in virum perfectum, in mensuram aetatis plenitudinis Christi, ¹⁴ut iam non simus parvuli fluctuantes et circumferamur omni vento doctrinae in nequitia hominum, in astutia ad circumventionem erroris, ¹⁵veritatem autem facientes in caritate crescamus in illo per omnia, qui est caput, Christus, ¹⁶ex quo totum corpus compactum et conexum per omnem iuncturam subministrationis secundum operationem in mensuram uniuscuiusque membri augmentum corporis facit in aedificationem sui in caritate. ¹⁶¹⁷Hoc igitur dico et testificor in domino, ut iam non ambuletis sicut gentes ambulant in vanitate sensus sui, ¹⁸tenebris obscuratum habentes intellectum, alienati a vita dei, per ignorantiam quae est in illis, propter caecitatem cordis ipsorum, ¹⁹qui desperantes semet ipsos tradiderunt impudicitiae in operationem immunditiae omnis in avaritia. ¹⁷²⁰Vos autem non ita didicistis Christum, ²¹si tamen illum audistis et in ipso edocti estis sicut est veritas in Iesu, ²²deponere vos secundum pristinam conversationem veterem hominem, qui corrumpitur secundum desideria erroris: ²³renovamini autem spiritu mentis vestrae, ²⁴et induite novum hominem qui secundum deum creatus est in iustitia et sanctitate veritatis. ²⁵Propter quod deponentes mendacium loquimini veritatem unusquisque cum proximo suo, quoniam sumus invicem membra. ¹⁸²⁶Irascimini et nolite peccare: sol non occidat super iracundiam vestram. ²⁷Nolite locum dare diabulo. ²⁸Qui furabatur, iam non furetur, magis autem laboret operando manibus quod bonum est, ut habeat unde tribuat necessitatem patienti. ¹⁹²⁹Omnis sermo malus ex ore vestro non procedat, sed si quis bonus ad aedificationem oportunitatis, ut det gratiam audientibus. ³⁰Et nolite contristare spiritum sanctum dei, in quo signati estis in die redemptionis. ³¹Omnis amaritudo et ira et indignatio et clamor et blasphemia tollatur a vobis cum omni malitia: ³²estote autem invicem benigni, misericordes, donantes invicem sicut et deus in Christo donavit nobis.

V.

²⁰¹Estote ergo imitatores dei, sicut filii carissimi, ²et ambulate in dilectionem, sicut et Christus dilexit nos et tradidit se ipsum pro nobis oblationem et hostiam deo in odorem suavitatis. 21 ³Fornicatio autem et omnis immunditia aut avaritia nec nominetur in vobis, sicut decet sanctos, ⁴aut turpitudine aut stultiloquium aut scurrilitas, quae ad rem non pertinent, sed magis gratiarum actio. ⁵Hoc enim scitote intelligentes, quod omnis fornicator aut immundus aut avarus, quod est idolorum servitus, non habet hereditatem in regno Christi et dei. 22 ⁶Nemo vos seducat inanibus verbis: propter haec enim venit ira dei in filios diffidentiae. ⁷Nolite ergo effici participes eorum. ⁸Eratis enim aliquando tenebrae, nunc autem lux in domino: ut filii lucis ambulate; ⁹fructus enim lucis est in omni bonitate et iustitia et veritate; ¹⁰probantes quod sit beneplacitum deo, ¹¹et nolite communicare operibus infructuosius tenebrarum, magis autem et redarguite. ¹²Quae enim in occulto fiunt ab ipsis, turpe est et dicere: ¹³omnia autem quae arguuntur a lumine manifestantur: omne enim quod manifestatur, lumen est. ¹⁴Propter quod dicit Surge qui dormis et exurge a mortuis, et illuminabit tibi Christus. 23 ¹⁵Videte itaque, fratres, quomodo caute ambuletis, non quasi insipientes, sed ut sapientes, ¹⁶redimentes tempus, quoniam dies mali sunt. ¹⁷Propterea nolite fieri imprudentes, sed intellegentes quae sit voluntas dei. ¹⁸Et nolite inebriari vino, in quo est omnis luxuria, sed implemini spiritu, ¹⁹loquentis vosmet ipsis in psalmis et hymnis et canticis spiritalibus, cantantes et psallentes in cordibus vestris domino, ²⁰gratias agentes semper pro omnibus in nomine domini nostri Iesu Christi deo et patri, ²¹subiecti invicem in timore Christi. 24 ²²Mulieres viris suis subiectae sint sicut domino, ²³quoniam vir caput est mulieris, sicut Christus caput est ecclesiae, ipse salvator corporis. ²⁴Sed ut ecclesia subiecta est Christo, ita et mulieres viris suis in omnibus. 25 ²⁵Viri, diligite uxores vestras, sicut et Christus dilexit ecclesiam et se ipsum tradidit pro ea, ²⁶ut illam sanctificaret mundans lavacro aquae in verbo, ²⁷ut exhiberet ipse sibi gloriosam ecclesiam, non habentem maculam aut rugam aut aliquid eiusmodi, sed ut sit sancta et immaculata. ²⁸Ita et viri debent diligere uxores suas ut corpora sua. Qui suam uxorem diligit, se ipsum diligit: ²⁹nemo enim unquam carnem suam odio habuit, sed nutrit et fovet eam, sicut et Christus ecclesiam, ³⁰quia membra sumus corporis eius, de carne eius et de ossibus eius. ³¹Propter hoc relinquet homo patrem et matrem suam et adheret uxori suae, et erunt duo in carne una. ³²Sacramentum hoc magnum est, ego autem dico in Christo et in ecclesia. ³³Verum tamen et vos singuli unusquisque suam uxorem sicut se ipsum diligit, uxor autem ut timeat virum.

VI.

26 ¹Filii, oboedite parentibus vestris in domino: hoc enim iustum est. ²Honora patrem tuum et matrem, quod est mandatum primum in promissione, ³ut bene sit tibi et sis longevus super terram. 27 ⁴Et patres, nolite ad iracundiam provocare filios vestros, sed educate illos in disciplina et correptione domini. 28 ⁵Servi, oboedite dominis carnalibus cum timore et tremore, in simplicitate cordis vestri, sicut Christo, ⁶non ad oculum servientes quasi hominibus placeatis, sed ut servi Christi facientes voluntatem dei ex animo, ⁷cum bona voluntate servientes sicut domino et non hominibus, ⁸scientes quoniam unusquisque quodcumque fecerit bonum hoc percipiet a domino, sive servus sive liber. 29 ⁹Et domini, eadem facite illis, remittentes minas, scientes quia et illorum et vester dominus est in caelis et personarum acceptio non est apud eum. 30 ¹⁰De cetero, fratres, confortamini in domino et in potentia virtutis eius. ¹¹Induite vos arma dei, ut possitis stare adversus insidias diaboli; ¹²quia non est nobis conluctatio adversus carnem et sanguinem, sed adversus principes et potestates, adversus mundi rectores tenebrarum harum, contra spiritalia nequitiae in caelestibus. ¹³Propterea accipite arma dei, ut possitis resistere in die malo et in omnibus perfecti stare. ¹⁴State ergo succincti lumbos vestros in veritate, et induti lorica iustitiae, ¹⁵et calciati pedes in praeparatione evangelii pacis, ¹⁶in omnibus sumentes scutum fidei, in quo possitis omnia tela nequissimi ignea extinguere. ¹⁷Et galeam salutis adsumite, et gladium spiritus, quod est verbum dei, ¹⁸per omnem orationem et obsecrationem orantes omni tempore in spiritu, et in ipso vigilantes in omni instantia et obsecratione pro omnibus sanctis, ¹⁹et pro me, ut detur mihi sermo in apertione oris mei cum fiducia notum facere mysterium evangelii, ²⁰pro quo legatione fungor in catena, ita ut in ipso audeam prout oportet me loqui. 31 ²¹Ut autem et sciatis vos quae circa me sunt, quid agam, omnia nota vobis faciet Tychicus carissimus frater et fidelis minister in domino, ²²quem misi ad vos in hoc ipsum, ut cognoscatis quae circa nos sunt et consoletur corda vestra. ²³Pax fratribus et caritas cum fide a deo patre et domino Iesu Christo. ²⁴Gratia cum omnibus qui diligunt dominum Iesum Christum in incorruptione.

THEOLOGY OF THE EPISTLE TO THE EPHESIANS.

God the Father. (i. 2.)

'The Father, from whom every family in heaven and on earth derives its name'—derives that which gives it a right to the title—and—that which truly makes it what it is. (iii. 14 and notes.)

'The Father of glory'—the source and the object of all revelation—'the God of our Lord Jesus Christ'—the God whom He acknowledges and at the same time reveals. (i. 17 and notes.)

'One God and Father of all (εἷς θεὸς καὶ πατὴρ πάντων), Who is over all and through all and in all.' (iv. 6.)

[The notes on this verse, as left by Dr Westcott, are probably to be regarded as incomplete.—More particularly the note on the words ὁ ἐπὶ πάντων καὶ διὰ πάντων καὶ ἐν πᾶσι would probably have been longer, had the Commentary received the author's final revision, and would have contained some further explanation of the statement that in these words 'the reference is not to the Person of the Father, but to the triune God—.' Comparison of c. v. 20, cited in the previous note on εἷς θεὸς κ. πατὴρ πάντων, indicates that here, as there, God the Father is contemplated as revealed by, and approached through, 'our Lord Jesus Christ,' the 'one Lord' of iv. 5.]

Cf. The Historic Faith, Lect. ix. p. 52, 1904 ed.:—'Looking then to this trust in a common redemption, let us hold fast our belief in one Church, in one Body of Christ knit together by the rites which He Himself appointed, one in virtue of the One Spirit Who guides each member severally as He will, of the One Saviour Who fulfils Himself in many ways, of the One God and Father of all, Who is over all and through all and in all.'

See also Gospel of St John, p. 3, note on Jo. i. 1: 'Thus we are led to conceive that the Divine nature is essentially in the Son and at the same time that the Son can be regarded, according to that which is His peculiar characteristic, in relation to God as God. He is the "image of God" (εἰκὼν τοῦ θεοῦ) and not simply of the Father.'

'Giving thanks always for all things in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ to our God and Father' (τῷ θεῷ καὶ πατρί). (v. 20.)

Christ.

(a) 'Grace to you and peace from God our Father and our Lord Jesus Christ.' (i. 2.)

'Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.' (i. 3.)

'He chose us in Him before the foundation of the world—having fore-ordained us unto adoption as sons through Jesus Christ unto Himself.' (i. 4, 5.)

'The Son of God.' (iv. 13.)

(b) The Divine counsel—now revealed—according to His gracious purpose—'to sum up all things in the Christ, the things in the heaven and the things in the earth.' (i. 10.)

'In Him' and 'through Him' and 'unto Him' (Col. i. 16) were all things made.

He is the 'first-born,' 'the beginning' of all creation. Man was formed in His Image; and in Him men find their consummation. The forces of Nature, so to speak, are revealed to us in the Bible as gathered together and crowned in man, and the diversities of men as gathered together and crowned in the Son of Man; and so we are encouraged to look forward to the end, to a unity of which every imaginary unity on earth is a phantom or a symbol, when the Will of the Father shall be accomplished and He shall sum up all things in Christ—all things and not simply all persons—both the things in the heavens and the things upon the earth. (Eph. i. 10.)

We see, inscribed upon the age-long annals in which the prophetic history of the world and of humanity has been written, the sentence of inextinguishable hope 'From God unto God.' We see when we look back upon the manifestation of the Divine plan that the order which we trace—nature, humanity, Christ—corresponds inversely with our earnest expectation of its fulfilment. Christ, the sons of God, nature. We see, in short, while we thus regard the universe, as we must do, under the limitation of succession, from first to last a supreme harmony underlying all things—a holy unity which shall hereafter crown and fulfil creation as one revelation of Infinite Love.

(Christus Consummator, pp. 103, 108, 111.)

'One Lord.' (iv. 5.)

(c) 'His grace, which He freely bestowed upon us in the Beloved.' (i. 6.)

'In Whom we have our redemption through His blood, the forgiveness of our trespasses.' (i. 7.)

'In the blood of Christ' (ii. 13) the Gentiles, once afar, were made near.

'For He,'—uniting—and reconciling—Jew and Gentile—'in one body—to God—proclaimed Peace'—glad tidings of peace—'to all far and near.' (ii. 14—17.)

'Through Him we have our access—to the Father' (ii. 18)—'freedom of access' (προσαγωγήν) and 'freedom of address' (παρησίαν)—and thus personal communion with God. (iii. 12.)

And an eternal purpose was thus fulfilled. The same Lord, Who is the stay of our faith and hope, is also the crown of the whole development of the world.

Through all the changes of time God prepared the way to the fulfilment of His counsel;—all creation and life tending to one end, now made manifest by the coming of the Son of God (iii. 11).

'Even as God also in Christ forgave—dealt graciously with (ἐχαρίσατο)—you.' (iv. 32.)

The thought of the lovingkindness of God in Christ leads St Paul to speak of the self-sacrifice of Christ.

'Walk in love, even as Christ also loved you and gave Himself up for you.' (v. 1.)

'Christ loved the Church and gave Himself up for it.' (v. 25.)

'The love of Christ which passeth knowledge' (iii. 19)—a love—answering to His very nature—including His love both for the Church and for the believer.

(d) The work 'which He wrought in the Christ, when He (1) raised Him from the dead and (2) set Him at His right hand in sovereign power. (i. 20 f.)

Exalted to the Heavens—invested with universal sovereignty (i. 22)—He is even now Head of His Church on earth (ib.)—and has exercised His sovereignty by the gift of His quickening grace. (ii. 1 f.)

The Christological passages in the Epistle [declare] that God is the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ (i. 3), that Jesus Christ is the Son of God (iv. 13), the Beloved (i. 6), the centre and source of blessing, sanctification, adoption, grace, redemption to believers (i. 3 ff.). One Lord (iv. 15), to Whom God has given universal dominion (i. 21 f.). He is the Head of the Church, His Body (i. 22 f., v. 23). In Him we were quickened, raised, set in heaven (iv. 5 f.), created 'for good works' (ii. 10). In Him the Gentiles are united with Israel in one body and reconciled

(ii. 13 f.). He is the chief corner-stone of the spiritual sanctuary (ii. 20): in Him and in the Church God's glory is revealed through all the ages (ii. 21). The Ascended Christ (i. 20) endows His Church (iv. 7 f.), which in and through Him reaches its completeness (iv. 16). In Him (Jesus) is Truth (iv. 21): He communicates Himself to His people (iv. 24). In Christ God forgives (iv. 32, cf. i. 7). Christ gave Himself an offering and a sacrifice to God for us (v. 2), gave Himself for the Church, to sanctify it (v. 25), is to it as husband to wife (v. 32). He is the source of light (v. 14), the saviour of the Body (v. 23).

Present to God before Creation (i. 4), He took flesh (ii. 5). By His Blood (i. 7) and Cross (ii. 6) He is to men the source of peace with God (i. 2, vi. 23). The Ascended Christ fills all things (iv. 10); in Him is the fulfilment of God's purpose (iii. 11):—the future kingdom is the 'kingdom of Christ and God' (v. 5): 'the wealth of Christ' is unsearchable (iii. 8). He dwells in the hearts of His people (iii. 17); our progress in the faith is measured by increasing knowledge of 'the Son of God' (iv. 13).

The Holy Spirit.

'Sealed with the Spirit of promise, the Holy Spirit.' (i. 13.)

The 'spirit of wisdom and revelation' (cf. i. 17) is a gift of the Paraclete.

'In one Spirit.' (ii. 18.)

The Spirit—the surrounding, sustaining power.

'Revealed to Christ's holy apostles and prophets in the Spirit.'
(iii. 5).

'That ye may be strengthened with power through His Spirit in the inward man.' (iii. 16.)

'Giving diligence to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace.' (iv. 3.) [But see note ad loc.]

'One body and one spirit, even as also ye were called in one hope of your calling.' (iv. 4.)

Here a personal reference to the Holy Spirit seems to be foreign to the context, though His work is recognised in the formation of the Church, and the informing spirit of the Christian Society is necessarily in fellowship with the Holy Spirit.

'And grieve not the Holy Spirit of God, in whom ye were sealed (cf. i. 13, Apoc. vii. 3 ff.) unto a day of redemption.' (iv. 30.)

'The sword of the Spirit.' (vi. 17.)

The sword which the Spirit provides and through which it acts.

With these Ephesian passages are to be compared Doctrine of the Holy Trinity.

By St John glimpses are opened to us of the absolute tri-personality of God. From the statement that 'God is Love'—Love involving a subject, and an object, and that which unites both—we gain the idea of a tri-personality in an Infinite Being. In the Unity of Him, Who is One, we acknowledge the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit, in the interrelation of Whom we can see Love fulfilled.

Other Apostolic writers, as St John elsewhere, deal with the Trinity revealed in the work of Redemption—the 'Economic Trinity.'

St Paul, in 1 Cor. xii. 4-6 had written: διαίρεσεις δὲ χαρισμάτων εἰσὶν, τὸ δὲ αὐτὸ πνεῦμα· καὶ διαίρεσεις διακονιῶν εἰσὶν, καὶ ὁ αὐτὸς κύριος· καὶ διαίρεσεις ἐνεργημάτων εἰσὶν, ὁ δὲ αὐτὸς θεὸς ὁ ἐνεργῶν τὰ πάντα ἐν πάσιν, in 2 Cor. xiii. 13 ἡ χάρις τ. κυρίου ἡμῶν Ἰ. Χρ. κ. ἡ ἀγάπη τ. θεοῦ κ. ἡ κοινωνία τ. ἀγίου πνεύματος μετὰ πάντων ὑμῶν, and in Rom. xv. 30 παρακαλῶ δὲ ὑμᾶς, διὰ τ. κυρίου ἡμῶν Ἰ. Χρ. κ. διὰ τ. ἀγάπης τοῦ πνεύματος συναγωνίσασθαί μοι ἐν τ. προσευχαῖς ὑπὲρ ἐμοῦ πρὸς τ. θεόν.

In the Epistle to the Ephesians the doctrine of the Holy Trinity is brought into sight in more than one passage.

First in the Hymn of Praise (i. 3-14) which immediately follows the opening salutation, the work of each Person of the Holy Trinity is shewn:—of the Father (ὁ θεὸς καὶ πατὴρ τοῦ κυρίου ἡμῶν Ἰ. Χρ.) in the eternal purpose of His love (vv. 4–6): of the Son (τ. ἡγαπημένῳ) in His Incarnation (vv. 7–12): of the Holy Spirit (τῷ πνεύματι τῆς ἐπαγγελίας τῷ ἀγίῳ) giving to believers the pledge of a larger hope.

Then in the passage (ii. 11–22) describing the union of Jews and Gentiles in one Divine Body, the doctrine of the Holy Trinity is based upon facts of Christian experience, St Paul declaring the message of Peace brought by Christ to be universally effective ‘because (ii. 18) through Him (Christ Jesus) we have our access in one Spirit (ἐν ἐνὶ πνεύματι) to the Father (πρὸς τὸν πατέρα).’

And in the parenthetical view (iv. 4–14) of the unity and manifold endowment of the Christian Society there is reference (vv. 4–6) to the Triune God, ruling, pervading, sustaining all; and the work is recognised of a Holy Spirit, of Christ Jesus our Lord, and of ‘One God and Father of all,’ made known by the Incarnate Son.

The Will of God.

(a) ‘Paul by the will of God an apostle of Christ Jesus.’ (i. 1.)

(b) ‘According to the good pleasure of His Will’ (i. 5):—where we see God’s Will as the expression of a gracious purpose.

‘Having made known the mystery of His Will’ (τὸ μυστήριον τοῦ θελήματος αὐτοῦ):—that is, the Divine counsel now revealed, which expressed His Will. (i. 9.)

‘According to the purpose of Him, Who worketh all things after the counsel of His Will.’ (i. 11.)

[v. inf. on ‘Predestination and Divine Purpose.’]

(c) ‘Doing the will of God—as servants of Christ.’ (vi. 6.)

The phrase ‘the will of the Lord (τ. κυρίου)’ occurs at v. 17 διὰ τοῦτο μὴ γίνεσθε ἄφρονες, ἀλλὰ συνίετε τί τὸ θέλημα τοῦ κυρίου, — and elsewhere only in Acts xxi. 14.

The World (ὁ κόσμος, ὁ αἰὼν).

Αἰὼν describes an age marked by a particular character: κόσμος the whole constitution of things.

(a) ‘He chose us in Him before the foundation of the world’ (πρὸ καταβολῆς κόσμου). (i. 4.)

The members of Christ are placed in an eternal relation to Christ their Head—beyond time, before all time.

(b) 'Without God (ἄθεοι) in the world (ἐν τῷ κόσμῳ). (ii. 12.)
'The world'—the order of the physical universe.

(c) 'Not only in this world—or age—(ἐν τούτῳ τῷ αἰῶνι), but 'also in that which is to come.' (i. 21.)

'That in the ages to come (ἐν τοῖς αἰῶσι τοῖς ἐπερχομένοις) He might shew the exceeding wealth of His grace.' (ii. 7.)

The Apostle looks forward to a succession of ages—units of the great age (iii. 21 εἰς πάσας τὰς γενεὰς τοῦ αἰῶνος τῶν αἰώνων).

(d) 'According to the course of this world' (κατὰ τὸν αἰῶνα τοῦ κόσμου τούτου). (ii. 2.)

Creation.

The phrase πρὸ καταβολῆς κόσμου is used also in 1 Pet. i. 20 of the work of Redemption in the Son (προεγνωσμένον μὲν πρὸ κατα-βολῆς κόσμου, φανερωθέντος δὲ ἐπ' ἐσχάτων τῶν χρόνων δι' ὑμᾶς) and in Jo. xvii. 24 of the love of the Father for the Son (ὅτι ἠγάπησάς με πρὸ καταβολῆς κόσμου). This is 'the only place where St Paul has it': but 'the idea of the designation of Messiah in the counsel of God before all worlds is expressed more or less distinctly in other language in Eph. i. 9, 10; iii. 9–11; Col. i. 26, 27; 2 Tim.
i. 9; cf. 1 Cor. ii. 7; Rom. xvi. 25' (Hort on 1 Pet. i. 20). The phrase is not used in the LXX. or elsewhere than in the N.T.

[Hort, however, l.c. compares Plutarch, Moral. ii. 956 A τὸ ἐξ ἀρχῆς καὶ ἄμα τῇ πρώτῃ καταβολῇ τῶν ἀνθρώπων.]

The corresponding phrase ἀπὸ καταβολῆς κόσμου, likewise not found in the LXX., is used in Heb. iv. 3 (τῶν ἔργων ἀπὸ καταβολῆς κόσμου γενηθέντων), ix. 26; Apoc. xiii. 8; xvii. 8 (ὃν οὐ γέγραπται τὸ ὄνομα ἐπὶ τὸ βιβλίον τῆς ζωῆς ἀπὸ καταβολῆς κόσμου); Mt. xxv.
34; Lk. xi. 50.

'In God, Who created all things (τῷ τὰ πάντα κτίσαντι)' has been hidden (iii. 9) from all time (ἀπὸ τῶν αἰώνων) an eternal purpose now made manifest and fulfilled by the coming of the Incarnate Son:—in Him, in the Christ, it was the purpose and good pleasure of God to sum up all things (i. 9 f.)—'the things in the heavens and the things upon the earth.'

Man in himself.

Body. Soul. Spirit.

Man's body: v. 29 ὡς τὰ ἑαυτῶν σώματα.

Man's soul: vi. 7 ἐκ ψυχῆς μετ' ἐννοίας δουλεύοντες.

Man's spirit: the highest part of his nature, by which he holds fellowship with God.

ii. 22. 'The Lord, in Whom ye also are builded together for a dwelling-place of God in the spirit (ἐν πνεύματι): cf. iii. 5.

iv. 23. 'And that ye be renewed in the spirit of your mind (τῷ πνεύματι τοῦ νοῦς ὑμῶν).

Contrast iv. 17 ἐν ματαιότητι τοῦ νοῦς αὐτῶν (of the Gentiles) and Col. ii. 18.

v. 18. 'But be filled in spirit (πληροῦσθε ἐν πνεύματι): where ἐν πνεύματι is opposed to ἐν σαρκί.

vi. 18. 'Praying at every season in spirit.'

The Heart (καρδία).

(a) 'To the end that, having the eyes of your heart (τοὺς ὀφθαλμοὺς τῆς καρδίας) enlightened, ye may know....' (i. 18.)

(b) The heart—the seat of character.

'That Christ may dwell in your hearts through faith.' (iii. 17.)

'Because of the hardening of their heart.' (iv. 18.)

'In singleness (ἀπλότητι) of heart (τῆς καρδίας ὑμῶν) as unto Christ'—i.e. without hypocrisy, as unto Christ, Who knoweth the hearts of men. (vi. 5.) So Col. iii. 22.

(c) 'Singing and making melody with your heart to the Lord.' (v. 19.)

The outward music to be accompanied by the inward music of the heart. So Col. iii. 16.

'That He may comfort (παρακαλέσῃ) your hearts.' So Col. iv. 8, ii. 2. (vi. 22.)

In Col. iii. 15 ἡ εἰρήνη τοῦ χριστοῦ βραβεύετω ἐν ταῖς καρδίαις ὑμῶν.

The Unseen World.

Of the relation of Man to the Unseen St Paul speaks

(a) in earlier Epistles:

1 Cor. ii. 9 f.: 'things which eye saw not and ear heard not.' (Is. lxiv. 4.)

2 Cor. iv. 18: 'while we look not at the things which are seen (τὰ βλεπόμενα), but at the things which are not seen (τὰ μὴ βλεπόμενα): for the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal.'

Rom. i. 20: 'For the invisible things (τὰ—ἀόρατα) of Him from the Creation of the world are clearly seen (καθορᾶται), being understood (νοούμενα) by means of the things that are made (τοῖς ποιήμασιν), even His everlasting power and Godhead.'

(b) in the Colossian and Ephesian Epistles.

Col. i. 15 ff.: 'things visible and things invisible—thrones or dominions or principalities or powers.'

Eph. i. 3: 'The God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, Who blessed us in all spiritual blessing in the heavenly order (ὁ εὐλογῆσας ἡμᾶς ἐν πάσῃ εὐλογία πνευματικῇ ἐν τοῖς ἐπουρανίοις) in Christ.'

Eph. i. 20: 'when He raised Him from the dead and made Him to sit at His right hand in the heavenly order (ἐν τ. ἐπουρανίοις).'

Eph. ii 6: 'raised us up with Him and made us to sit with Him in the heavenly order.'

Eph. iii. 10: 'to the intent that now to the principalities and the powers in the heavenly order may be made known through the church the manifold wisdom of God.'

Eph. vi. 12: 'our wrestling is—against the principalities, against the powers, against the world-rulers of this darkness, against the spiritual forces of wickedness in the heavenly order.'

Cf. Phil. iii. 20 ἡμῶν γὰρ τὸ πολίτευμα ἐν οὐρανοῖς ὑπάρχει, ἐξ οὗ καὶ σωτῆρα ἀπεκδεχόμεθα κ.τ.λ. and 2 Tim. iv. 18 ῥύσεται με ὁ κύριος ἀπὸ παντὸς ἔργου πονηροῦ, καὶ σώσει εἰς τὴν βασιλείαν αὐτοῦ τὴν ἐπουράνιον.

The expression τὰ ἐπουράνια [v. Add. Note, p. 152] is characteristic of the Epistle to the Ephesians.

At iii. 10 (v. supr.) we have reference to intelligences of the heavenly order, to whom 'the manifold wisdom of God' should be made known through the Church; while at ii. 2 is indicated organisation of powers of evil (κατὰ τὸν ἄρχοντα τῆς ἐξουσίας τοῦ ἀέρος), to whose assaults we are exposed, and at vi. 12 man's connexion with another—a spiritual—order, in which work powers of evil (πρὸς τὰ πνευματικὰ τῆς πονηρίας ἐν τ. ἐπουρανίοις).

The devil (ὁ διάβολος).

(a) 'Nor give place to the devil' (iv. 27)—'the devil'—the Tempter [to whom] unchecked passion leaves open the way.

(b) 'That ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil'—'the devil'—the supreme leader of the powers of evil.

The word does not occur elsewhere in St Paul except in the Pastoral Epistles (1 Tim. iii. 6, 7; 2 Tim. ii. 26).

(c) The title 'the Evil One' (ὁ πονηρός), occurring in Mt. v. 37, vi. 13, xiii. 19, 38; Jo. xvii. 15, and characteristic of the First Epistle of St John (ii. 13 f., iii. 12, v. 18 f.), is found Eph. vi. 16,—‘the shield of faith,’ whereby the Christian is ‘able to quench all the darts of the evil one that are set on fire,’—but not elsewhere in St Paul.

(d) ‘The prince of the power of the air’ (ii. 2)—a temporary and contingent power—is the ‘god of this world’ (ὁ θεὸς τοῦ αἰῶνος τούτου) of 2 Cor. iv. 4—a personal power [to whom] is subordinate the spirit which is active (τοῦ ἐνεργούντος) in the sons of disobedience—‘the prince (or ruler) of this world’ (ὁ ἄρχων τοῦ κόσμου τούτου) of Jo. xii. 31, xiv. 30, xvi. 11, [is] the one great enemy [of whom] all other enemies are, as it were, instruments.

Sin.

‘You, when you were dead through your trespasses (παραπτώμασιν) and sins (ἁμαρτίας), wherein aforetime ye walked according to the course of this world.....’ (ii. 1.)

‘Us, when we were dead through our trespasses, God quickened together with the Christ.’ (ii. 5.)

‘In Whom we have our redemption through His blood, the forgiveness of our trespasses.’ (i. 7.)

Predestination and Divine Purpose.

‘Having foreordained (προορίσας) us unto adoption as sons through Jesus Christ unto Himself.’ (i. 5.)

‘In Whom we were also made God’s portion, having been foreordained’ (προορισθέντες, praedestinati) to occupy this position ‘according to the purpose of Him, Who worketh all things after the counsel of His Will.’ (i. 11.)

The word προορίζειν occurring in these two verses of the Ephesian Letter, had previously been used by St Paul in two passages only of his Epistles, namely once in the First Epistle to the Corinthians (1 Cor. ii. 7) ‘But we speak a wisdom of God in a mystery, the wisdom which has been hidden, which God foreordained (προώρισεν) before the ages unto our glory,’ and twice, in one context, in the Epistle to the Romans (Rom. viii. 29 f.) ‘Because whom He foreknew (προέγνω), them He also foreordained (προώρισεν, praedestinavit) to be conformed to the image of His Son, that He might be the firstborn among many brethren: and whom He foreordained, them He also called: and whom He called, them He also justified; and whom He justified, them He also glorified.'

It occurs in no other Epistle.

But it is used in Acts iv. 28: 'to do whatsoever Thy hand and Thy counsel (ἡ χεὶρ σου κ. ἡ βουλή) foreordained to come to pass.'

The word πρόθεσις, used of 'purpose' generally Acts xi. 23, xxvii. 13, 2 Tim. iii. 10, is found (in connexion with προορίζειν) of God's eternal purpose in both the Roman and the Ephesian Epistles, and in no other excepting the Second Epistle to Timothy: and the verb προέθετο likewise occurs only in Romans and Ephesians.

In Rom. iii. 25 St Paul writes (ἐν Χρ. Ι.) ὃν προέθετο ὁ θεὸς ἱλαστήριον, 'Whom God set forth (R.V. marg. purposed) to be a propitiation': in viii. 28 'And we know that to them that love God all things work together for good, even to them that are called according to His purpose (τοῖς κατὰ πρόθεσιν κλητοῖς οὖσιν)': and in ix. 11 'that the purpose of God according to election (ἡ κατ' ἐκλογὴν πρόθεσις τοῦ θεοῦ) might stand.'

Here in the Epistle to the Ephesians we have i. 9 'according to His good pleasure, which He purposed (προέθετο) in Him,' i.e. in accordance with the gracious purpose which He set before Himself to accomplish in Him (sc. ἐν τῷ ἡγαπημένῳ): then i. 11 'foreordained according to the purpose (κατὰ πρόθεσιν) of Him, Who worketh all things after the counsel of His will (κατὰ τ. βουλήν τοῦ θελήματος αὐτοῦ): and lastly iii. 11 'according to a purpose of the ages (κατὰ πρόθεσιν τῶν αἰώνων) which He accomplished in the Christ, even Jesus our Lord.'

The word βουλή is used of God in Luke vii. 30, Acts ii. 23, xiii. 36, xx. 27, and in Heb. vi. 17 τὸ ἀμετάθετον τῆς βουλῆς αὐτοῦ, as well as in the passage in Acts above quoted (iv. 28) where it occurs with the verb προώρισε, and in the verse of this Epistle just cited (i. 11) in connexion with πρόθεσις. The 'counsel' referred to in the Epistle to the Hebrews was that of bringing universal blessing to men through the seed of Abraham: and so in this Epistle it is through Israel in old time, and now through the Christian Church, a new Israel, that the counsel of God is wrought out for the world.

Βούλεσθαι is used of the Divine purpose in 1 Cor. xii. 11 πάντα δὲ ταῦτα ἐνεργεῖ τὸ ἐν καὶ τὸ αὐτὸ πνεῦμα, διαιροῦν ἰδίᾳ ἐκάστῳ καθὼς βούλεται, Ja. i. 18, 2 Pet. iii. 9, Mt. xi. 27 (= Lk. x. 22), as well as in Heb. vi. 17 περισσότερον βουλόμενος ὁ θεὸς ἐπιδείξει κ.τ.λ.

(v. supr.), where, as elsewhere, it regards a purpose with respect to something else—God being minded to shew more abundantly to man's apprehension—and not (like θέλειν) a feeling in respect of the person 'willing' himself (cf. Col. i. 27 οἷς ἠθέλησεν ὁ θεὸς γνωρίσαι, τί τὸ πλοῦτος τῆς δόξης τ. μυστηρίου τούτου ἐν τ. ἔθνεσιν). The verb (βούλεσθαι) does not occur in the Ephesian Epistle.

The Will of God is not arbitrary, but guided by a settled counsel (βουλή).

The revelation of this Divine counsel—or 'mystery'—is thus the expression of His Will.

To the fulfilment of His counsel God prepared the way through all the changes of time unceasingly, and now at length the steps towards it can be seen.

By the coming of the Son of God an eternal purpose was fulfilled—a purpose eternally designed, if only lately disclosed.

With the Father purpose and work are one.

Historically, the great counsel of God, interrupted by man's sin, was accomplished by the redemptive work of Christ.

Redemption.

The words connected with the idea of 'redemption,' found in the New Testament (for their use in the LXX. see Add. Note on Heb. ix. 12, Hebrews, p. 295) are λύτρον, ἀντίλυτρον, λυτροῦσθαι, λυτρωτής, λύτρωσις, ἀπολύτρωσις.

Of these λύτρον alone occurs in the Gospels, and only in Mt. xx. 28 (= Mk. x. 45) δοῦναι τὴν ψυχὴν αὐτοῦ λύτρον ἀντι πολλῶν: while λυτρωτής is found only in Acts vii. 35, of Moses.

With the exception of the single occurrence of λύτρον in the Synoptic narrative, the whole group of words is confined to the Epistles of St Paul and writings (including 1 Peter) which are strongly coloured by his language. They are entirely absent from the writings of St John.

Of one or other of the three words λυτροῦσθαι, 'to redeem,' λύτρωσις, ἀπολύτρωσις, we have the following instances:

(a) In earlier Epistles of St Paul:

1 Cor. i. 30: 'in Christ Jesus, Who was made unto us (ἐγενήθη) wisdom from God, both righteousness and sanctification and redemption' (ἀπολύτρωσις).

Rom. iii. 24: 'being justified freely by His grace through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus' (διὰ τῆς ἀπολυτρώσεως τῆς ἐν Χριστῷ Ἰησοῦ).

Rom. viii. 23: 'the redemption of the body' (τ . ἀπολύτρωσιν τ. σώματος).

(b) In the Epistles of the Captivity:

Col. i. 14, and here in Eph. i. 7: 'in Whom we have our redemption' (ϵ ν ᾧ ἔχομεν τὴν ἀπολύτρωσιν)—the redemption which is the outcome of our faith—a redemption wrought by Christ 'through His blood' (v. 7)—'our redemption which is nothing less than the remission of our sins' (Lightfoot, Colossians, p. 137).

Eph. i. 14: 'unto the redemption of God's own possession' (ϵ ἰς ἀπολύτρωσιν τῆς περιποιήσεως)—this, and the consequent 'praise of His glory,' being the final cause of the work of Christ and of the Mission of the Spirit (v. 13).

Eph. iv. 30: 'in Whom ye were sealed unto a day of redemption' (ϵ ἰς ἡμέραν ἀπολυτρώσεως).

The 'redemption' is of captives from bondage—from the bondage of sin.

(c) In the Pastoral Epistles λ υτροῦσθαι occurs once: Tit. ii. 14 ἵνα λυτρώσῃται ἡμᾶς ἀπὸ πάσης ἀνομίας, and ἀντίλυτρον once, 1 Tim. ii. 6 Χριστὸς Ἰησοῦς, ὁ δὸς ἑαυτὸν ἀντίλυτρον ὑπὲρ πάντων.

(d) In 1 Peter i. 18 οὐ φθαρτοῖς...ἐλυτρώθητε ἐκ τῆς ματαίας ὑμῶν ἀναστροφῆς...ἀλλὰ τιμίῳ αἵματι—we have some 'words—apparently founded on Is. lii. 3 (οὐ μετὰ ἀργυρίου λυτρωθήσεσθε)': while 'the idea of the whole passage is—deliverance through the payment of a costly ransom by another' (Hort, ad loc.).

(e) In the Epistle to the Hebrews we have λύτρωσις at ix. 12 αἰωνίαν λύτρωσιν εὐράμενος and ἀπολύτρωσις at ix. 15 εἰς ἀπολύτρωσιν τῶν ἐπὶ τῇ πρώτῃ διαθήκῃ παραβάσεων as well as at xi. 35 οὐ προσδεξάμενοι τ. ἀπολύτρωσιν.

Christ 'entered in once for all into the Holy place, having obtained an eternal Redemption'—an eternal, not a temporary, deliverance for His people (οὐχ ἑαυτῷ, πῶς γὰρ ὁ ἀναμάρτητος; ἀλλὰ τῷ λαῷ αὐτοῦ. Oecumenius). He is Mediator of a New Covenant, that a death having taken place 'for redemption from the transgressions that were under the first covenant they that have been called may receive' what had been promised—an eternal inheritance.

(f) In the Synoptic Gospels, besides 'our Lord's saying in Mt. xx. 28 (= Mk. x. 45) "The Son of Man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister καὶ δοῦναι τὴν ψυχὴν αὐτοῦ λύτρον

(a ransom) ἀντὶ πολλῶν"—the starting-point of this and all similar language in the Epistles' (Hort on ἐλυτρώθητε, 1 Pet. i. 18)—we have

Lk. i. 68: ἐποίησεν λύτρωσιν τῷ λαῷ αὐτοῦ (from LXX. of Ps. cxī. 9 λύτρωσιν ἀπέστειλεν τῷ λαῷ αὐτοῦ).

Lk. ii. 38: τοῖς προσδεχομένοις λύτρωσιν Ἰσραήλ.

Lk. xxi. 28: ἀρχομένων δὲ τούτων γίνεσθαι ἀνακούψατε κ. ἐπάρατε τ. κεφαλὰς ὑμῶν, διότι ἐγγίξει ἡ ἀπολύτρωσις ὑμῶν.

Lk. xxiv. 21: ἠλπίζομεν ὅτι αὐτός ἐστιν ὁ μέλλον λυτροῦσθαι τὸν Ἰσραήλ.

In the Epistle to the Ephesians Redemption (ἀπολύτρωσις) is presented

(1) as wrought by Christ, Whose 'blood' in relation to the redemption and salvation of men, appears at i. 7 as that by means of which (διὰ τοῦ αἵματος αὐτοῦ) and at ii. 13 as that in which (ἐν τ. αἴμ. τ. χ.), as in an encompassing life and atmosphere, the believer is ransomed and lives;

(2) as made known by God to Christians in its universal power and as commensurate with the whole of Creation (i. 10, 21: cf. Col. i. 20, Phil. ii. 9, 10);

(3) in connexion with the gift of the Holy Spirit, whereby believers are 'sealed' (i. 13, iv. 30).

Further:

(4) in Eph. i. 7 'the Apostle defines τὴν ἀπολύτρωσιν as τὴν ἄφεσιν τῶν παραπτωμάτων' (Lightfoot on Col. i. 14). The past with its results is that which holds us in bondage. Not unlikely that some false interpretation of 'redemption' as a deliverance from the fetters of physical law caused the Apostle to emphasise its moral nature.

Atonement (Reconciliation).

In earlier Epistles (1 Cor., 2 Cor., Rom.) the words καταλλάσσειν and καταλλαγή are used in connexion with the death of Christ.

'The reconciliation is always represented as made to the Father. The reconciler is sometimes the Father Himself (2 Cor. v. 18, 19 ἐκ τοῦ θεοῦ τοῦ καταλλάξαντος ἡμᾶς ἑαυτῷ διὰ Χριστοῦ... θεὸς ἦν ἐν Χριστῷ κόσμον καταλλάσσειν ἑαυτῷ), sometimes the Son (Rom. v. 10, 11: cf. Eph. ii. 16).' (Lightfoot on Col. i. 20.)

‘In the Colossian and Ephesian Epistles the double compound ἀποκαταλλάσσειν is used...in place of the usual καταλλάσσειν. It may be compared with ἀποκατάστασις, Acts iii. 21.—The word ἀποκαταλλάσσειν corresponds to ἀπηλλοτριωμένους.. implying a restitution to a state from which they had fallen, or which was potentially theirs, or for which they were destined.’ (id. ib.)

As in Col. i. 19–22: ‘For it was the good pleasure of the Father that in Him should all the fulness dwell, and through Him to reconcile (ἀποκαταλλάξαι) all things unto Himself, having made peace (εἰρηνοποιήσας) through the blood of His cross; through Him—whether things upon the earth or things in the heavens;—and you, though ye were once estranged, and enemies in your mind in (the midst of) your evil works; yet now hath he reconciled (ἀποκατήλλαξεν: v.l. ἀποκατηλλάγητε) in the body of His flesh through death,—so here in Eph. ii. 16, the reconciliation of humanity to God by the Cross is expressed in the words καὶ ἀποκαταλλάξῃ...τῷ θεῷ διὰ τοῦ σταυροῦ, and Christ, Who thus Himself is our Peace (v. 14 αὐτὸς γὰρ ἐστὶν ἡ εἰρήνη ἡμῶν), and, after His victory, ‘proclaimed peace’ (v. 17) to all far and near, [is presented as] uniting and reconciling both Jew and Gentile in one body to God, abolishing the enmity, the twofold enmity, which the Fall had brought to men and the Law had fixed and revealed between themselves and towards God.

Forgiveness.

‘In Whom we have our redemption through His blood, the forgiveness of our trespasses’ (τὴν ἄφεσιν τῶν παραπτωμάτων). (i. 7.)

The word ἄφεσις occurs in the Pauline Epistles only here and in the parallel Col. i. 14 (τ. ἄφεσιν τ. ἁμαρτιῶν).

The verb ἀφιέναι in the sense of ‘forgive’ is not found in St Paul’s writings except (Rom. iv. 7) in a quotation from LXX. Ps. xxxii. 1.

But the verb χαρίζεσθαι, ‘deal graciously with’ is used by St Paul in eight Epistles (1 Cor., 2 Cor., Gal., Rom., Phil., Col., Eph. and Philem.) and in some of these passages (as in Lk. vii. 42 f.) ‘forgiving’ is [the bounty] specially [intended], namely in 2 Cor. ii. 7 ὥστε τοῦναντίον ὑμᾶς χαρίσασθαι, 10 ᾧ δέ τι χαρίζεσθε, κἀγώ· καὶ γὰρ ἐγὼ ὁ κεχάρισμαι, εἴ τι κεχάρισμαι, δι’ ὑμᾶς ἐν προσώπῳ Χριστοῦ, in Col. ii. 13 χαρισάμενος ἡμῖν πάντα τὰ παραπτώματα, ib. iii. 13 χαριζόμενοι ἑαυτοῖς.. καθὼς καὶ ὁ κύριος ἐχαρίσατο ὑμῖν οὕτως καὶ ὑμεῖς; and in this Epistle twice in the verse iv. 32: 'Be ye kind one to another, tender-hearted, forgiving each other even as God also in Christ forgave (ἐχαρίσατο) you.'

Grace (χάρις).

(a) The grace—the free and bounteous goodness—of God.

'Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.' (i. 2.)

'To the praise of the glory of His grace, which He freely bestowed upon us in the Beloved, in Whom we have our redemption through His blood, forgiveness of our trespasses, according to the riches of His grace.' (i. 7.)

'The exceeding riches of His grace.' (ii. 8.)

'By grace have ye been saved' (ii. 5)—'by grace—through faith' (v. 7.)

(b) Apostleship—a stewardship of the Grace of God.

'The administration (stewardship) of the grace of God which was given me to you-ward.' (iii. 2.)

'The gift of the grace of God that was given to me.' (iii. 7.)

'To me—was this grace given.' (v. 8.)

(c) Specific grace given to each member of the Christian Society.

'But to each one of us was the grace given according to the measure of the gift of Christ.' (iv. 7.)

'Grace be with all them that love the Lord Jesus Christ in incorruption.' (vi. 24.)

That which is elsewhere a Divine prerogative is, however, once (in iv. 29) attributed to human speech: 'no corrupt speech ...but whatever is good...that it may give grace to them that hear.'

Peace (εἰρήνη).

'Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ' (i. 2)—'Peace to the brethren—from God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ' (vi. 23).

Cf. Phil. iv. 7 'the peace of God,' Col. iii. 15 'the peace of Christ.'

The Divine gift of peace which (Jo. xiv. 27) the Lord in departing left behind as His bequest to His disciples (εἰρήνην ἀφ' ἡμῶν ὑμῶν, εἰρήνην τὴν ἐμὴν δίδωμι ὑμῶν)—the realised confidence of faith and fellowship with God—attends the Church during the period of gradual revelation.

‘For He’—He Himself and no other—‘is our Peace’ reconciling Jews and Gentiles in Himself—and both thus united in one body—to God (ii. 14). Thus ‘making peace’ (v. 15) He (v. 17) proclaimed ‘Peace to all.’

‘In preparedness of’ this ‘Gospel of Peace’ Christian warriors will stand. (vi. 15.)

‘To keep the unity of the spirit in the bond of peace.’ (iv. 3.)

Righteousness (δικαιοσύνη).

The fulfilment of duties to others.

‘The new man which has been created after God in righteousness and holiness of the truth.’ (iv. 24.)

‘For the fruit of light is—is shewn—in all goodness and righteousness and truth.’ (v. 9.) Cf. Is. xi. 5, xxxii. 17.

‘The breastplate of righteousness’ (vi. 14)—righteousness, which guards the heart.

So Isaiah lix. 17 ‘And he put on righteousness as a breastplate’ and Wisd. v. 19 ‘He shall put on righteousness (as) a breastplate’ (ἐνδύσεται θώρακα δικαιοσύνης).

Truth (ἀλήθεια).

(a) ‘The word—the message—of the truth—the Gospel of your salvation.’ (i. 13.)

For τὸν λόγον τῆς ἀληθείας cf. 2 Tim. ii. 15.

(b) ‘The new man, which hath been created after God in righteousness and holiness of the truth.’ (iv. 24.)

(c) ‘Wherefore putting away falsehood (τὸ ψεῦδος) speak ye truth each one with his neighbour.’ (iv. 25.)

From Zech. viii. 16 sq. λαλεῖτε ἀλήθειαν ἕκαστος πρὸς τὸν πλησίον αὐτοῦ, ἀλήθειαν καὶ κρίμα εἰρηνικὸν κρίνατε ἐν ταῖς πύλαις ὑμῶν, καὶ ἕκαστος τὴν κακίαν τοῦ πλησίον αὐτοῦ μὴ λογιζέσθαι ἐν ταῖς καρδίαις ὑμῶν, καὶ ὄρκον ψευδῆ μὴ ἀγαπᾶτε.

(d) ‘For the fruit of light is—is shewn—in all—in every form of—goodness and righteousness and truth.’ (v. 9.)

In Phil. i. 11 καρπὸν δικαιοσύνης (cf. Amos vi. 12, Prov. xi. 30, Ja. iii. 18 καρπὸς δὲ δικαιοσύνης ἐν εἰρήνῃ σπείρεται τοῖς ποιούσιν εἰρήνην), ‘righteousness in Christ [is regarded as] in its very nature fruitful: it is indeed the condition of bearing fruit’ (Lightfoot ad loc.)

(e) ‘Stand ye therefore,—having girded your loins with truth’ (vi. 14): truth—sincerity—the stay of the Christian character.

Revelation (ἀποκάλυψις).

- ‘a spirit of wisdom and revelation’ (i. 17).
- ‘by revelation was made known unto me the mystery’ (iii. 2).
- ‘as now it was revealed (ἀπεκαλύφθη) unto His holy apostles and prophets’ (iii. 5).

Knowledge and Wisdom.

The importance of Knowledge and Wisdom appears from the passages of the Epistle in which one or more of the words γνῶσις, ἐπίγνωσις [v. note on i. 17], σοφία, φρόνησις, or corresponding verbs or adjectives occur.

In addition to, and through the accomplishment of, his office of evangelising the Gentiles it was given to St Paul ‘to bring to light what is the dispensation of the mystery which from all ages has been hid in God Who created all things—hid, I say, to the intent that now to the principalities and the powers in the heavenly order may be made known (γνωρίσθη) through the Church the manifold wisdom (ἡ πολυποίκιλος σοφία) of God’ (iii. 9 f.).

And his thanksgiving (i. 16) for the faith of the readers of the Epistle is combined with prayer ‘that the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, may give unto you a spirit of wisdom and revelation in knowledge (ἐπιγνώσει) of Him’ (i. 17).

‘Επίγνωσις recurs iv. 13: ‘till we all attain unto the unity of the faith and of the knowledge of the Son of God’ (v. inf. s.v. Faith).

‘In all wisdom and prudence’ (i. 8) is the phrase (parallel to Col. i. 9 ἐν πάσῃ σοφίᾳ κ. συνέσει πνευματικῇ) describing the manner in which the grace of God was manifested in those on whom it was bestowed. Wisdom deals with principles: prudence with action. Through these gifts believers are enabled to trace (α) the connexion between successive revelations which He made ‘by divers portions and in divers manners,’ all leading up to the final revelation in His Son, (β) the complete and harmonious fulfilment of His earthly work in His Birth, Death, Resurrection, and Ascension, followed by the descent of the Holy Spirit, (γ) the signs of God’s counsel in the training of ‘the nations’ and in the slow realisation of manifold lessons of the Gospel in post-Christian history. Φρόνησις occurs in N.T. only here and Lk. i. 17; but φρόνιμος frequently, viz. (α) in Pauline Epistles: 1 Cor. iv. 10, x. 15, 2 Cor. xi. 19, Rom. xi. 25, xii. 16; (β) in Synoptic Gospels, Mt. vii. 24, x. 16, xxii. 45, xxv. 2, 4, 8, 9, Lk. xii. 42, xvi. 8.

While in i. 16 ff. the Apostle's prayer began with the thought of personal enlightenment, his prayer in iii. 16 ff. begins with the thought of personal strengthening, but a strengthening which shall issue in fuller knowledge (iii. 18 f.) 'that ye may be strong to apprehend (καταλαβέσθαι) with all the saints what is the breadth and length and height and depth, to know (γινῶναι) the love of Christ which passeth knowledge, that ye may be filled with all the fulness of God.' [Γνωσις here only in Eph.; Col. ii. 3, Phil. iii. 8.]

The other passages are :

v. 15 : 'Look therefore carefully how ye walk, not as unwise, but as wise (σόφοι).'

v. 17 : 'For this reason be not foolish, but understand (συνίετε) what the will of the Lord is.'

vi. 8 f. : 'Knowing (εἰδότες) that whatever good thing each man doeth, that shall he receive again from the Lord.'

'Knowing that their Master and yours is in heaven.'

[See Additional Note on 'Intellectual claims and gifts of the Gospel.']

Faith (πίστις).

(a) 'The faith which is among you (καθ' ὑμᾶς) in (i.e. grounded and resting in) the Lord Jesus.' (i. 15.)

(b) 'The faith shewn to all the saints' (ib.)—the practical expression of (a).

(c) 'Saved through faith (διὰ πίστεως)—by God's grace (τῆ χάριτι)—not of yourselves—not of works.' (ii. 8.)

(d) 'Freedom of address and access to God through our faith in Christ (διὰ τῆς πίστεως αὐτοῦ).' (iii. 12.)

(e) 'That Christ through faith (διὰ τῆς πίστεως) may dwell in your hearts.' (iii. 17.)

(f) 'One faith' (μία πίστις)—in its objective sense. (iv. 5.)

(g) 'The unity of the faith (τὴν ἐνότητα τῆς πίστεως) and of the knowledge (κ. τῆς ἐπιγνώσεως) of the Son of God'—the Son of God being the object of both—faith and knowledge. (iv. 13.)

Faith is a principle of knowledge. The special object of Faith is a Divine Person made known to men and recognised by them.

(h) 'The shield of faith' (τ. θυρεὸν τῆς πίστεως). (vi. 16.)

(i) 'Peace to the brethren and love with faith'—faith being the condition of appropriating God's gifts of peace and love. (vi. 23.)

Hope (ἐλπίς).

'The hope of His calling'—the hope—kindled and sustained in us by the fact that God has called us to His presence—the call being a Divine invitation. (i. 18.)

'Even as also ye were called in one hope of your calling'—the hope being [here] coincident with the calling. (iv. 4.)

'Apart from Christ—strangers to the covenants of the promise—having no hope (ἐλπίδα μὴ ἔχοντες) and without God in the world'—face to face with the problems of nature and life, but without Him in Whose wisdom and righteousness and love they could find rest and hope.

Love (ἀγάπη).

(a) 'God—for His great love (διὰ τὴν πολλὴν ἀγάπην αὐτοῦ) wherewith He loved us—quickened us.' (ii. 4.)

(b) 'And to know the love of Christ which passeth knowledge'—“including both His love for the Church and for the believer.” (iii. 19.)

(c) 'Peace be unto the brethren and love with faith from God the Father and Lord Jesus Christ'—peace and love being God's gifts and faith the condition of appropriating them. (vi. 23.)

(d) 'Be ye—imitators of God, as beloved children, and walk in love, even as Christ also loved you' (v. 1, 2)—the love of Christians answering to the love of Christ: cf. Jo. xiii. 34 ἐντολὴν καινὴν δίδωμι ὑμῖν, ἵνα ἀγαπᾶτε ἀλλήλους, καθὼς ἠγάπησα ὑμᾶς, ἵνα καὶ ὑμεῖς ἀγαπᾶτε ἀλλήλους (and xv. 12, and 1 Jo. iii. 16 sq.).

(e) 'That we should be holy and without blemish before Him in love'—love, which they have appropriated as God's great gift. (i. 4.)

(f) 'Forbearing one another in love.' (iv. 2.)

(g) 'Living the truth in love' (veritatem facientes): 'Christ—from Whom all the Body, fitly framed and knit together, through every contact, according to the effective working of that which is supplied in due measure by each several part, maketh for itself the growth of the Body, unto the building up of itself in love.' (iv. 15, 16.)

Truth and Love (2 Jo. 3) describe an intellectual harmony and a moral harmony; and the two correspond with each other according to their subject-matter.

Love is truth in human action; and truth is love in regard to the order of things.

(h) 'Rooted and grounded in love.' Love—the source of growth and the stay of endurance.

Light (φῶς).

(a) 'For ye were once darkness (σκότος), but now are light (φῶς) in the Lord (ἐν Κυρίῳ)—light in fellowship with Him, Who is the Light of the World.' (v. 8.) Cf. v. 14, ἐπιφάνσει σοι ὁ χριστός.

'Walk as children of light.' (ib.)

'For the fruit of light is in all goodness and righteousness and truth.' (v. 9.)

On the other hand, 'with the unfruitful works of darkness' the Christians must 'have no fellowship.' (v. 11.)

Darkness perishes in the presence of light:

'All things, when they are shewn in their true nature by the light are made manifest:—for everything which is made manifest is light (φῶς ἐστίν).' (v. 13.)

(b) 'Having the eyes of your heart enlightened (πεφωτισμένους).' (i. 18.)

(c) In addition to preaching the Gospel to the Gentiles, St Paul was called 'to bring to light (φωτίσαι) what is the dispensation of the mystery which from all ages hath been hid in God.' (iii. 9.)

Life (ζωή).

'Alienated from the life of God (τῆς ζωῆς τοῦ θεοῦ) —that life which answers to the nature of God and which He communicates to His children. (iv. 18.)

'But God—even when we were dead through our trespasses quickened us together with (συνεζωοποίησε) the Christ.' (ii. 5, 6.)

The word θάνατος, 'death,' is not found in the Epistle. But νεκρὸς τ. παραπτώμασιν occurs ii. 1, 5 (v. suppr.): while ἐκ νεκρῶν occurs i. 20, and ἐκ τῶν νεκρῶν (v. 14) in the Hymn 'Awake, thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead.'

Of the future resurrection of men nothing is [directly] said in the Epistle.

Good Works.

‘For it is His workmanship we are, created in Christ Jesus for good works (ἐπὶ ἔργοις ἀγαθοῖς) which God afore prepared that in them we should walk.’ (ii. 10.)

In Gal. v. 22, 23 ‘love, joy, peace, longsuffering, kindness, goodness, faithfulness (πίστις), meekness, temperance’ are as ‘fruit of the Spirit’ contrasted with ‘the works of the flesh.’

Here in Ephesians ‘the fruit of light,’ in contrast with ‘the fruitless works of darkness’ (v. 10), is said to be shewn ‘in all goodness and righteousness and truth’ (v. 9)—a classification of moral duties marking our obligation to self, our neighbour, God; while in another place (iv. 2) humility (ταπεινοφροσύνη), meekness (πραΰτης), and longsuffering (μακροθυμία) are named as graces, which Christians are bound to cultivate, ‘forbearing one another in love’ and living ‘in the bond of peace.’ Kindness (χρηστότης), joined with these in Col. iii. 12, stands in Ephesians (ii. 7) as a Divine attribute. But in iv. 32 St Paul speaks of the duty of Christians to be to one another kind (χρηστοί) and tender-hearted (ἔσπλαγχοι), and thus (v. 1) ‘imitators of God.’

Thanksgiving (εὐχαριστία).

‘But rather giving of thanks’ (v. 4)—our duty—recognising the signs of God’s love in every good thing.

‘Giving thanks (εὐχαριστοῦντες) always for all things in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ to our God and Father.’ (v. 20.)

So St Paul’s opening Hymn of Praise (i. 3—14) is followed by thanksgiving for the faith of the Ephesians:—

‘For this cause I also, having heard of the faith which is among you in the Lord Jesus, and which ye shew toward all the saints, cease not to give thanks for you.’

Prayer (προσευχή).

(a) ‘In all prayer (προσευχῆς) and supplication (δέησις), praying (προσευχόμενοι) at every season in spirit’—not in form or in word only, but in that part of our being through which we hold communion with God—and also ‘watching thereunto (εἰς αὐτὸ ἀγρυπνοῦντες) in all perseverance and supplication for all the saints.’

(b) So at i. 16 in the Epistle—after thanksgiving Prayer:—
‘making mention (of you) in my prayers (ἐπὶ τῶν προσευχῶν μου).

The Church.

(a) 'And He gave Him to be Head over all things to the Church, which is His body, the fulness of Him Who reaches His fulness through all things in all.' (i. 22 f.)

(b) 'That now to the principalities and the powers in the heavenly order may be made known through the Church the manifold wisdom of God.' (iii. 10.)

(c) 'To Him be the glory in the Church and in Christ Jesus unto all the generations of the age of the ages.' (iii. 21.)

(d) 'For a husband is head of the wife, as Christ also is Head of the Church, being Himself Saviour of the body. But as the Church is subject to Christ, so let the wives be to their husbands in everything. Husbands, love your wives even as Christ also loved the Church and gave Himself up for it;.....that He might present the Church to Himself a glorious Church, not having spot or wrinkle or any such thing.....' (v. 23—27.)

Cf. v. 29, 'nourisheth and cherisheth it, even as Christ the Church.'

'But I speak looking to Christ and to the Church.' (v. 32.)

The Communion of Saints.

'That we should be holy (ἀγίους) and without blemish before Him in love.' (i. 4.)

'The faith which is among you in the Lord Jesus and which ye shew to all the saints.' (i. 15.)

'But ye are fellow-citizens (συμπολίται) with the saints.' (ii. 19.)

'Which in other generations was not made known unto the sons of men as now it was revealed unto His holy apostles and prophets in the Spirit—that the Gentiles are fellow-partakers of the promise in Christ Jesus.' (iii. 5.)

'That being rooted and grounded in love ye may be strong enough to apprehend with all the saints what is the breadth.....' (iii. 17 f.)

'With a view to the perfecting of the saints for a work of ministry.' (iv. 12.)

'Watching thereunto in all perseverance and supplication for all the saints.' (vi. 18.)

Christian Sacraments—Baptism.

‘One Lord, one Faith, one Baptism’ (ἐν βάπτισμα). (iv. 5.)

‘That He might sanctify it (the Church), having cleansed it by the bath of water accompanied by a confession of faith (‘with a word’: ἐν ῥήματι).’ (v. 26.)

The ῥήμα—the Baptismal Confession—was, there can be little doubt, the simple creed that ‘Jesus is Lord’ (Rom. x. 9 ἐὰν ὁμολογήσῃς τὸ ῥήμα ἐν τῷ στόματί σου ὅτι κύριος Ἰησοῦς).

‘Detrahe verbum et quid est aqua nisi aqua? Accedit verbum ad elementum et fit sacramentum.’ (Aug. in Joh. lxxx. 3, on John xv. 3.)

Holy Communion.

To the Sacrament of Holy Communion there is no reference in the Epistle.

The Christian Ministry.

Mention is made (in iv. 11) of (a) ‘apostles,’ (b) ‘prophets,’ (c) ‘evangelists,’ (d) ‘pastors and teachers.’

But, while there is thus evidence of specialisation of functions, there is no sign in the Epistle of the existence of any outward organisation or ecclesiastical hierarchy.

„ St Matthew and St Mark, passim: they also use the sing. ἐν (τῷ) οὐρανῷ.

„ St Luke once only (x. 20): ἐγράφη ἐν τ. οὐρανοῖς.

In the Apocalypse and in the Gospel of St John only the singular is found.

The general idea of the phrase—which is not found in the LXX.—is that of ‘the heavenly order,’ the scene of the spiritual life with the realities which belong to it.

In Hebr. ix. 23 the phrase αὐτὰ τὰ ἐπουράνια expresses those things, answering to the sanctuary with all its furniture, which have their proper sphere in the heavenly order; while at viii. 5 it means the realities of heaven generally, of which the Tabernacle presented the ideas in figures—copy and shadow.

By faith τὰ ἐπουράνια are in one sense realised on earth. τὰ ἡμέτερα (says Theophylact, following Chrysostom) ἐπουράνια ὅταν γὰρ μηδὲν ἐπίγειον, ἀλλὰ πάντα πνευματικὰ ἐν τοῖς μυστηρίοις κ.τ.λ. ὅταν ἡμῶν τὸ πολίτευμα ἐν οὐρανοῖς ὑπάρχει, πῶς οὐκ ἐπουράνια τὰ καθ’ ἡμᾶς;

So Primasius: caelestia, id est spiritalia quae in veritate modo in ecclesia celebrantur.

In Jo. iii. 12, τὰ ἐπουράνια is used of the ‘heavenly’ in contrast with the ‘earthly’ elements of the Lord’s teaching—of those truths which belong to the higher order—which are in heaven and are brought down thence to earth as they can become to men.

As used in Ephesians, the phrase is peculiar to the Epistle (cf., however, ὁ ἐπουράνιος, sc. ἄνθρωπος, of 1 Cor. xv. 48 f.), and describes the supra-mundane, supra-sensual, eternal order—‘the spiritual world' generally, and not, as elsewhere, something which belongs to the spiritual order.

On the other hand, 'the metaphor of the heavenly citizenship' (Lightfoot on Phil. i. 27) occurs once in the Epistle to the Ephesians (ii. 19, συμπολῖται τ. ἁγίων) and twice in the Epistle to the Philippians, i. 27, πολιτεύεσθε ἀξίως τοῦ εὐαγγελίου τοῦ χριστοῦ (cf. Polyc. § 5), and iii. 20, where, after telling us that 'our citizenship is even now (ὑπάρχει) in heaven'—'for the Kingdom of Heaven is a present Kingdom' (Lightfoot ad loc.)—St Paul goes on to say, 'from heaven hereafter we look in patient hope (ἀπεκδεχόμεθα) for a deliverer' (id.)—'even the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall change the fashion of this body of our humiliation to be conformable to (σύμμορφον)—"take the abiding form of"—the body of His glory: "for such is the working of the mighty power whereby He is able to subdue all things alike unto Himself"' (id. ib.).

This universal sovereignty of the Lord Jesus Christ is again dwelt upon, in the same Epistle, at ii. 10, ἵνα ἐν τῷ δόγματι Ἰησοῦ πάντων γόνων κάμψῃ ἐπουρανίων καὶ ἐπιγείων καὶ καταχθονίων (cf. Ignat. Trall. § 9, βλεπόντων τῶν ἐπουρανίων κ. ἐπιγείων κ. ὑποχθονίων, and Polyc. Phil. § 2, ὃ ὑπετάγη τὰ πάντα, ἐπουράνια καὶ ἐπίγεια), where ἐπουράνια, as contrasted with ἐπίγεια and καταχθόνια, is (acc. to Lightfoot) not to be explained of one of three 'different classes of intelligent beings' (e.g. of 'angels')—'limitation to intelligent beings is not required by the expression'—but rather of 'all created things in heaven' (Lightfoot, Philippians, p. 110 f.).

Man's life is partly on earth, partly in the 'heavenly' realm.

There is one life which finds expression in many forms, but that life is greater, deeper than all.

This vast life, which reaches through all time, is in its nature beyond time.

In itself the spiritual life—of which the Communion of Saints is the foretaste—belongs to another order.

Yet—eternal life is here. Our blessings and our struggles lie now 'in the heavenly realms' (ἐν τοῖς ἐπουρανίοις).

The power by which we grasp the unseen—the eternal—is Faith.

ἐνέργεια and ἐνεργεῖν in the N.T.

In the New Testament ἐνέργεια and ἐνεργεῖν are characteristically used of moral and spiritual working, whether Divine (Eph. i. 19, iii. 7, Col. i. 29, ii. 12, Phil. iii. 21) or Satanic (2 Th. ii. 9, 11).

(a) Usage of St Paul.

1 Th. ii. 13. λόγον θεοῦ, ὃς καὶ ἐνεργεῖται ἐν ὑμῖν τοῖς πιστεύουσιν.

2 Th. ii. 7. τὸ γὰρ μυστήριον ἤδη ἐνεργεῖται τῆς ἀνομίας.

9. οὐ ἔστιν ἡ παρουσία κατ' ἐνέργειαν τοῦ σαταῆ.

11. πέμπει αὐτοῖς ὁ θεὸς ἐνέργειαν πλάνης.

1 Cor. xii. 6. καὶ διαιρέσεις ἐνεργημάτων εἰσὶν, ὁ δὲ αὐτὸς θεὸς ὁ ἐνεργῶν τὰ πάντα ἐν πᾶσιν. (Cf. v. 10 ἄλλω δὲ ἐνεργήματα δυνάμεων.)

1 Cor. xii. 11. πάντα δὲ ταῦτα ἐνεργεῖ τὸ ἐν καὶ τὸ αὐτὸ πνεῦμα.

2 Cor. i. 6. ὑπὲρ τῆς ὑμῶν παρακλήσεως τῆς ἐνεργουμένης ἐν ὑπομονῇ τῶν αὐτῶν παθημάτων.

2 Cor. iv. 12. ὥστε ὁ θάνατος ἐν ἡμῖν ἐνεργεῖται, ἡ δὲ ζωὴ ἐν ὑμῖν.

Gal. ii. 8. ὁ γὰρ ἐνεργήσας Πέτρῳ εἰς ἀποστολὴν τῆς περιτομῆς ἐνήργησεν ἐμοὶ εἰς τὰ ἔθνη.

Gal. iii. 5. ὁ οὖν ἐπιχορηγῶν ὑμῖν τὸ πνεῦμα καὶ ἐνεργῶν δυνάμεις ἐν ὑμῖν.

Gal. v. 6. πίστις δι' ἀγάπης ἐνεργουμένη.

Rom. vii. 5. τὰ παθήματα τῶν ἁμαρτιῶν τὰ διὰ τοῦ νόμου ἐνηργεῖτο ἐν τοῖς μέλεσιν ἡμῶν.

Phil. ii. 13. ὁ θεὸς—ὁ ἐνεργῶν ἐν ὑμῖν καὶ τὸ θέλειν καὶ τὸ ἐνεργεῖν ὑπὲρ τῆς εὐδοκίας.

Phil. iii. 21. κατὰ τὴν ἐνέργειαν τοῦ δύνασθαι αὐτὸν καὶ ὑποτάξει αὐτῷ τὰ πάντα.

Col. i. 29. κατὰ τὴν ἐνέργειαν αὐτοῦ τὴν ἐνεργουμένην ἐν ἐμοὶ ἐν δυνάμει.

Col. ii. 12. διὰ τῆς πίστεως τῆς ἐνεργείας τοῦ θεοῦ τοῦ ἐγείραντος αὐτὸν ἐκ νεκρῶν.

Eph. i. 11. τοῦ τὰ πάντα ἐνεργοῦντος κατὰ τὴν βουλήν τοῦ θελήματος αὐτοῦ.

Eph. i. 19 f. κατὰ τὴν ἐνέργειαν τοῦ κράτους τῆς ἰσχύος αὐτοῦ, ἣν ἐνήργηκεν ἐν τῷ χριστῷ ἐγείρας αὐτὸν ἐκ νεκρῶν.

Eph. ii. 2. τοῦ πνεύματος τοῦ νῦν ἐνεργοῦντος ἐν τοῖς υἱοῖς τῆς ἀπειθείας.

- Eph. iii. 7. κατὰ τὴν ἐνέργειαν τῆς δυνάμεως.
 20. κατὰ τὴν δύναμιν τὴν ἐνεργουμένην ἐν ἡμῖν.
 iv. 16. τῆς ἐπιχορηγίας κατ' ἐνέργειαν.

(β) Use in non-Pauline Books.

- Ja. v. 16. δέησις δικαίου ἐνεργουμένη.
 Mt. xiv. 2. αἱ δυνάμεις ἐνεργοῦσιν ἐν αὐτῷ. || Mk. vi. 14.

According to Lightfoot (on Gal. v. 6) ἐνεργεῖσθαι 'is never passive in St Paul,' but 'the Spirit of God or the spirit of evil ἐνεργεῖ; the human agent or the human mind ἐνεργεῖται' (middle).

The adjective ἐνεργής occurs 1 Cor. xvi. 6, Philem. 6, and Hebr. iv. 12.

Divine working is denoted in

1 Th. ii. 13. 'Ye accepted it not as the word of men, but, as it is in truth, the word of God, which also worketh in you that believe.'

1 Cor. xii. 6. 'And there are diversities of workings (ἐνεργημάτων), but the same God, who worketh (ὁ ἐνεργῶν) all things in all.' (Cf. v. 10 'workings of miracles.')

ib. v. 11. 'But all these worketh the one and the same Spirit, dividing to each one severally even as He will.'

2 Cor. i. 6. 'Or whether we be comforted, it is for your comfort, which worketh (ἐνεργεῖται) in the patient enduring of the same sufferings which we also suffer.'

Gal. ii. 8. 'For He that wrought for Peter (ὁ ἐνεργήσας Πέτρῳ) unto the apostleship of the circumcision wrought for me also unto the Gentiles.'

Gal. iii. 5. 'He that supplieth to you the Spirit and worketh miracles among you.'

Phil. ii. 13. 'God it is Who "worketh in you both to will and to work" in fulfilment of His good pleasure' ('His benevolent purpose,' Lightfoot, q.v.):

where 'the θέλειν and the ἐνεργεῖν correspond respectively to the "gratia praeveniens" and the "gratia cooperans" of a later theology' (Lightfoot ad loc.).

Phil. iii. 21. 'According to the working (i.e. by 'the exercise of the power,' Lightfoot ad loc.) whereby He is able also to subject all things unto Himself':

where, as in 'Eph. i. 19 τὴν ἐνέργειαν τοῦ κράτους τῆς ἰσχύος αὐτοῦ [and iii. 7 τὴν ἐνέργειαν τῆς δυνάμεως αὐτοῦ]. the expression τὴν ἐνέργειαν τοῦ δύνασθαι involves the common antithesis of δύναμις and ἐέργεια' (Lightfoot ad loc.).

Col. ii. 12. 'Through your faith in the working (τῆς ἐνεργείας) of God, Who raised Him from the dead.'

Eph. i. 11. 'Of Him, Who worketh all things after the counsel of His Will':

where the verb ἐνεργεῖν brings out the idea of the personal power which is operative rather than the result produced.

ib. v. 19. 'According to the working of the might of His strength.'

Eph. iii. 7. 'Whereof I became a minister according to the working of His power.'

ib. v. 20. 'According to the power that worketh in us.'

[where, as in Col. i. 29, 1 Th. ii. 13, and Gal. v. 6, the middle ἐνεργουμένην is used, apparently because there is a human agent transmitting the Divine energy.]

On the other hand Satanic working is denoted in

2 Th. ii. 7. 'For the mystery of lawlessness doth already work.'

ib. v. 9. 'Whose coming is according to the working of Satan with all power and signs and wonders of falsehood.' Cf. v. 11.

Eph. ii. 2. 'Of the spirit that now worketh in the sons of disobedience.'

Of the Ephesian passages [the first (i. 11) recalls] 1 Cor. xii. 6, 11 (v. supr.); [the next (i. 19) refers to] the active exercise of the power of God in the exaltation of Christ, [a third (iii. 7) shews how] the continuous working of His Power in the Apostle was a determining condition of his ministry, [another (iii. 20) tells us] that His power working in believers generally is the measure of that which He does. In ii. 2 the Ephesians [are reminded that] resisting the Will of God lays 'the sons of disobedience' open to the working of a personal power of evil. [For the meaning of κατ' ἐνεργείαν in iv. 16, v. note ad loc.].

Wisdom and Revelation (Eph. i. 17).

‘These Ephesian Christians had already received Divine illumination, or they would not have been Christians at all; but Paul prayed that the Divine Spirit who dwelt in them would make their vision clearer, keener, stronger, that the Divine power and love and greatness might be revealed to them far more fully. And perhaps in these days in which men are making such rapid discoveries in inferior provinces of thought, discoveries so fascinating and so exciting as to rival in interest, even for Christian men, the manifestation of God in Christ, there is exceptional need for the Church to pray that God would grant it “a spirit of wisdom and revelation”; if He were to answer that prayer, we should no longer be dazzled by the knowledge which relates to “things seen and temporal,” it would be outshone by the transcendent glory of “things unseen and eternal.”’

‘By the inspiration which was granted to Jewish prophets they saw in the history of their nation—as their uninspired contemporaries did not see—the Divine laws which the history illustrated.

The inspiration which was granted to apostles enabled them to discover what was already contained in the life, teaching, death and resurrection of the Lord Jesus Christ. Special revelations were given to them: . . . but the main substance of what they knew about God and the Divine method of human redemption they discovered in the history and teaching of Christ. Their inspiration enabled them to see what that revelation of God really meant. . . . The great revelation was made in Christ; the inspiration of the apostles enabled them to see the truths and laws which the revelation contained.

And so the “spirit of wisdom” may also be called the “spirit of revelation”; for until the spirit of wisdom is given, the revelation is unintelligible. It becomes an actual revelation when it is understood.

To the apostles inspiration was given in an exceptional measure. They were appointed by the Lord Jesus Christ to lay the foundations of the Christian Church. They had authority to teach all nations in His name. Later ages were to learn His mind from their lips . . .

 But in kind the inspiration of the apostles was the same as that which St Paul prayed might be granted to the Christians at Ephesus, the same as that which we ourselves may hope to receive from God.'

(id. ib. pp. 135 ff.)

'Perhaps the safest description of the gift which is promised to all Christians is that which is contained in the text. It is the "spirit of wisdom." It is not a blind impulse, resulting in a conviction having no intelligible grounds; it is not an impression having nothing to justify it except the obstinacy with which we hold to it. When the Spirit of God illuminates the mind, we see the meaning of what Christ said and of what Christ did. We simply find what was in the Christian revelation from the beginning.'

(id. ib. p. 142.)

'If I am asked how we are to distinguish between what is revealed to us by the Spirit of God and what we discover by the energy and penetration of our own thought, I can only reply that the question seems to me to rest on a misconception of the nature of spiritual illumination. The "wisdom" which the Spirit grants us is not a "wisdom" separable from the ordinary activity and discernment of our own minds; it is not something alien to our own higher life; it becomes our own wisdom, just as the vision which Christ miraculously restored to blind men was not something foreign to them, but their own. They saw what before they had only handled, and the nobler sense revealed to them what the inferior sense could not make known; they saw for themselves what they had only heard of from others. The reality of the supernatural work was ascertained by the new discoveries it enabled them to make of the world in which they were living. Analogous effects follow the illumination of the Holy Spirit. When the "spirit of wisdom and revelation" is granted to us, "the eyes" of our heart, to use Paul's phrase in the next verse, are "enlightened" —our own eyes,—and we see the glory of God.'

(id. ib. p. 142 f.)

In 1 Cor. ii.—the main Pauline passage—St Paul has spoken of a ‘wisdom—not of this world (οὐ τοῦ αἰῶνος τούτου) nor of the rulers of this world’ (v. 6)—a wisdom ‘that hath been hidden’—‘God’s wisdom’ which ‘we speak—in a mystery’—wisdom ‘which God pre-ordained before the world unto our glory’ (v. 7). For ‘unto us God through the Spirit revealed—even the deep things of God’ (v. 11)—things ‘which eye saw not, and ear heard not (Is. lxiv. 4) and which came not up into man’s heart’ (v. 9)—things which ‘God prepared for them that love Him.’

‘Through the Spirit.’ For ‘the Spirit searcheth (ἐραυνᾷ) all things’: and as none ‘knoweth the things of a man, save the spirit of the man which is in him, so none knoweth the things of God save the Spirit of God’ (v. 10) Now ‘we, that we may know the things freely given us by God,’ have received—not the spirit of the world (τοῦ κόσμου), but—the Spirit which is from God (τὸ πνεῦμα τὸ ἐκ τοῦ θεοῦ). Now a ‘natural man’ (ψυχικὸς ἄνθρωπος) receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God—they are foolishness to him—he cannot know them—because they are judged spiritually. But the spiritual man (ὁ πνευματικὸς) judgeth all things.’

This ‘wisdom’—God’s wisdom—‘we speak (says St Paul in v. 6) among the full-grown’ (ἐν τοῖς τελείοις).

In the Epistle to the Ephesians St Paul tells of God’s grace abounding (cf. i. 8) ‘in all wisdom and prudence’:—and (v. i. 17) of his prayers to God—‘making mention of you in my prayers’—for ‘a spirit of wisdom and revelation in the knowledge of Him’—‘having the eyes of your heart enlightened (v. 18) that ye may know.’

At ii. 6 he contemplates Christians ‘saved by grace’ in contact with the heavenly order; and then (v. 11) all, that is realised in time through faith, is seen to be of God’s ordering. Among the great mysteries of the faith, which he has prayed that the Ephesians may be enabled to understand, is that of the vital unity—the ‘one man’—of ii. 10—wherein Christ, by the assumption of human nature, by His death, united in one body and ‘reconciled’ to God, Jews and Gentiles.

But ‘to comprehend (καταλαβέσθαι) what is the breadth and length and height and depth, and to know the love of Christ’—a ‘love which passeth knowledge (iii. 18)—to know that which never can be known—the co-operation of all is required (σὺν πᾶσι τ. ἀγίοις). Consecration is the condition of such knowledge. There is need of effort. And there is a corresponding power—God's gift: His 'power working in us' (iii. 20 f.).

In the unity of the Christian body each of its members has his part, a special function and a special endowment. (iv. 7. 'But to each one of us was the grace given according to the measure of the gift of the Christ').

Yet unity of knowledge, as of faith,—of the faith and knowledge of the Son of God—is the final issue and limit of the work and manifold ministry of all.

Appropriation of the truth is not intellectual only, but is expressed in character and action (iv. 15, ἀληθεύοντες ἐν ἀγάπῃ).

The spring of all error is ignorance, or forgetfulness, of God. So it was with 'the Gentiles' (τὰ ἔθνη). And this 'ignorance (ἄγνοια) which was in them' was due to moral conditions (διὰ τ. πώρωσιν τ. καρδίας αὐτῶν).

The Christian is to have [in him], and to be, light (φῶς)—light is fellowship with Him, Who is the Light of the World (Jo. viii. 12: cf. Mt. v. 14). And the life in light is shewn in moral duties—'in every form of goodness and righteousness and truth'—the good, the right, the true.

In action—there is need of moral discrimination (v. 10 δοκιμάζοιτες τί ἐστὶν εὐάρεστον τῷ κυρίῳ), and of effort and carefulness in wise conduct, (15 f.) μὴ ὡς ἄσοφοι, ἀλλ' ὡς σόφοι), need to 'understand (συνίετε) what the will of the Lord is.'

In the imperfect, transitory relations of earthly life (vi. 6 ff.) higher duties are involved:—'servants' must remember (εἰδότες) that service is rendered to Christ, 'masters' must remember (εἰδότες) that in heaven the servants' Master is their own also.

In conflict with the spiritual hosts of wickedness (vi. 12 f.) the Christian warrior stands having his 'loins girded with truth.' He applies truth to life.

Religion includes thought or knowledge, as well as feeling and action. Each of these three implies, needs, and is strengthened by the other two. Knowledge in excess leads to Gnosticism or to dead orthodoxy. But realisation in thought of absolute Truth as revealed in the Incarnation is apprehension of a fact, which can be made the basis of a Science and yet is not for speculation only or for aesthetic contemplation only, but is essentially ethical.

The Sacrament of Baptism.

The rite of Baptism was connected with the work of Messiah by the prophets Ezekiel and Zechariah.

Ezek. xxxvi. 25 f. : 'And I will sprinkle clean water upon you, and ye shall be clean: from all your filthiness and from all your idols will I cleanse you. A new heart also will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you: and I will take away the stony heart out of your flesh, and I will give you an heart of flesh.'

Zech. xiii. 1: 'In that day there shall be a fountain opened to the house of David and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem for sin and for uncleanness.'

(Cf. Is. lii. 15.)

We cannot but believe that Christ, when (Jo. iii. 22, 25) He administered a baptism through His disciples (iv. 2), explained to those, who offered themselves, the new birth which John's baptism and this preparatory cleansing typified. At the same time He may have indicated, as to Nicodemus (iii. 5 f.), the future establishment of Christian Baptism, the sacrament of the new birth.

The sacrament of Baptism presupposes the Death and Resurrection of Christ.

In St John's record of the incident of the 'feet-washing' (Jo. xiii. 4—14), where the symbolic meaning of the act as a process of cleansing is introduced at v. 10; 'He that is bathed needs not save to wash his feet,' it seems impossible not to see a foreshadowing of the idea of Christian Baptism in the word 'bathed' (Jo. xiii. 8 ὁ λελουμένος) as contrasted with 'wash' (id. ib. νύσασθαι).

There is, however, no evidence to shew that the Apostles themselves were baptized unless with John's baptism. The 'bathing' in their case consisted in direct intercourse and union with Christ (cf. Jo. xv. 3, 'Already ye are clean because of the word which I have spoken unto you').

It was His office to baptize with the Spirit. So Jo. i. 33: 'the same is He which baptizeth with (or 'in') the Holy Spirit': the Holy Spirit being the atmosphere, the element of the new life. The transference of the image of baptism to the impartment of the Holy Spirit was prepared by such passages as Joel ii. 28 (quoted in Acts ii. 17), 'and it shall come to pass afterward that I will pour out of my Spirit upon all flesh.'

In Jo. iii. 5, 'Except a man be born of water and (the) Spirit (ἐξ ὕδατος κ. πνεύματος)' the preposition used (ἐξ) recalls the phrase (Mt.

iii. 11) 'I baptize (plunge) you in water; He shall baptize you in Holy Spirit and fire,'—so that the image suggested is that of rising, reborn, out of the water and out of the spiritual element, so to speak, to which the water outwardly corresponds. The combination of the words water and spirit suggests a remote parallel and a marked contrast. They carry back the thoughts of hearer and reader to the narrative of Creation (Gen. i. 2), when the Spirit of God brooded on the face of the waters. But (2) Water symbolizes purification and Spirit quickening: the one implies a definite external rite, the other indicates an energetic internal operation. The two are co-ordinate, correlative, complementary. Interpretations, which treat the term water here as simply figurative, are essentially defective. The words, taken in their immediate meaning, set forth as required before entrance into the Kingdom of God the acceptance of the preliminary rite Divinely sanctioned—John's baptism—which was the seal of repentance (Mt. iii. 11, εἰς μετάνοιαν) and so of forgiveness, and, following on this, the communication of a new life, resulting from the direct action of the Holy Ghost through Christ. But they have also a fuller sense, a final and complete sense for us. They look forward to the fulness of the Christian dispensation.

After the Resurrection the baptism of water was no longer separated from, but united with, the baptism of the Spirit—united with it in the "laver of regeneration" (Titus iii. 5 ἕσσωσεν ἡμᾶς διὰ λουτροῦ παλιγγενεσίας καὶ ἀτακρινώσεως πνεύματος ἁγίου), even as the outward and the inward are united generally in a religion which is sacramental and not only typical.

Christian baptism, the outward act of faith welcoming the promise of God, is incorporation into the Body of Christ [cf. 1 Cor. xii. 13, Gal. iii. 27]; and so being born (the birth) 'of the Spirit' is potentially united with being born (the birth) 'of water.' The general inseparability of these two is indicated (in Jo. iii. 5) by the form of the expression 'born of water and Spirit' (ἐξ ὕδατος καὶ πνεύματος) as distinguished from the double phrase 'born of water and of Spirit' (καὶ ἐκ πνεύματος).

With the διὰ λουτροῦ παλιγγενεσίας of Tit. iii. 5 may be compared τῷ λουτρῷ τοῦ ὕδατος of Eph. v. 26. Here the initiatory sacrament of Baptism is the hallowing of the Bride. In this she is at once cleansed and hallowed (ἵνα αὐτὴν ἀγάσῃ καθαρίστας). The actions are coincident.

To the Corinthians St Paul had written (1 Cor. vi. 11): 'But ye were washed (ἀπελούσασθε), but ye were sanctified (ἡγιάσθητε), but ye were justified in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ and in the Spirit of our God'; and (xii. 13) 'For in one Spirit we all were baptized into one Body.'

And to the Romans (Rom. vi. 3): 'all we who were baptized into Christ Jesus were baptized into His death. We were buried therefore with Him through our Baptism (διὰ τοῦ βαπτίσματος) into death: that like as Christ was raised from the dead through the glory of the Father, so we might also walk in newness of life.'

In the Epistle to the Colossians these 'two complementary aspects of baptism' (Lightfoot ad loc.) appear in the passage ii. 18 (parallel to Eph. ii. 45): 'being buried with Him (συνταφέντες αὐτῷ) in the act of baptism (ἐν τῷ βαπτισμῷ), in Whom also ye were raised together with Him (συνηγέρθητε) through your faith in the operation (the working) of God, Who raised Him from the dead and quickened together with Him you, that were dead by reason of your transgressions' [v. Lightfoot's note].

Here in the Epistle to the Ephesians St Paul (at iv. 4—6) lays open a view of the unity of the whole Christian Society in its objective foundation: and while (a) its unity is established by the acknowledgment of one Lord: and (b) in proclaiming that 'Jesus is Lord,' it confesses one Faith: (c) it is entered by one Baptism. [Cf. 1 Cor. xii. 13.]

And of this 'material act' that confession (ῥῆμα) is the spiritual accompaniment, a Confession involved in, and implying the acceptance of, the Baptismal formula (Mt. xxviii. 19) 'Into the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost.'

The 'teaching of baptisms' (βαπτισμῶν διδαχὴν) of Heb. vi. 2, where the plural and the peculiar form seem used to include Christian Baptism and other lustral rites, would naturally be directed to shew their essential difference. And the 'different washings' (διαφόροις βαπτισμοῖς) to which reference is made in the same Epistle (ix. 10) as accompaniments of the Levitical offerings (cf. Ex. xxix. 4, Lev. xi. 25 ff., xvi. 4, 24 f., Num. viii. 7, xix. 17) recall the 'washings, or baptizings, of cups and pots and brazen vessels' (βαπτισμοὺς ποτηρίων καὶ ξεστῶν καὶ χαλκίων) and other ceremonial lustrations (κ. ἀπ' ἀγορᾶς ἐὰν μὴ ῥαντίσωνται—v. l. βαπτίσωνται—οὐκ ἐσθίουσιν) of Mk. vii. 4 [v. Swete ad loc.].

The outward rite draws its virtue from the action of the Spirit.

On 'Sin' in the Pauline Epistles.

Apostolic writers distinguish clearly between 'sin,' the principle, and 'sins,' specific acts.

1. Sin (ἁμαρτία, ἡ ἁμαρτία).

The singular is found (apart from 2 Th. ii. 3, where B has ἀνομίας) in four only of the Pauline Epistles, namely those of the second group, 1 and 2 Corinthians, Galatians, and Romans :

1 Cor. xv. 56. τὸ δὲ κέντρον τ. θανάτου ἡ ἁμαρτία, ἡ δὲ δύναμις τῆς ἁμαρτίας ὁ νόμος.

2 Cor. v. 21. τὸν μὴ γινόντα ἁμαρτίαν ὑπὲρ ἡμῶν ἁμαρτίαν ἐποίησεν.

2 Cor. xi. 7. ἡ ἁμαρτίαν ἐποίησα ἐμαντὸν ταπεινῶν.....;

Gal. ii. 17. ἄρα Χριστὸς ἁμαρτίας διάκονος;

iii. 22. συνέκλεισεν ἡ γραφὴ τὰ πάντα ὑπὸ ἁμαρτίαν.

Rom. iii.—viii. passim.

xiv. 21. πᾶν δὲ ὃ οὐκ ἐκ πίστεως ἁμαρτία ἐστίν.

Neither ἁμαρτία, nor ἡ ἁμαρτία, in the singular occurs in the Epistle to the Ephesians or any of the Epistles of the Captivity, nor yet in the Pastoral Epistles.

2. Sins (ἁμαρτίαι).

The plural is found in all groups of the Pauline Epistles.

(a) 1 Th. ii. 16. εἰς τὸ ἀναπληρῶσαι αὐτῶν τὰς ἁμαρτίας πάντοτε.

1 Cor. xv. 3. Χριστὸς ἀπέθανεν ὑπὲρ τῶν ἁμαρτιῶν ἡμῶν κατὰ τὰς γραφάς.

1 Cor. xv. 17. ἔτι ἐστὲ ἐν ταῖς ἁμαρτίαις.

Gal. i. 4. τοῦ δόντος ἑαυτὸν ὑπὲρ τῶν ἁμαρτιῶν ἡμῶν.

(b) Col. i. 14. τὴν ἄφεσιν τῶν ἁμαρτιῶν.

Eph. ii. 1. νεκροὺς τοῖς παραπτώμασιν καὶ ταῖς ἁμαρτίαις ὑμῶν.

(c) 1 Tim. v. 22. ἁμαρτίαις ἀλλοτρίαις.

v. 24. τινῶν ἀνθρώπων αἱ ἁμαρτίαι πρόδηλοί εἰσιν, προάγουσαι εἰς κρίσιν, τισὶν δὲ καὶ ἐπακολουθοῦσιν.

2 Tim. iii. 6. γυναικάρια σεσωρευμένα ἁμαρτίαις.

3. The word ἁμαρτήμα occurs 1 Cor. vi. 18 πᾶν ἁμαρτήμα ὃ ἐν ποιήσει ἀνθρώπος, Rom. iii. 25 διὰ τὴν πάρεσιν τ. προγεγονότων ἁμαρτημάτων, —and Rom. v. 16.

The verb ἀμαρτάνειν, ἀμαρτεῖν is used by St Paul as follows :

(a) 1 Cor. vi. 18, vii. 28, 36, viii. 12, xv. 34.

Rom. ii. 12, iii. 23, v. 12, 14, 16, vi. 15.

(b) Eph. iv. 26. ὀργίζεσθε καὶ μὴ ἀμαρτάνετε.

(c) 1 Tim. v. 20. τοὺς ἀμαρτάνοντας ἐνώπιον πάντων ἔλεγχε.

Tit. iii. 11. εἰδὼς ὅτι ἐξεστράπτει ὁ τοιοῦτος κ. ἀμαρτάνει.

The word παράπτωμα, 'trespass,' bringing out the idea of violation of a definite law, occurs

(a) repeatedly in Romans, iv. 25, v. 15—29, xi. 11, 12, as well as in 2 Cor. v. 19 and Gal. vi. 1.

(b) in the Epistles of the Captivity, Col. ii. 13, where παραπτώματα are 'actual definite transgressions' (Lightfoot ad loc.), Eph. i. 7 τ. ἄφεσιν τ. παραπτώματων, ii. 1 τ. παραπτώμασιν κ. τ. ἀμαρτίας (v. supr.), and ii. 5.

The word παραβάσις, 'transgression,' occurs Gal. iii. 19 τῶν παραβάσεων χάριν, Rom. ii. 23 τῆς παραβάσεως τ. νόμου, iv. 15 οὐ γὰρ οὐκ ἔστι νόμος, οὐδὲ παράβασις, v. 14 τ. π. Ἀδάμ, and 1 Tim. ii. 14.

The Fall of Man.

The story of the Fall is the Divine parable of the origin of sin ; implying self-assertion and violation of dependence,—seeking not a wrong end, but a right end in a wrong way.

We know so little of our spiritual relations one to another that there is no greater difficulty in supposing that the earthly destiny of humanity was imperilled in a representative than in believing (as we do) that the restoration of humanity was obtained by the Son of Man.

In any case this is the simplest way of presenting a fact which is universal.

The consequence of self-assertion necessarily descended to all generations. (See Hegel's analysis of the Fall in his 'Logic.')

It is most important to notice that it is not 'death' as the passage to another order, but the circumstances of death, which are due to sin.

The effects of an act may be retrospective as well as prospective ; that is to say, the certainty that something will be modifies what goes before.

The Kingdom of God,—Kingdom of Christ.

A. Usage of St Paul.

(a) 1 Th. ii. 12. ἀξίως τ. θεοῦ τοῦ καλοῦντος ὑμᾶς εἰς τὴν ἑαυτοῦ βασιλείαν κ. δόξαν.

2 Th. i. 5. εἰς τὸ καταξιωθῆναι ὑμᾶς τῆς βασιλείας τοῦ θεοῦ.

1 Cor. iv. 20. οὐ γὰρ ἐν λόγῳ ἢ βασιλείᾳ τοῦ θεοῦ, ἀλλ' ἐν δυνάμει.

1 Cor. vi. 9. ἢ οὐκ οἴδατε ὅτι ἄδικοι θεοῦ βασιλείαν οὐ κληρονομήσουσιν; (Cf. v. 10.)

1 Cor. xv. 24. εἶτα τὸ τέλος, ὅταν παραδιδῷ τὴν βασιλείαν τῷ θεῷ καὶ πατρί.

1 Cor. xv. 50. σὰρξ καὶ αἷμα βασιλείαν θεοῦ κληρονομήσαι οὐ δύναται.

Gal. v. 21. οἱ τοιαῦτα πράσσοντες βασιλείαν θεοῦ οὐ κληρονομήσουσιν.

Rom. xiv. 17. οὐ γὰρ ἐστὶν ἡ βασιλεία τ. θεοῦ βρῶσις καὶ πόσις, ἀλλὰ δικαιοσύνη καὶ εἰρήνη καὶ χαρὰ ἐν πνεύματι ἁγίῳ.

(b) Col. i. 13. ὃς ἐρύσατο ἡμᾶς ἐκ τῆς ἐξουσίας τοῦ σκοτοῦ καὶ μετέστησεν εἰς τὴν βασιλείαν τοῦ νιοῦ τῆς ἀγάπης αὐτοῦ.

Col. iv. 11. συνεργοὶ εἰς τὴν βασιλείαν τοῦ θεοῦ.

Eph. v. 5. ἐν τῇ βασιλείᾳ τοῦ χριστοῦ καὶ θεοῦ.

(c) 2 Tim. iv. 1. Χριστοῦ Ἰησοῦ, τοῦ μέλλοντος κρίνειν ζῶντας κ. νεκρούς, καὶ τὴν ἐπιφάνειαν αὐτοῦ καὶ τὴν βασιλείαν αὐτοῦ.

2 Tim. iv. 18. ῥύσεται με ὁ κύριος ἀπὸ παντὸς ἔργου πονηροῦ κ. σώσει εἰς τὴν βασιλείαν αὐτοῦ τὴν ἐπουράνιον.

B. Use in other Epistles.

(a) Heb. i. 8. ἡ ῥαβδὸς τῆς βασιλείας (from LXX. of Ps. xlv. 7).
xii. 28. βασιλείαν ἀσάλευτον παραλαμβάνοντες.

(b) Ja. ii. 5. κληρονόμους τῆς βασιλείας ἧς ἐπηγγείλατο τοῖς ἀγαπῶσιν αὐτόν.

(c) 2 Pet. i. 11. εἰς τὴν αἰώνιον βασιλείαν τοῦ κυρίου ἡμῶν καὶ σωτῆρος Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ.

C. Use in the Synoptic Gospels and in 'Acts.'

(a) In the Synoptists, besides ἡ βασιλεία σου of the Lord's Prayer, the expression ἡ βασιλεία τοῦ θεοῦ is of constant occurrence, except in the Gospel of St Matthew, where it is found four times only (vi. 33, xii. 28, xix. 24, xxi. 43), being elsewhere replaced by the phrase ἡ β. τῶν οὐρανῶν. Three times in St Matthew (iv. 23, ix. 35, xxiv. 14) we have τὸ εὐαγγέλιον τῆς βασιλείας,—‘the Gospel of the Kingdom’—and once (xiii. 19) τὸν λόγον τῆς βασιλείας—‘the word of the Kingdom.’

[Note especially Lk. xxii. 29 καὶ γὰρ διατίθεμαι ὑμῖν, καθὼς διέθετό μοι ὁ πατήρ μου βασιλείαν, ἵνα ἔσθητε καὶ πίνητε ἐπὶ τῆς τραπέζης μου ἐν τῇ βασιλείᾳ μου, καὶ καθήσθε ἐπὶ θρόνων τὰς δώδεκα φυλὰς κρίνοντες τοῦ Ἰσραήλ.

(b) In ‘Acts’ the phrase τὰ περὶ τῆς βασιλείας τ. θεοῦ occurs thrice (i. 3, viii. 12, xix. 8). The other references to ‘the Kingdom of God’ are xiv. 22 εἰσελθεῖν εἰς τ. βασιλείαν τ. θ., xxviii. 23 διαμαρτυρούμενος τ. βασιλείαν τ. θ., ib. 31 κηρύσσων τ. β. τ. θ.: in xx. 25 κηρύσσων τ. βασιλείαν (om. τ. θεοῦ) is read:—cf. i. 6.

D. Use in Johannine writings.

(a) Apoc. i. 6. κ. ἐποίησεν ἡμᾶς βασιλείαν ἱερεῖς τῷ θεῷ κ. πατρὶ αὐτοῦ.

Apoc. i. 9. συνκοινωνὸς ἐν τῇ θλίψει κ. βασιλείᾳ κ. ὑπομονῇ ἐν Ἰησοῦ.

Apoc. v. 10. ἐποίησας αὐτοὺς τῷ θεῷ ἡμῶν βασιλείαν κ. ἱερεῖς, καὶ βασιλεύσουσιν ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς.

Apoc. xi. 15. ἐγένετο ἡ βασιλεία τοῦ κόσμου τοῦ κυρίου ἡμῶν καὶ τοῦ χριστοῦ αὐτοῦ, κ. βασιλεύσει εἰς τοὺς αἰῶνας τῶν αἰώνων.

Apoc. xii. 10. ἡ βασιλεία τοῦ θεοῦ ἡμῶν κ. ἡ ἐξουσία τοῦ χριστοῦ αὐτοῦ.

(b) Jo. iii. 3. ἐὰν μὴ τις γεννηθῆ ἄνωθεν, οὐ δύναται ἰδεῖν τὴν βασιλείαν τοῦ θεοῦ.

Jo. iii. 5. εἰσελθεῖν εἰς τὴν βασιλείαν τοῦ θεοῦ.

Jo. xviii. 36. ἡ βασιλεία ἡ ἐμὴ οὐκ ἔστιν ἐκ τοῦ κόσμου τούτου· εἰ ἐκ τοῦ κόσμου τούτου ἦν ἡ βασιλεία ἡ ἐμὴ, οἱ ὑπηρέται οἱ ἐμοὶ ἠγωνίζοντο ἄν, ἵνα μὴ παραδοθῶ τοῖς Ἰουδαίοις· νῦν δὲ ἡ βασιλεία ἡ ἐμὴ οὐκ ἔστιν ἐντεῦθεν.

‘The Kingdom’ [implies] ‘a Sovereign of whose Personal Rule His subjects would be conscious and by Whose Will they would be guided, an organization, by which the relative functions and duties and stations of those included within it would be defined and sustained, a common principle of action, and common rights of citizenship.’

(Gospel of the Resurrection, p. 195.)

The Christian Society, and the Apostolic Ministry.

‘Our bodies (1 Cor. vi. 15) are members of Christ’ (μέλη Χριστοῦ); and conversely (1 Cor. xii. 27) a Christian society is ‘a body of Christ’ (σῶμα Χριστοῦ)—[a body of which Christ is the Head].—[Such is] each Christian society—‘a body of Christ,’ of which the members are charged with various functions and gifts. And these ‘bodies’ again are ‘members’ of other ‘bodies’ wider and greater, and thus at last ‘members’ of that universal Church which is the ‘fulness of Christ,’ its Heavenly Head. (G. of R. pp. 177—182.)

In the providential ordering of the Christian Society these various functions and graces have been variously concentrated; but all belong alike to the new life, which the Risen Christ breathed into His Church.

To this Body, as a whole, the Risen Lord communicated the virtue of His glorified Life.

For it is a fact of the highest importance and clearly established by the documents—that the commission given on the evening of the first Easter Day—the ‘Great Commission’—was given to the Church and not to any class in the Church—to the whole Church—and not to any part of it, primarily.

The Commission and the Promise, like the Pentecostal blessing which they prefigured, were given to the Christian Society, and not to any special order in it.

Not that every member of the Church has in virtue of the corporate gift a right to exercise it individually.

The very fact that the commission is given to the body renders it impossible for any member to exercise it except by the authority of the body.

When the Body is quickened and endowed, then the Spirit works out its purpose through the several parts.

It is indeed a general law of life that differentiation of organs answers to [the] increasing fulness of life. The particular power of the living being finds expression through the organs. The specialisation of functions required for the permanent well-being of the Church [appears, when] in Eph. iv. 7—11 St Paul marks the types of ministry with which the Church is endowed. He states the fact of the individual endowment of the several members of the Christian Society (v. 7); and (v. 11) notes that certain special gifts have been made for its government.

‘Receive ye the Holy Ghost ; whosoever sins ye forgive, they are forgiven unto them ; whosoever sins ye retain, they are retained.’ (Jo. xx. 22 f.)

The words are the Charter of the Christian Church, and not simply the Charter of the Christian Ministry.

The gift is conveyed once for all. It is made part of the life of the whole Society, flowing from the relation of the body to the Risen Christ.

Before His Passion Christ had given to His disciples

(a) the power of the keys to open the treasury of the Kingdom of Heaven and dispense things new and old ;

(b) power to bind and to loose, to fix and to unfix ordinances for the government of the new Society.

Now (c) as Conqueror He added the authority to deal with sins.

The message of the Gospel is the glad tidings of sin conquered. To apply this to each man severally is the office of the Church and so of each member of the Church. To embrace it personally is to gain absolution.

He to whom the word comes can appropriate or reject the message of deliverance which we as Christians are authorised to bear. As he does so, we, speaking in Christ’s name, either remove the load by which he is weighed down or make it more oppressive.

To this end all the sacraments and ordinances of Christianity combine, to deepen the conviction of sin and to announce forgiveness of sin.

In the first age, however, it is perfectly clear from the Pauline Epistles, that the Christian Society was not as yet under any rigid organisation ; there was not as yet a recognised ecclesiastical hierarchy.

In some of these Epistles, particularly in 1 Cor. xii. 28 and Eph. iv. 11, specific offices are named.

Thus in 1 Cor. xii. 27 St Paul says to the Church of Corinth, ‘Ye are a body of Christ, and members in particular’ ; and then in v. 28 ‘God—set (ἔθετο)—in the Church first apostles, secondly prophets, thirdly teachers,—then miracles, then gifts of healings, helps, governments, divers kinds of tongues.’

And in Eph. iv. 11 he writes, ‘And He Himself gave some as Apostles, and some as prophets, and some as evangelists, and some as pastors and teachers.’

But the offices named are not parts of a hierarchy. They are related to personal gifts.

The language of the verse in the Ephesian Epistle, indeed, clearly excludes the idea of the existence, at that time, of any Divinely ordered hierarchy.

The gift which Christ 'gave' to the Church was a gift of 'men.' It was a double gift. He first endowed the men, and then gave them, endowed, to the Church.

Through their work the character of permanent offices became revealed.

There is in the New Testament no trace of any rigid universal constitution of the Christian Society.

Divine gifts for its edification are recognised.

These appear to be general, and stand prominent.

There are also ecclesiastical offices.

The presbyterate, as yet identical with the episcopate, is practically universal.

Deacons are treated of by St Paul as universal: though there is no trace of any perpetuation of 'the seven.'

There is no definition of the respective duties of presbyters or of deacons.

Timothy appears to have apostolic functions by ordination¹.

The Church appears guided by a self-widening ministry—apostles and prophets.

Of a primitive hierarchical ministry there is no record or tradition.

And there is no provision for all time. The provision of a permanent and universal organisation of the Church was, in fact, wholly alien from the thought of the first age. The vision was closed by 'the Coming.' At the close of it the Lord was to come Himself.

² Tim. i. 6 τὸ χάρισμα τοῦ θεοῦ, ὃ ἐστὶν ἐν σοὶ διὰ τῆς ἐπιθέσεως τῶν χειρῶν μου.

‘The Church’ in the Epistle to the Ephesians.

The word ἐκκλησία occurs in the Gospels in two places only (Mt. xvi. 18; xviii. 17): in the former place in the sense of the universal Church (καὶ ἐπὶ ταύτῃ τῇ πέτρᾳ οἰκοδομήσω μου τὴν ἐκκλησίαν), and in the latter of a special Church (ἐὰν δὲ παρακούσῃ αὐτῶν, εἰπὸν τῇ ἐκκλησίᾳ, ἐὰν δὲ καὶ τῆς ἐκκλησίας παρακούσῃ, ἔστω σοι ὡσπερ ὁ ἔθνικὸς καὶ ὁ τελώτης).

Both senses are found in the Acts.

In the Apocalypse, as also in St James (v. 14) and in 3 Jo. 6, 9, 10, the word is used in the special sense only.

In the Epistles of St Paul both senses are found.

In the Epistle to the Ephesians the Christian Society—the Church—is a commonwealth, but it is more than a commonwealth.

The Church is a spiritual building—the temple of the Spirit.

„ „ a living organism—the Body of Christ.

„ „ the Bride of Christ.

The word ἐκκλησία is used nine times in the Epistle to the Ephesians. But of these instances six occur in one and the same context in the fifth chapter, and the nine occurrences of the word are thus practically reducible to four.

(1) i. 22 f. καὶ αὐτὸν ἔδωκεν κεφαλὴν ὑπὲρ πάντα τῇ ἐκκλησίᾳ, ἣτις ἐστὶν τὸ σῶμα αὐτοῦ, τὸ πλήρωμα τοῦ τὰ πάντα ἐν πᾶσιν πληρουμένου.

Not only was Christ Himself exalted to the heavens:

(a) He is invested with universal sovereignty (cf. Mt. xxvii. 28 ἐδόθη μοι πᾶσα ἐξουσία ἐν οὐρανῷ καὶ ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς).

(b) He is even now Head of His Church on earth:

‘Head over all things to the Church, which is His body’—and

(c) He has already exercised His sovereignty by the gift of His quickening grace.

So in the parallel passage, Col. i. 18: καὶ αὐτός ἐστιν ἡ κεφαλὴ τοῦ σώματος, τῆς ἐκκλησίας (cf. v. 24), i.e. (as Lightfoot paraphrases) ‘not only does He hold this position of absolute priority and sovereignty over the Universe—the natural creation—He stands also in the same relation to the Church—the new spiritual creation. He is its head, and it is His body.’

‘The Creator of the World is also the Head of the Church’—‘the head, the inspiring, ruling, guiding, combining, sustaining power, the mainspring of its activity and the centre of its unity, and the seat of its life.’

The image (of Christ as the Head) occurs in a different yet cognate application in 1 Cor. xi. 3 παντὸς ἀνδρὸς ἡ κεφαλὴ ὁ χριστός ἐστιν, κεφαλὴ δὲ τ. χριστοῦ ὁ θεός.

Moreover the relations of the Church to Christ are (as Lightfoot points out) described—by St Paul—in his earlier Epistles—under the same image: 1 Cor. xii. 12—27: ‘For, as the body is one and hath many members, and all the members of the body, being many, are one body; so also is Christ. For in one Spirit were we all baptized into one body, whether Jews or Greeks, whether bond or free; and were all made to drink of one Spirit. For the body is not one member, but many. . . . Now ye are the body of Christ, and severally members thereof (ὑμεῖς—ἐστὶ σῶμα Χριστοῦ καὶ μέλη ἐκ μέρους).’

1 Cor. vi. 15. ‘Know ye not that your bodies are members of Christ.’ Cf. x. 17.

Rom. xii. 4 sq. ‘For even as we have many members in one body, and all the members have not the same office; so we, who are many, are one body in Christ and severally members one of another’ (ἐν σῶμά ἐσμεν ἐν Χριστῷ).

But the Apostle there takes as his starting-point the various functions of the members, and not, as in these later Epistles, ‘the originating and controlling power of the Head.’ (Col. p. 157.)

Here (in Ephesians i. 22) ‘the thought of sovereignty, already given, is now connected with that of vital union with a glorious organism which draws its life from Him,—that one Divine society,—the Body of Christ,—to which the life of every individual believer is a contributory element and in which every individual life finds its consummation.’ (Revelation of the Risen Lord, Pref. p. xxvi.)

And while, on the one side, Christ by His Presence gives to all things their true being and Christians in a special sense reach their ‘fulness,’ their full development, in Him, on the other side—He Himself finds His fulness in the sum of all things that He thus brings into living union with Himself.

(2) iii. 10. ἵνα γνωρισθῆ νῦν ταῖς ἀρχαῖς καὶ ταῖς ἐξουσίαις ἐν τοῖς ἐπουρανίοις διὰ τῆς ἐκκλησίας ἡ πολυποίκιλος σοφία τοῦ θεοῦ.

In the Church humanity advances towards its true unity.

And ‘the display of God’s wisdom before the intelligences of the heavenly order.....was.....the work of the Church.’

‘The effect of the Gospel reaches through all being,—and we are allowed to see.....how other rational creatures follow the course of its fulfilment.’

The manifold wisdom of God is seen in the adaptation of the manifold capacities of man and the complicated vicissitudes of human life to minister to the one end to which “all creation moves.”

(3) iii. 21. αὐτῷ ἡ δόξα ἐν τῇ ἐκκλησίᾳ καὶ ἐν Χριστῷ Ἰησοῦ εἰς πάσας τὰς γενεὰς τοῦ αἰῶνος τῶν αἰώνων· ἀμήν.

The contemplation of the glorious fulness of Divine blessing in the Gospel—closes with a Doxology—in which God’s work in man is regarded as issuing in His glory ‘in the Church and in Christ Jesus’ to the last development of life in time.

The glory of God is shewn, as the Universe moves forward to its end, by the fulfilment of God’s Will in man and by the offering of man’s service to God.

(4) v. 23 f. ἀνὴρ ἐστὶν κεφαλὴ τῆς γυναικὸς ὡς καὶ ὁ χριστὸς κεφαλὴ τῆς ἐκκλησίας, αὐτὸς σωτὴρ τοῦ σώματος.

ἀλλὰ ὡς ἡ ἐκκλησία ὑποτάσσεται τῷ χριστῷ, οὕτως καὶ κ.τ.λ.

οἱ ἄνδρες, ἀγαπᾶτε τὰς γυναῖκας, καθὼς καὶ ὁ χριστὸς ἠγάπησεν τὴν ἐκκλησίαν καὶ ἑαυτὸν παρέδωκεν ὑπὲρ αὐτῆς, ἵνα αὐτὴν ἀγιασῇ καθαρῶς τῷ λουτρῷ τοῦ ὕδατος ἐν ῥήματι, ἵνα παραστήσῃ αὐτὸς ἑαυτῷ ἕνδοξον τὴν ἐκκλησίαν, μὴ ἔχουσαν σπίλον ἢ ῥυτίδα ἢ τι τῶν τοιούτων, ἀλλ’ ἵνα ᾖ ἁγία καὶ ἄμωμος.

The Apostle—points out that the wife is to the husband as the Church to Christ.

The relation of husband to wife, like that of Christ to the Church, points to a unity included in the idea of creation. And of the primitive ordinance that ‘a man shall leave father and mother and shall cleave to his wife, and the twain shall become one flesh’ (v. 31, from Gen. ii. 24), the greatest of all the manifold applications is [and the highest fulfilment is] the union of Christ and the Church:

τὸ μυστήριον τοῦτο μέγα ἐστίν, ἐγὼ δὲ λέγω εἰς Χριστὸν καὶ [εἰς] τὴν ἐκκλησίαν.

The marriage-relation of ‘the Lord’ to Israel runs through the Old Testament.

And the application of this relation to Christ and the Church—the spiritual Israel—implies His Divinity.

Christ offers to the Church the devotion of love. And such is the duty of the husband to the wife.

The Church offers to Christ the devotion of subjection, as is the duty of the wife to the husband.

Christ loved the Church (v. 25 : Acts xx. 28) not because it was perfectly lovable, but in order to make it such ; not because it was holy, but in order to make it holy by union with Himself.

The love of Christ—for the Church—was crowned by His sacrifice of Himself.

And the purpose of the self-sacrifice of Christ for the Church is (1) to hallow it, (2) to present it to Himself—glorious—without spot or wrinkle, (3) that it may continue—holy and blameless ('without blemish').

Further in ii. 20 ff. [though the word ἐκκλησία does not occur] the new Society of believers is a fabric, destined to become a sanctuary :

ἐποικοδομηθέντες ἐπὶ τῷ θεμελίῳ τῶν ἀποστόλων καὶ προφητῶν, ὧντος ἀκρογωνιαίου αὐτοῦ Χριστοῦ Ἰησοῦ, ἐν ᾧ πάντα οἰκοδομῆ συναρμολογουμένη αὔξει εἰς ῥαὸν ἁγίων ἐν κυρίῳ, ἐν ᾧ καὶ ὑμεῖς συνοικοδομεῖσθε εἰς κατοικητήριον τοῦ θεοῦ ἐν πνεύματι.

To the Corinthians St Paul had said (1 Cor. iii. 17) 'Ye are a temple of God (ναὸς θεοῦ) and the Spirit of God dwelleth in you'; and also (ib. xii. 28), 'And some God set in the Church, first apostles, secondly prophets, thirdly teachers'; and again (2 Cor. vi. 16), 'For we are a temple of the living God (ναὸς θεοῦ ἐσμέν ζῶντος).'

Now in Ephesians he writes (ii. 19—22): 'Ye are fellow-citizens with the saints and of the household of God, being built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Christ Jesus himself being the chief corner stone; in Whom each several building, fitly framed together, groweth into a holy temple in the Lord; in Whom ye also are builded together for a habitation of God in the Spirit.'

We see then that in the Epistle in which he opens the widest prospect of the being and destiny of the Church, St Paul uses two images [besides that of the Bride] to describe it,—that of a 'body'—a body of which Christ is the Head (i. 22 f.)—and that of a spiritual building or 'sanctuary' (ii. 20 f.).

At the same time he combines the two images together. Thus in the passage cited, ii. 21 f. (v. supr.), the many buildings are said to grow into a sanctuary—a 'holy temple': and on the other hand the body is built: the body, 'fitly framed and knit together'—maketh 'increase unto the building up of itself in love' (iv. 16). The body is built; the temple grows.

We need both images, of building and of growth, in order to understand our position socially and personally. The progress which we observe in human society and in our own several lives is due in part to human effort and in part to vital forces, which lie beyond our reach. Everywhere we find this twofold action of 'building' and of 'growth.'

Thus in the material building we have to notice the influence of natural powers which we cannot control. The sunshine and the rain;—the silent, ceaseless action of the air,—bring to the fabric some of its greatest charms.

In the body again there is room for the effects of care and discipline. We grow by a force which is independent of our will: but of ourselves we can within certain measure retard or hasten or guide the growth.

So God Himself works, and He works also through us. As His fellow-workers we recognise on the one side inexorable laws, on the other the results of personal endeavour.

This thought applies alike to the individual Christian and to the Church.

It applies, I say, to the Church, the Society of Christian men. For the Church is built and yet it grows. Human endeavour and Divine energy co-operate in its development.

The Church a Temple.

The Church is 'a structure complex and multiform—a dwelling-place of the Holy Spirit'—a temple 'reared through long ages, each stone of which fills its special place and contributes its share to the grace and stability of the fabric.' It includes many buildings, but all equally parts of the sanctuary (ναός). Of this temple Christ Himself is the corner-stone; Apostles and Prophets, united with and having authority from Him, form its foundation (cf. Apoc. xxi. 14).

The Church the Body of Christ.

Again, the Church is 'a Body, where a royal will directs and disciplines and uses the functions of every member'—Christ being 'the Head, from which the body receives its divine impulse.'

'The Body is one: it is multiform; and it is quickened by a power which is not of itself but from above.'

'For unity is not uniformity. Differences of race, class, social order obviously have no influence upon it. They are of earth only. But more than this, it is consistent with serious differences in the apprehension of the common faith in which it reposes....The Unity of the whole is consistent with a wide variety of parts, each having to a certain degree a corresponding unity in itself.'

'And the essential bond of union is not external but spiritual; it consists not in one organization, but in a common principle of life.'

'It follows—that external, visible unity is not required for the essential unity of the Church.'

'But though the principle of the unity of the Christian Church is spiritual and not necessarily connected with uniformity of constitution or even with intercommunion, it by no means follows that the outward organization of the whole of the constituent Churches is a matter of indifference.'

'The range of variation in the constitution of the Christian societies must be limited by their fitness to embody the fundamental ideas of Christianity.'

'Divisions, as we see them, are' indeed 'a witness to human imperfection.' But, 'if we regard the imperfection of our nature,—division appears to be the preliminary of that noblest catholicity, which will issue from the separate fulfilment by each part in due measure (Eph. iv. 16) of its proper function towards the whole. Thus the material unity of Judaism is transformed into the moral unity of the Apocalypse.'

The Church the Bride of Christ.

The image used in prophetic books of the Old Testament (Hos. ii. 19, Ezek. xvi., Mal. ii. 11) to describe the relation between Jehovah and His people, is in the New Testament applied to Christ and the Church. Suggested, in the Synoptic Gospels, by the imagery of the Parables of the Marriage-feast (Mt. xxii. 1 ff.) and of the Ten Virgins (id. xxv. 1 ff., also Mt. ix. 15) is signified in the Gospel of St John by the language of the Baptist (Jo. iii. 29 f.): 'He that hath the bride is the bridegroom: but the friend of the bridegroom, which standeth and heareth him rejoiceth greatly because of the bridegroom's voice: this my joy therefore is fulfilled. He must increase, but I must decrease.' The Christ was gathering round Him the disciples who were the beginnings of His Church—representatives of the spiritual Israel—the divine Bride—brought by the forerunner to Christ—the Bridegroom.

In 2 Cor. xi. 2 ζηλω γὰρ ὑμᾶς θεοῦ ζήλω, ἡρμούσαμην γὰρ ὑμᾶς ἐνὶ ἀνδρὶ παρθένον ἀγνήν παραστήσαι τῷ χριστῷ, St Paul applies the figure to the connexion of Christ with a particular body of Christians; even as in Ephesians (v. 32 ff.) he uses it (v. supr.) of the relation of Christ to

His Church as a whole,—the Church ‘contemplated as distinct from Christ, though most closely bound to Him as His bride.’

In the Apocalypse (xix. 7, xxi. 2, 9, xxii. 17) the Holy City, the New Jerusalem is seen ‘as a bride adorned for her husband’: and ‘the bride’ is ‘the wife of the Lamb.’

The Church Universal.

‘Every Family,’ every Fatherhood, derives that, in virtue of which it is what it is, from the One Father (Eph. iii. 15); from Him comes all fellowship and unity in heaven and on earth.

The Church, of which the Family is the type and monument, is the herald and witness of the revelation of a living God,—‘the interpreter of the world in the light of the Incarnation,’—‘the appointed organ of the gifts of Christ.’

And it is in the Epistle to the Ephesians that the idea of the One Church, having a mission thus manifold and universal, is first developed.

‘Here, for the first time, we hear Christians throughout the world described as together making up a single Ecclesia, a single assembly of God, or Church’ (Hort: Prolegomena, p. 128).

Use of the word ἀποκάλυψις in the N. T.

A. Pauline usage:—

- 2 Th. i. 7. ἐν τῇ ἀποκαλύψει τ. κυρίου Ἰησοῦ ἀπ’ οὐρανοῦ.
 1 Cor. i. 7. τὴν ἀποκάλυψιν τ. κυρίου ἡμῶν Ἰ. Χριστοῦ.
 xiv. 6. ἢ ἐν ἀποκαλύψει ἢ ἐν γνώσει ἢ ἐν προφητείᾳ ἢ ἐν διδαχῇ.
 26. ψαλμὸν—διδαχὴν—ἀποκάλυψιν.
 2 Cor. xii. 1. ὀπτασίας καὶ ἀποκαλύψεις κυρίου.
 7. τῇ ὑπερβολῇ τῶν ἀποκαλύψεων.
 Gal. i. 12. δι’ ἀποκαλύψεως Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ.
 ii. 2. ἀνέβην δὲ κατὰ ἀποκάλυψιν.
 Rom. ii. 5. ἐν ἡμέρᾳ ὀργῆς καὶ ἀποκαλύψεως δικαιοκρισίας τοῦ θεοῦ.
 viii. 19. τὴν ἀποκάλυψιν τῶν νιῶν τοῦ θεοῦ.
 xvi. 25. κατὰ ἀποκάλυψιν μυστηρίου.
 Eph. i. 17. πνεῦμα σοφίας κ. ἀποκαλύψεως.
 iii. 3. κατὰ ἀποκάλυψιν ἐγνωρίσθη μοι τὸ μυστήριον.

B. Use by other writers:—

- 1 Pet. i. 7. ἐν ἀποκαλύψει Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ. So again v. 13.
 iv. 13. ἐν τῇ ἀποκαλύψει τῆς δόξης.
 1 Lk. ii. 32. εἰς ἀποκάλυψιν ἐθνῶν.
 Apoc. i. 1. ἀποκάλυψις Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ.

The verb ἀποκαλύπτειν is used :—

- (A) by St Paul (13 times) in six Epistles (2 Th., 1 Cor., Gal., Rom., Phil., Eph.),
- (B) in the First Epistle of St Peter, and in the Gospels of St Matthew and St Luke.
- Except in a citation (xii. 38) from the LXX. of Is. liii. 1, it is not used by St John.

Revelation, in the New Testament, is

- (a) of Jesus Christ.
2 Th. i. 7, 1 Cor. i. 7, Gal. i. 16 (cf. 2 Cor. xii. 1).
1 Pet. i. 7, 13; Lk. xvii. 30.
Apoc. i. 1 (v. Hort on 1 Pet. i. 7).
- (b) of the Father. Mt. xi. 27 || Lk. x. 22.
- (c) of 'the righteous judgment of God.' Rom. ii. 5: 'wrath' ib. i. 18.
- (d) of 'the sons of God.' Rom. viii. 19.
- (e) of a 'glory.' Rom. viii. 18, 1 Pet. iv. 13, v. 1.
- (f) of a salvation and deliverance. 1 Pet. i. 5.
- (g) of an evil power. 2 Th. ii. 3, 6, 8.
- (h) of a faith. Gal. iii. 23. εἰς τ. μέλλουσαν πίστιν ἀποκαλυφθῆναι.
- (i) of whatever is covered (κεκαλυμμένον). Mt. x. 26 || Lk. xii. 2.
Rom. xvi. 25. μυστηρίου χρόνους αἰωνίους σεσιγημένου.
Eph. iii. 3, 5. τὸ μυστήριον.
Mt. xi. 25 || Lk. x. 21. ὅτι ἔκρυψας ταῦτα ἀπὸ σοφῶν κ. συνετῶν καὶ ἀπεκάλυψας αὐτὰ νηπίοις. (Cf. Phil. iii. 15.)
Mt. xvi. 17. σὰρξ κ. αἷμα οὐκ ἀπεκάλυψέν σοι ἀλλ' ὁ πατήρ μου ὃ ἐν τ. οὐρανοῖς. (Cf. v. 16.)

With Revelation is co-ordinated 'knowledge,' 'prophecy' and 'teaching.' 1 Cor. xiv. 6.

With Revelation is co-ordinated 'wisdom,' Eph. i. 17 (v. supr. p. 158, Dale on 'Wisdom and Revelation').

'Revelation is always (probably even in Gal. iii. 23) in the strictest sense an unveiling of what already exists, not the coming into existence of that which is said to be revealed.' (Hort on 1 Pet. i. 5.)

On the use of the term μυστήριον in the N. T.

The word μυστήριον (which in the LXX. occurs Judith ii. 2, Wisd. vi. 24, Ecclus. xxii. 22, Tob. xii. 7, 21, 2 Macc. xiii. 21 and elsewhere; also in Theodotion's version of Dan. ii. 18 ff., Ps. xxv. 14 and Prov. xx. 19) is found, in the Synoptic Gospels in the parallel texts (Mt. xiii. 11, Mk. iv. 11, Lk. viii. 10) of the Parable of the Sower, but elsewhere in the N. T. only in the Epistles of St Paul and in the Apocalypse.

It is used (1) comprehensively of the Christian Revelation or of the central truth of the universality of the Gospel, (2) of special truths in that revelation.

But always in the N. T. the fact of revelation, actual or imminent, is implied.

(1) In the comprehensive meaning the word is used 13 times by St Paul and once in the Apocalypse.

A. (a) 1 Cor. ii. 1. καταγγέλλων ὑμῖν τὸ μυστήριον τοῦ θεοῦ.

6 f. σοφίαν δὲ λαλοῦμεν ἐν τοῖς τελείοις (those who are fully initiate), σοφίαν δὲ οὐ τοῦ αἰῶνος τούτου οὐδὲ κ.τ.λ.... ἀλλὰ λαλοῦμεν θεοῦ σοφίαν ἐν μυστηρίῳ.

Rom. xvi. 25 f. κατὰ ἀποκάλυψιν μυστηρίου χρόνοις αἰωνίοις σεσιγημένου φανερωθέντος δὲ νῦν διὰ τε γραφῶν προφητικῶν κατ' ἐπιταγὴν τοῦ αἰωνίου θεοῦ εἰς ὑπακοὴν πίστεως εἰς πάντα τὰ ἔθνη γνωρισθέντος.

(b) Col. i. 26 f. τὸ μυστήριον τὸ ἀποκεκρυμμένον ἀπὸ τῶν αἰώνων κ. ἀπὸ τῶν γενεῶν, νῦν δὲ ἐφανερώθη τοῖς ἀγίοις, οἷς ἠθέλησεν ὁ θεὸς γνωρίσαι τί τὸ πλοῦτος τῆς δόξης τοῦ μυστηρίου τούτου ἐν τοῖς ἔθνεσιν, ὃ ἐστὶν Χριστὸς ἐν ὑμῖν, ἡ ἐλπίς τῆς δόξης. (v. Lightfoot's note.)

Col. ii. 2. εἰς ἐπίγνωσιν τοῦ μυστηρίου τοῦ θεοῦ Χριστοῦ ἐν ᾧ εἰσὶν πάντες οἱ θησαυροὶ τῆς σοφίας καὶ γνώσεως ἀπόκρυφοι—'God's mystery, which is nothing else than Christ—Christ containing in Himself all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge hidden away.' (Lightfoot, ad loc.)

Col. iv. 3 f. ἵνα ὁ θεὸς ἀνοίξῃ ἡμῖν θύραν τοῦ λόγου, λαλῆσαι τὸ μυστήριον τοῦ χριστοῦ, διὸ καὶ δέδεμαι ἵνα φανερώσω αὐτό, ὡς δεῖ με λαλῆσαι.

Eph. i. 9. γνωρίσας ἡμῖν τὸ μυστήριον τοῦ θελήματος αὐτοῦ—'the mystery of His will'—the Divine counsel now revealed, expressing God's Will.

Eph. iii. 3. κατὰ ἀποκάλυψιν ἐγνωρίσθη μοι τὸ μυστήριον.

4. ἐν τῷ μυστηρίῳ τοῦ Χριστοῦ.

The 'mystery of the Christ' was (v. 6) the truth, revealed to the Apostles, that the Gentiles, by incorporation in Christ, were, equally with Jews, heirs of all the hopes of the people of God, members of one Divine society, and partakers of the gift of the Holy Spirit.

Eph. iii. 9. ἡ οἰκονομία τοῦ μυστηρίου τοῦ ἀποκεκρυμμένου ἀπὸ τῶν αἰώνων ἐν τῷ θεῷ τῷ τὰ πάντα κτίσαντι.

The words recall the language of Rom. xvi. 25 f. (v. surpr.)

Eph. vi. 19. ἐν παρρησίᾳ γνωρίσαι τὸ μυστήριον τοῦ εὐαγγελίου—'the mystery of the Gospel'—the revelation contained in the Gospel.

(c) 1 Tim. iii. 9. ἔχοντας τὸ μυστήριον τῆς πίστεως ἐν καθαρᾷ συνειδήσει—'holding the mystery of the faith in a pure conscience.

1 Tim. iii. 16. κ. ὁμολογουμένως μέγα ἐστὶν τὸ τῆς εὐσεβείας μυστήριον—'the mystery of godliness.'

B. Apoc. x. 7. καὶ ἐτελέσθη τὸ μυστήριον τοῦ θεοῦ, ὡς εὐηγγέλισεν τοὺς ἑαυτοῦ δούλους τοὺς προφήτας—where 'the mystery of God' is a revelation now imminent (v. 6 'there shall be delay no longer': cf. Dan. xii. 7) and the language is that of Amos iii. 7 'Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but He revealeth his secret unto His servants the prophets.'

(2) In the sense of a particular truth, or detail, of the Christian revelation, the word occurs seven times in St Paul, and three times in the Apocalypse.

A. (a) 2 Th. ii. 7. τὸ γὰρ μυστήριον ἤδη ἐνεργεῖται τῆς ἀνομίας.

xiii. 2. κἀν ἔχω προφητείαν καὶ εἰδῶ τὰ μυστήρια πάντα.

xiv. 2. πνεύματι δὲ λαλεῖ μυστήρια.

xv. 51. ἰδοὺ, μυστήριον ὑμῖν λέγω—'a mystery'—a heavenly truth—revealed to me.

Rom. xi. 25. οὐ γὰρ θέλω ὑμᾶς ἀγνοεῖν τὸ μυστήριον τοῦτο—ὅτι πῶρως ἐκ τῶν μέρους τῷ Ἰσραὴλ γέγονεν ἄχρι οὗ τὸ πλήρωμα τῶν ἐθνῶν εἰσέλθῃ κ.τ.λ.

(b) Eph. v. 32. τὸ μυστήριον τοῦτο μέγα ἐστίν, ἐγὼ δὲ λέγω εἰς Χριστὸν καὶ [εἰς] τὴν ἐκκλησίαν—'this mystery'—this revealed truth of a unique relationship.

‘The law of marriage laid down in Genesis as given to Adam was for St Paul a preliminary indication of a hidden Divine purpose or ordinance, the full meaning of which was to be revealed only by the revealing of Christ as the Head of His spouse the Church’ (Hort: Prolegomena to Romans and Ephesians, p. 160).

B. Mt. xiii. 11. ὑμῖν δέδοται γινῶναι τὰ μυστήρια τῆς βασιλείας τ. οὐρανῶν, ἐκείνοις δὲ οὐ δέδοται (Lk. viii. 10 τοῖς δὲ λοίποις ἐν παραβολαῖς).

[Mk. iv. 11 has ὑμῖν τὸ μυστήριον δέδοται, where perhaps the singular may be regarded as = γινῶναι τὰ μυστήρια of Mt. and Lk., and, for the second clause, ἐκείνοις δὲ τοῖς ἕξω ἐν παραβολαῖς τὰ πάντα γίνονται.]

Apoc. i. 20. τὸ μυστήριον τῶν ἑπτὰ ἀστέρων—‘the mystery of [the inner meaning of the truth signified by] the seven stars.’

Apoc. xvii. 7. ἐγὼ ἐρῶ σοι τὸ μυστήριον [the mystery—the inner significance of—the unseen fact signified by] τῆς γυναικὸς κ. τοῦ θηρίου.

[The history of the use of the term in pre-Christian Greek deserves further study. Already in Plato, Theaet. 156 a, ἄλλοι δὲ κομψότεροι, ὧν μέλλω σοι τὰ μυστήρια λέγειν the word is used metaphorically, not, that is, of the actual, ceremonial, ‘mysteries’ or mystic implements, but of philosophical doctrines belonging to men of a particular School and expounded with authority by them alone, though the exposition may be subsequently transmitted by a hearer to others. Already the idea of secrecy is subordinate to that of special discovery or possession.]

“But, when adopted into the Christian vocabulary by St Paul, the word signifies simply ‘a truth which was once hidden, but now is revealed,’ ‘a truth which without special revelation would have been unknown.’ Hence μυστήριον is almost universally found in connexion with words denoting revelation or publication; e.g. ἀποκαλύπτειν, ἀποκάλυψις, Rom. xvi. 25, Eph. iii. 3, 5, 2 Th. ii. 7; γνωρίζειν, Rom. xvi. 26, Eph. i. 9, iii. 3, 10, vi. 19; φανεροῦν, Col. iv. 3, Rom. xvi. 26, 1 Tim. iii. 16; λαλεῖν Col. iv. 3, 1 Cor. ii. 7, xiv. 2; λέγειν 1 Cor. xv. 51.” (Lightfoot on Col. i. 26.)

On the phrases ἐν Χριστῷ, ἐν Χριστῷ Ἰησοῦ, ἐν τῷ χριστῷ.

The phrases ἐν Χριστῷ Ἰησοῦ and ἐν Χριστῷ (without Ἰησοῦ) are found in the Epistles of St Paul as follows :

ἐν Χριστῷ Ἰησοῦ	ἐν Χριστῷ

Outside the Pauline Epistles there is no instance of ἐν Χριστῷ Ἰησοῦ. But ἐν Χριστῷ is found in 1 Pet. iii. 16.

v. 10 [with v. l. ἐν τῷ Χριστῷ].

It is also the reading of A in Apoc. i. 9.

The phrase ἐν τῷ Χριστῷ is found only in 2 Cor. ii. 14. τῷ πάντοτε θριαμβεύοντι ἡμᾶς ἐν τῷ Χριστῷ.

Eph. i. 10. ἀνακεφαλαιώσασθαι τὰ πάντα ἐν τῷ Χριστῷ.

12. τοὺς προηλπικότας ἐν τῷ Χριστῷ.

20. ἣν ἐνήργηκεν ἐν τῷ Χριστῷ.

(ii. 5. W. & H. mg. and so also 1 Pet. v. 10.)

[In Gal. iii. 14 ἐν Ἰησοῦ Χριστῷ is read (W. H. text).]

In Eph. iv. 21 occurs the unique phrase ἐν τῷ Ἰησοῦ (v. Add. Note, p. 70); and in Apoc. i. 9 the reading of C [adopted by W. & H.] is ἐν τῇ θλίψει κ. βασιλείᾳ κ. ὑπομονῇ ἐν Ἰησοῦ.

None of the phrases ἐν Χριστῷ, ἐν Χριστῷ Ἰησοῦ and ἐν τῷ Χριστῷ occur in Hebrews or in any (save 1 Pet.) of the Catholic Epistles. Apart from 1 Pet. (ll. cc.) they are exclusively Pauline.

It will be seen that the short phrase ἐν Χριστῷ does not occur in the Pastoral Epistles.

Otherwise ἐν Χριστῷ and ἐν Χριστῷ Ἰησοῦ occur with about equal frequency, both in the earlier Epistles and in the Epistles of the Captivity.

On the other hand the unusual phrase ἐν τῷ Χριστῷ is characteristic of the Epistle to the Ephesians, occurring in other Epistles nowhere excepting 2 Cor. ii. 14.

In Ephesians c. i. and more especially in the great Hymn of Praise (i. 3—14) the three forms of expression all occur, and, besides the instances of actual occurrence above cited, one or other of them is implied also in v. 4 (ἐν αὐτῷ), v. 6 (ἐν τῷ ἡγαπημένῳ), v. 7 (ἐν ᾧ), v. 11 (ἐν αὐτῷ), v. 13 (ἐν ᾧ).

Indeed in the rhythmical passage i. 3—14 the relation of the believer to Christ is shewn by development of the expression ἐν Χριστῷ.

It is 'in Christ' (ἐν Χριστῷ) that the Divine blessing is bestowed upon us (i. 3). Eternal election 'in Him' is spoken of (v. 4) as resting on a predestination to sonship: in Him too grace (v. 6; ii. 7; iv. 32) and redemption (i. 7) are ours. In Him, the Incarnate Son, God's purpose (i. 9) was embodied and accomplished, and would (v. 10) find its consummation. In Him the faithful of Israel had found fulfilment of their hope (vv. 11, 12); in Him Gentiles received (v. 13) the glad tidings of salvation and the gift of the Holy Spirit.

In the passage (ii. 1—10) describing what God in His mercy and love has done for man, it is 'in Christ Jesus' that man is seen to be (ii. 6) quickened, restored, and exalted;—in Him it is (v. 7) that the wealth of God's grace and goodness is manifested; in Him that Christians, a new creation, can do the works which God has prepared for them.

The other instances of ἐν Χριστῷ Ἰησοῦ in this Epistle are :

- ii.* 13. νυνὶ δὲ ἐν Χριστῷ Ἰησοῦ ὑμεῖς οἳ ποτε ὄντες μακρὰν ἐγενήθητε ἐγγύς,—followed by κτίσῃ ἐν αὐτῷ εἰς εἷα ἄνθρωπον (v. 16).
- iii.* 6. εἶναι τὰ ἔθνη συνκληρονόμα καὶ σύνσωμα καὶ συνμέτοχα τῆς ἐπαγγελίας ἐν Χριστῷ Ἰησοῦ.
- iii.* 21. αὐτῷ ἡ δόξα ἐν τῇ ἐκκλησίᾳ καὶ ἐν Χριστῷ Ἰησοῦ [where see note ad loc.].

The only other occurrence of ἐν Χριστῷ in the Epistle is at iv. 32 καθὼς καὶ ὁ θεὸς ἐν Χριστῷ ἐχαρίσατο ὑμῖν,—which recalls 2 Cor. v. 19 (v. inj.).

In Eph. iii. 11 ἐν τῷ χριστῷ Ἰησοῦ τῷ κυρίῳ ἡμῶν we have the same combination and order of titles as in Col. ii. 6 ὡς οὖν παρελάβετε τὸν χριστὸν Ἰησοῦν τὸν κύριον, ἐν αὐτῷ περιπατεῖτε (cf. Eph. iv. 20, 21).

This twofold title brings together the confession τὸν χριστὸν Ἰησοῦν (Acts v. 42), implied in the τοῦ χριστοῦ Ἰησοῦ of Eph. iii. 1, with the confession Κύριος Ἰησοῦς (1 Cor. xii. 3, Rom. x. 9) implied in the ἐν τῷ κυρίῳ Ἰησοῦ of Eph. i. 15:—a phrase which occurs nowhere else in St Paul.

(The combination ἐν Χριστῷ Ἰησοῦ τῷ κυρίῳ ἡμῶν occurs 1 Cor. xv. 31, Rom. vi. 23, viii. 39.)

The simple phrase ἐν κυρίῳ is found

(a) 1 Th. iii. 8	1 Cor. xvi. 19
v. 12	2 Cor. ii. 12
2 Th. iii. 4	x. 17
1 Cor. i. 31	Gal. v. 10
iv. 7	Rom. xvi. 2, 8, 11 ff., 22
vii. 22, 39	(b) Phil. i. 14

xi. 11	iii. 1 χαίρετε ἐν κ.
xv. 58	iv. 2, 10

Col. iii. 18, 20		Eph. vi. 1 ὑπακούετε τ. γονεῦ- σιν ὑμῶν [ἐν κ.]
iv. 7, 17		10 ἐνδυναμοῦσθε ἐν κ.
Eph. ii. 21 αὔξει εἰς ναὸν ἅγιον ἐν κυρίῳ		21 πιστὸς διάκονος ἐν κυρίῳ
iv. 1 παρακαλῶ—ὁ δέσ- μιος ἐν κ.		Philem. 16, 20
17 μαρτύρομαι ἐν κ. v. 8 νῦν δὲ φῶς ἐν κ.		(c) nowhere in the Pastoral Epis- tles.

It does not occur in Hebrews or in any of the Catholic Epistles.

Outside St Paul's writings it is found only in Apoc. xiv. 13 μακρόμοι οἱ νεκροὶ οἱ ἐν κυρίῳ ἀποθνήσκοντες ἀπ' ἄρτι.

Both expressions ἐν Χριστῷ and ἐν κυρίῳ, signify fellowship and vital union with Him, in Whom the life of the Christian is ideally lived.

'The Christian lives—in Christ. It is from Christ that he draws his energy—it is as a member of Christ that he fulfils his part in the great economy of the world. By his faith in God Incarnate and Man ascended he stands forth as a witness of the essential unity of the seen and the unseen, of earth and of heaven..... Doubtless it is hard to endure as seeing the invisible; but when the spiritual eyes grow dim, the thought of Christ risen, in Whom we are, will remove the mists which cloud them. If once we realize what these words 'we are in Christ' mean, we shall know that beneath the surface of life lie depths which we cannot fathom, full alike of mystery and of hope.'

(The Christian Life, pp. 34, 35.)

The expression τὰ πάντα.

τὰ πάντα occurs

A. in Epistles of St Paul

- (a) 1 Cor. viii. 6. εἰς κύριος Ἰ. Χρ. δι' οὗ (v. 1. ὄν) τὰ πάντα.
xi. 12. τὰ δὲ πάντα ἐκ τοῦ θεοῦ.
xii. 6. θεὸς ὁ ἐνεργῶν τὰ πάντα ἐν πᾶσιν.
xv. 27 f. τ. ὑποτάξαι αὐτῷ τὰ πάντα.
2 Cor. iv. 15. τὰ γὰρ πάντα δι' ὑμᾶς.
v. 18. τὰ δὲ πάντα ἐκ τοῦ θεοῦ.

Gal. iii. 22. συνέκλεισεν ἡ γραφὴ τὰ πάντα ὑπὸ ἁμαρτίαν.
(In 1 Cor. xii. 19 the reading is doubtful.)

- (b) Phil. iii. 8. δι' ὃν τὰ πάντα ἐξημώθη.
21. κατὰ τὴν ἐνέργειαν τοῦ δύνασθαι αὐτὸν καὶ ὑποτάξαι αὐτῷ τὰ πάντα.

Col. i. 16. ἐν αὐτῷ ἐκτίσθη τὰ πάντα—τὰ πάντα δι' αὐτοῦ κ. εἰς αὐτὸν ἔκτισται.

17. κ. τὰ πάντα ἐν αὐτῷ συνέστηκεν.

20. κ. δι' αὐτοῦ ἀποκαταλλάξει τὰ πάντα.

iii. 8. ἀπόθεσθε καὶ ὑμεῖς τὰ πάντα.

Eph. i. 10. ἀνακεφαλαιώσασθαι τὰ πάντα ἐν τῷ χριστῷ.

11. τοῦ τὰ πάντα ἐνεργούντος.

23. τὸ πλήρωμα τοῦ τὰ πάντα ἐν πᾶσιν πληρουμένου.

iii. 9. ἐν τῷ θεῷ τῷ τὰ πάντα κτίσαντι.

iv. 10. ἵνα πληρώσῃ τὰ πάντα.

15. αὐξήσωμεν ἐν αὐτῷ τὰ πάντα.

v. 13. τὰ δὲ πάντα ἐλεγχόμενα ὑπὸ τοῦ φωτός.

(c) 1 Tim. vi. 13. τ. θεοῦ τ. ζωογονούντος τὰ πάντα.

B. Elsewhere in the N. T.

Heb. i. 3. φέρων—τὰ πάντα τῷ ῥήματι τῆς δυνάμεως αὐτοῦ.

ii. 10. δι' ὃν τὰ πάντα καὶ δι' οὗ τὰ πάντα.

Apoc. iv. 11. ὅτι σὺν ἔκτισας τὰ πάντα καὶ διὰ τὸ θέλημά σου ἦσαν καὶ ἐκτίσθησαν.

Τὰ πάντα, signifying all things in their unity,—the sum of all things, seen and unseen, in the heavens and upon the earth, whatever their sphere of being, their mode of existence, or their relation of dependence upon God,—may be contrasted with πάντα, which denotes all things regarded severally.

For πάντα cf. 1 Cor. iii. 22, ix. 22, xv. 27, 28, Col. iii. 11, Eph. i. 22 (iii. 20, vi. 21), Heb. iii. 4, Jo. i. 3 (where see note).

In Eph. i. 22 πάντα ὑπέταξεν ὑπὸ τοὺς πόδας αὐτοῦ is a quotation from Ps. viii. 6, the same passage being cited [in close agreement with the LXX.] in Heb. ii. 8 (q. v.).

On the other hand τὰ πάντα stands in contrast with τὸ πᾶν,—a term familiar in Greek philosophy and implying a self-contained unity. Τὸ πᾶν is not Scriptural.

Ἡ δόξα in the Epistle to the Ephesians.

In the Epistle to the Ephesians

(a) δόξα, without the article, is found three times:

i. 6. εἰς ἔπαινον δόξης τῆς χάριτος αὐτοῦ.

12. εἰς ἔπαινον δόξης αὐτοῦ [where see note].

iii. 13. ἥτις ἐστὶ δόξα ὑμῶν

(cf. Col. iii. 4, Phil. i. 11, ii. 11, iv. 19).

(b) ἡ δόξα is found five times :

- i. 14. εἰς ἔπαινον τῆς δόξης αὐτοῦ.
- 17. ὁ πατήρ τῆς δόξης.
- 18. τίς ὁ πλοῦτος τῆς δόξης τ. κληρονομίας αὐτοῦ ἐν τ. ἁγίοις.
- iii. 16. κατὰ τὸ πλοῦτος τῆς δόξης αὐτοῦ.
- 21. αὐτῷ ἡ δόξα ἐν τῇ ἐκκλησίᾳ κ. ἐν Ἰησοῦ Χριστῷ.

The other occurrences of ἡ δόξα in the Epistles of the Captivity are:

- Col. i. 11. κατὰ τὸ κράτος τῆς δόξης αὐτοῦ.
- 27. τί τὸ πλοῦτος τῆς δόξης τ. μυστηρίου τούτου.
- Phil. iii. 21. σύμμορφον τῷ σώματι τῆς δόξης αὐτοῦ.
- (Compare in contrast v. 19 ἡ δ. ἐν τ. αἰσχύνῃ αὐτῶν.)
- iv. 20. τῷ δὲ θεῷ καὶ πατρὶ ἡμῶν ἡ δόξα.

‘The glory of the Lord’—is a key-word of Scripture.—The Bible is one widening answer to the prayer of Moses (Ex. xxxiii. 18) ‘Shew me Thy glory.’—And God has been pleased to make Himself known in many parts and in many fashions—as man could bear the knowledge :

(a) by material symbol (Ex. xxiv. 16, Lev. ix. 23, Ex. xl. 35, 1 K. viii. 11, Ezek. xliiii. 4 ff., Apoc. xxi. 22 f.),

(β) through human Presence :

- (i) in the Messianic nation (Is. xl. 5),—and (id. xlii. ff., liii. 3 ff.) the Figure of the ‘Servant of the Lord,’
- (ii) finally in the Incarnation of the Son of God, in the Life and Resurrection of the Son of Man (Jo. i. 14, ii. 11), the perfect revelation on earth of the Glory of God.

The ‘glory of God’ is the full manifestation of His attributes according to man’s power of apprehending them, ‘all His goodness’ (Ex. xxxiii. 19 ff.). Of it—under the Old Dispensation the Shekinah was the Symbol. (Note on Heb. i. 3.)

‘It is the majesty, or the power or the goodness, of God as manifested to men.’ (Lightfoot on Col. i. 11.)

It is the sum of His manifested perfections.

The ‘glory of His grace’ (Eph. i. 6) is the manifestation of the power of His free and bounteous goodness.

The ‘Father of Glory’ (Eph. i. 17) is He, Whom Our Lord Jesus Christ has revealed as Father,—from Whom all perfection proceeds—the source or subject of all revelation.

(In Acts vii. 2 the phrase ‘the God of glory’ recalls Ps. xxix. 3; while in 1 Cor. ii. 8 Our Lord Jesus Christ, Whom ‘the rulers of this world crucified’ is ‘the Lord of glory’: cf. Ja. ii. 1.)

'The wealth of the glory' of God (Eph. i. 18, iii. 16)—a phrase occurring also in Col. i. 27 and in Rom. ix. 23—signifies the inexhaustible fulness of His Majesty and abundant goodness, as revealed to man.

The Doxology in Eph. iii. 21: 'To Him be the glory in the Church and in Christ Jesus unto all the generations of the age of the ages' may be compared with the doxologies in

- Gal. i. 5. $\bar{\omega}$ ἡ δόξα εἰς τ. αἰῶνας τ. αἰῶνων.
 Rom. xi. 3 f. $\alpha\upsilon\tau\bar{\omega}$ ἡ δόξα εἰς τ. αἰῶνας (cf. xvi. 27).
 Phil. iv. 20. $\tau\bar{\omega}$ δὲ θεῷ κ. πατρὶ ἡμῶν ἡ δόξα εἰς τ. αἰ. τ. αἰ.
 Apoc. i. 6, v. 12 f., vii. 12, xix. 1. κ.τ.λ.

In all these instances the Doxology is addressed to God the Father.

In 2 Tim. iv. 18 $\bar{\omega}$ ἡ δόξα εἰς τ. α. τ. α. the Doxology is addressed to Christ (ῥύσεται με ὁ κύριος); and so in 2 Pet. iii. 18, and in Apoc. i. 6:—possibly also in Heb. xiii. 21 (v. note), and 1 Pet. iv. 11.

The article in all these doxologies implies that to God only belongs that through which whatever is glorious gains its glory—His is 'the glory' (ἡ δόξα).

Words in the New Testament denoting resurrection or raising from death.

Ἐγείρειν, ἀναστῆναι, ἀνάστασις.

A. In the Pauline Epistles.

(a) ἐγείρειν, ἐγείρεσθαι, ἐγείραι, ἐγερθῆναι are used.

- 1 Th. i. 10. $\bar{\omega}\nu$ ἡγείρεν ἐκ τῶν νεκρῶν.
 1 Cor. vi. 14. $\bar{\omega}$ δὲ θεὸς καὶ τὸν κύριον ἡγείρεν καὶ ἡμᾶς ἐξεγερεῖ (v. l.
 ἐξῆγείρειν) διὰ τῆς δυνάμεως αὐτοῦ.
 xv. 4. κ. ὅτι ἐγήγερται τῇ ἡμέρᾳ τῇ τρίτῃ.
 12. ὅτι ἐκ νεκρῶν ἐγήγερται.
 13. οὐδὲ Χριστὸς ἐγήγερται.
 14. εἰ δὲ Χριστὸς οὐκ ἐγήγερται (So v. 17.)
 15. ὅτι ἐμαρτυρήσαμεν κατὰ τοῦ θεοῦ ὅτι ἡγείρεν τὸν Χριστόν, ὃν οὐκ ἡγείρεν, εἶπερ ἄρα νεκροὶ οὐκ ἐγείρονται.
 16. εἰ γὰρ νεκροὶ οὐκ ἐγείρονται, οὐδὲ Χριστὸς ἐγήγερται.
 20. νυνὶ δὲ Χριστὸς ἐγήγερται ἐκ νεκρῶν.
 29. εἰ—νεκροὶ οὐκ ἐγείρονται. (So v. 32.)
 35. πῶς ἐγείρονται οἱ νεκροί;

- 1 Cor. xv. 42 ff. ἐγείρεται ἐν ἀφθαρσίᾳ—ἐ. ἐν δόξῃ—ἐ. ἐν δυνάμει—ἐ.
σῶμα πνευματικόν.
52. οἱ νεκροὶ ἐγερθήσονται ἄφθαρτοι.
2 Cor. i. 9. τῷ ἐγείροντι τοὺς νεκρούς.
iv. 14. ὁ ἐγείρας τὸν κύριον Ἰησοῦν καὶ ἡμᾶς σὺν Ἰησοῦ ἐγερεῖ.
v. 15. τῷ ὑπὲρ αὐτῶν ἀποθανόντι καὶ ἐγερθέντι.
Gal. i. 1. κ. θεοῦ πατρὸς τοῦ ἐγείραντος αὐτὸν ἐκ νεκρῶν.
Rom. iv. 24. τ. ἐγείραντα Ἰησοῦν τ. κύριον ἡμῶν ἐκ νεκρῶν.
25. κ. ἠγέρθη διὰ τὴν δικαίωσιν ἡμῶν.
vi. 4. ἠγέρθη Χριστὸς ἐκ νεκρῶν.
9. Χρ. ἐγερθεὶς ἐκ ν.
vii. 4. τῷ ἐκ ν. ἐγερθέντι.
viii. 10. τ. ἐγείραντος τ. Ἰ. ἐκ ν.—ὁ ἐγείρας ἐκ ν. Χ. Ἰ.
34. μᾶλλον δὲ ἐγερθεὶς.
x. 9. ὅτι ὁ θεὸς αὐτὸν ἠγειρεν ἐκ ν.
Col. ii. 12. τοῦ θεοῦ τοῦ ἐγείραντος αὐτὸν ἐκ νεκρῶν.
Eph. i. 20. ἐγείρας αὐτὸν ἐκ νεκρῶν.
2 Tim. ii. 8. Χριστὸν ἐγγηγερμένον ἐκ νεκρῶν.

(β) The verb ἀνίστασθαι, ἀναστῆναι, is used

- 1 Th. iv. 14. ὅτι Ἰησοῦς ἀπέθανεν καὶ ἀνέστη.
16. οἱ νεκροὶ ἐν Χριστῷ ἀναστήσονται πρῶτον.
(On Eph. v. 14, v. infr.)

The noun ἀνάστασις occurs

- 1 Cor. xv. 12. λέγουσιν—ὅτι ἀνάστασις νεκρῶν οὐκ ἔστιν.
13. εἰ δὲ ἀνάστασις ν. οὐκ ἔστιν.
21. καὶ δι' ἀνθρώπου ἀνάστασις ν.
42. οὕτω καὶ ἡ ἀνάστασις τ. ν.
Rom. i. 4. τ. ὀρισθέντος υἱοῦ θεοῦ—ἐξ ἀναστάσεως νεκρῶν.
vi. 5. ἀλλὰ καὶ τῆς ἀναστάσεως ἐσόμεθα.
Phil. iii. 10. τὴν δύναμιν τῆς ἀναστάσεως αὐτοῦ.
2 Tim. ii. 18. λέγοντες ἀνάστασιν ἤδη γεγονέναι.
Also once ἐξανάστασις.
Phil. iii. 11. εἰς τὴν ἐξανάστασιν τὴν ἐκ νεκρῶν.

B. In non-Pauline Epistles.

(a) ἐγείρειν κ.τ.λ. are found

- Heb. xi. 19. λογισάμενος ὅτι καὶ ἐκ νεκρῶν ἐγείρειν δυνατὸς ὁ θεός (where see note).
1 Pet. i. 21. θεὸν τὸν ἐγείραντα αὐτὸν ἐκ νεκρῶν.
[See Hort's note ad loc.]

(β) The verb ἀνίστασθαι κ.τ.λ. does not occur.

But ἀνάστασις is found :—

- Heb. vi. 4. ἀναστάσεως νεκρῶν κ. κρίματος αἰωνίου.
 xi. 35. ἔλαβον γυναικες ἐξ ἀναστάσεως τ. νεκροῦς αὐτῶν.
 ib. ἵνα κρείττονος ἀναστάσεως τύχωσιν.
 1 Pet. i. 3. ὁ κατὰ τὸ πόλυ ἑαυτοῦ ἔλεος ἀναγενήσας ἡμᾶς εἰς ἐλπίδα ζωσαν δι' ἀναστάσεως Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ ἐκ νεκρῶν. [where see Hort's note.]
 iii. 21. σώζει—δι' ἀναστάσεως Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ.

C. Usage of Synoptic Gospels and Acts.

In the Synoptic Gospels both verbs—ἐγείρεσθαι (ἐγερθῆναι κ.τ.λ.) and ἀνίστασθαι (ἀναστῆναι κ.τ.λ.) are used : also ἀνάστασις.

(a) Raising of the daughter of Jairus.

- Mk. v. 41. ἔγειρε—ἀνέστη.
 Mt. ix. 25. ἠγέρθη.
 Lk. viii. 55. ἔγειρε—ἀνέστη.

(b) Charge to the disciples.

- Mt. x. 8. νεκροὺς ἐγείρετε.

(c) Message to the Baptist.

- Mt. xi. 5 = Lk. vii. 22. νεκροὶ ἐγείρονται.

(d) Herod and John the Baptist.

- Mk. vi. 14 ff. ἐγγύγεται ἐκ νεκρῶν—ἠγέρθη (v. 16).
 Mt. xiv. 2. ἠγέρθη ἀπὸ τ. νεκρῶν.
 Lk. ix. 7. ὅτι Ἰωάνης ἠγέρθη ἐκ νεκρῶν.
 8. ὅτι προφήτης τις τ. ἀρχαίων ἀνέστη.

(e) Answer to the Sadducees.

- Mk. xii. 26. περὶ δὲ τ. νεκρῶν ὅτι ἐγείρονται.
 Lk. xx. 27. ὅτι δὲ ἐγείρονται οἱ νεκροί.

Here also the noun ἀνάστασις is used :—

- Mk. xii. 18, 22, Mt. xxii. 23, 28, 30, 31, Lk. xx. 27, 33, 35, 36.
 (It also occurs Lk. xiv. 14 ἐν τῇ ἀναστάσει τῶν δικαίων.)

(f) The Lord's predictions of His Passion and Resurrection.

- Mk. ix. 31, x. 33, ἀναστήσεται, xiv. 28 ἐγερθῆναι.
 Mt. xvi. 21 ἐγερθῆναι, xx. 19 ἐγερθήσεται (v. 1. ἀναστήσεται), xvii. 9 ἐγερθῆν (v. 1. ἀναστῆν).

Lk. ix. 22. ἔγερθῆναι (v. l. ἀναστῆναι), xviii. 33 ἀναστήσεται.
Cf. Mt. xxvii. 63 f. ἐγείρομαι—ἠγέρθη.

(g) Parable of Rich Man and Lazarus.

Lk. xvi. 31. εἴν τις ἐκ νεκρῶν ἀναστῆ.

(h) Records of the Resurrection.

Mk. xvi. 6. ἠγέρθη (cf. v. 9 ἀναστάς, v. 14 ἐγγεγερμένον).

Mt. xxviii. 6. ἠγέρθη, v. 7 ἠγέρθη ἀπὸ τ. νεκρῶν.

Lk. xxiv. 6. ἠγέρθη, v. 7 ἀναστῆναι.

34. ὄντως ἠγέρθη.

The noun ἔγερσις occurs once, Mt. xxvii. 53 μετὰ τὴν ἔγερσιν αὐτοῦ.

In Acts again both verbs are used:—

(α) ἤγειρεν (sc. ὁ θεὸς) in iii. 15, iv. 10, v. 30, x. 40, xiii. 30, 37; and ἐγείρει in xxvi. 8.

(β) ἀνέστησεν or ἀναστήσας (sc. ὁ θεὸς) in ii. 24, 32, iii. 26, xiii. 33, 34 (ἐκ v.), xvii. 31 (ἐκ v.).

Acts i. 22. μάρτυρα τῆς ἀναστάσεως αὐτοῦ.

ii. 21. τ. ἀν. τ. χριστοῦ, iv. 33 τ. ἀν. τ. κυρίου Ἰησοῦ.

xvii. 18. Ἰ. καὶ τὴν ἀνάστασιν.

iv. 2. τ. ἀνάστασιν τὴν ἐκ νεκρῶν.

xvii. 32, xxiii. 6, xxiv. 15, 21, xxvi. 23. ἀν. νεκρῶν.

D. In St John.

(α) ἐγείρειν κ.τ.λ. is used

Jo. ii. 19. ἐν τρισὶν ἡμέραις ἐγερῶ αὐτόν, and v. 20 ἐγερεῖς.

22. ὅτε οὖν ἠγέρθη ἐκ νεκρῶν.

v. 21. ἐγείρει τοὺς νεκρούς.

xii. 1, 9. ὃν ἤγειρεν ἐκ νεκρῶν, and v. 17 (of Lazarus).

xxi. 14. ἐγερθεὶς ἐκ νεκρῶν.

(β) ἀνίσταίναι, ἀνίστασθαι, ἀναστῆναι occur

Jo. vi. 39. ἀναστήσω αὐτὸ (vv. 40, 44, 54 ἀναστήσω αὐτόν) τῇ (vel ἐν τῇ) ἐσχάτῃ ἡμέρᾳ.

xi. 23. ἀναστήσεται ὁ ἀδελφός σου.

24. οἶδα ὅτι ἀναστήσεται—ἐν τ. ἐσχ. ἡμέρᾳ.

31. ἀνέστη κ. ἐξῆλθεν.

xx. 9. ὅτι δεῖ αὐτόν ἐκ νεκρῶν ἀναστῆναι.

(γ) ἀνάστασις occurs

Αποκ. xx. 5. ἡ ἀνάστασις ἡ πρώτη, v. 6 ἐν τῇ ἀν. τ. π.

Jo. v. 29. εἰς ἀνάστασιν ζωῆς—εἰς ἀν. κρίσεως.

xi. 24. ἐν τῇ ἀναστάσει.

25. Ἐγὼ εἰμι ἡ ἀνάστασις κ. ἡ ζωῆ.

The phrases ἀνάστασις νεκρῶν and ἡ ἀνάστασις ἡ ἐκ νεκρῶν must be distinguished. And the contrast between ἀνάστασις ζωῆς and ἀνάστασις κρίσεως ('resurrection which issues in judgment') is to be noted.

Cf. 2 Macc. vii. 9. ὁ δὲ τοῦ κόσμου βασιλεὺς ἀποθανόντας ἡμᾶς ὑπὲρ τῶν αὐτοῦ νόμων εἰς αἰώνιον ἀναβίωσιν ζωῆς ἡμᾶς ἀναστήσει.

Also id. ib. v. 14. αἰρετὸν μεταλλάσσοντας ὑπ' ἀνθρώπων τὰς ὑπὸ τοῦ θεοῦ προσδοκᾶν ἐλπίδας πάλιν ἀναστήσεσθαι ὑπ' αὐτοῦ· σοὶ μὲν γὰρ ἀνάστασις εἰς ζωὴν οὐκ ἔσται.

Reference to this Maccabean history of the seven brethren is made in Heb. xi. 35 ἄλλοι δὲ ἐτυμπανίσθησαν, οὐ προσδεξάμενοι τὴν ἀπολύτρωσιν, ἵνα κρείττους ἀναστάσεως τύχωσιν (v. supr.), 'where in κρείττους comparison is made implicitly, though not directly, between resurrection to eternal life and resurrection to an earthly life.' (Note ad loc.)

The words 'shall raise us up—unto an eternal renewal of life' (in v. 7) and 'but as for thee, thou shalt have no resurrection unto life' (in v. 14) of the passage in 2 Maccabees [bring us near to the language of the New Testament]. See on Jo. v. 29.

Cf. Lightfoot on Phil. iii. 11: "The 'resurrection from the dead' (τ. ἐξανάστασιν τὴν ἐκ νεκρῶν) is the final resurrection of the righteous to a new and glorified life. The general resurrection of the dead, whether good or bad, is ἡ ἀνάστασις τῶν νεκρῶν (e.g. 1 Cor. xv. 42); on the other hand the resurrection of Christ and of those who rise with Christ is generally [ἡ] ἀνάστασις [ἡ] ἐκ νεκρῶν (Luke xx. 35, Acts iv. 2, 1 Pet. i. 3). The former includes both the ἀνάστασις ζωῆς and the ἀνάστασις κρίσεως (Jo. v. 29); the latter is confined to the ἀνάστασις ζωῆς."

In Ephesians there is no direct reference to the future resurrection of men.

The words of c. v. 14:

*Ἐγειρε, ὁ καθεύδων, καὶ ἀνάστα ἐκ τῶν νεκρῶν,

καὶ ἐπιφάνσει σοὶ ὁ χριστός signify an awakening from the sleep of spiritual death (cf. ii. 1 f.) and an arising to spiritual life and action in the present.

The words, in fact, express a paradox—a present miracle of translation from death to life, such a rising, and restoration to life, of the dead as is signified in the miracles of Christ. We may compare the language of Jo. iii. 14 μεταβεβήκαμεν ἐκ τοῦ θανάτου εἰς τὴν ζωὴν.

The realisation of the eternal in the present dominates the thought of the Epistle.

On the meaning of κυβεία (Eph. iv. 14).

‘Κυβεία from κύβος is properly ‘dice-playing’ and hence ‘trickery, deceit.’ Von Soden prefers to take it as expressing conduct void of seriousness; these persons ‘play with’ the conscience and the soul’s health of Christians. But this is not the ordinary sense of the word. The ἐν is instrumental, the words expressing the means by which the περιφ. κ.τ.λ. is attained.’

(Dr T. K. Abbott, International Critical Commentary on ‘Ephesians,’ p. 122.)

[The foregoing explanation of κυβεία is taken, by kind permission of Professor T. K. Abbott of Dublin, from that scholar’s admirable Commentary on Ephesians in the ‘International Critical’ Series.

Permission to do this was asked on the following grounds.

There is evidence (a) that Dr Westcott was at first uncertain as to the precise meaning of κυβεία in this passage, but (b) that he eventually came to the decision that it here means ‘fraud.’

There is also evidence that during the last months of his life and while engaged on ‘Ephesians’ Dr Westcott, who seldom read modern commentaries, consulted this work of Prof. Abbott, some of the MS. notes of his own Commentary now published being found within the pages of a copy of the International Critical Commentary.

It is reasonable to infer that his ‘Additional Note,’ promised but never written, would have contained a reference to Prof. Abbott’s note,—in which a meaning, practically identical with that finally accepted by Dr Westcott, is given to κυβεία. J. M. S.]

Spiritual Powers.

The existence of other orders of rational (spiritual) beings about us is most natural.

That it is possible for us to hold communication with them under certain circumstances is not unlikely.

That it is wrong for us to seek such intercourse is probable.

That we may be subject to their assaults seems to be justified by experience.

The statements of Holy Scripture, however, on this subject are marked by singular reserve.

Ruskin on Eph. iv. 17, and on Conflict with Evil.

(a) [In the notes on Eph. iv. 17 reference is made to Ruskin's Modern Painters, Pt III. c. ii. § 8. The section is entitled 'Ideals of Beauty, how essentially moral.' The sentences quoted below are from the latter part of this section and from the beginning of § 9, 'How degraded by heartless reception.']

Having shewn that 'it is evident that the sensation of beauty is not sensual on the one hand, nor is it intellectual on the other, but is dependent on a pure, right, and open state of the heart: dependent both for its truth and for its intensity, insomuch that even the right after-action of the Intellect upon facts of beauty as apprehended is dependent on the acuteness of the heart-feeling about them,' Ruskin proceeds: 'And thus the Apostolic words come true, in this minor respect, as in all others, that men are "alienated from the life of God through the ignorance that is in them, having the Understanding darkened because of the hardness of their hearts, and so, being past feeling, give themselves up to lasciviousness.'" For we do indeed see constantly that men having naturally acute perceptions of the beautiful, yet not receiving it with a pure heart, nor into their hearts at all, never comprehend it, nor receive good from it; but make it a mere minister to their desires, and accompaniment and seasoning of lower sensual pleasures, until all their emotions take the same earthly stamp, and the sense of beauty sinks into the servant of lust. Nor is what the world commonly understands by the cultivation of "taste" anything more or better than this; at least in times of corrupt and over-pampered civilization, when men build palaces and plant groves and gather luxuries, that they and their devices may hang in the corners of the world like fine-spun cobwebs, with greedy, puffed-up, spider-like lusts in the middle. And this, which in Christian times is the abuse and corruption of the sense of beauty, was in that Pagan life, of which St Paul speaks, little less than the essence of it, and the best they had.'

(b) [A reference, in Dr Westcott's note on vi. 12, to Ruskin's Modern Painters, was for some time difficult to identify owing to an uncertainty as to the page-number. Ultimately the passage intended was discovered, beyond all doubt, to be a passage in Pt IX. c. xii. § 18; which has accordingly been printed in the Commentary ad loc. But the following two passages, which the Index to Modern Painters in the first instance suggested as perhaps intended, may be felt to be worth citing in addition to the other; which in one or two points they illustrate and supplement.]

'The reason of this I believe to be that the right faith of man is not intended to give him repose, but to enable him to do his work.

It is not intended that he should look away from the place he lives in now, and cheer himself with thoughts of the place he is to live in next, but that he should look stoutly into this world, in faith that, if he does his work thoroughly here, some good to others or himself, with which however he is not at present concerned, will come of it hereafter. And this kind of brave, but not very hopeful or cheerful, faith I perceive to be always rewarded by clear practical success and splendid intellectual power; while the faith which dwells on the future fades away into rosy mist and emptiness of musical air. That result indeed follows naturally enough on its habit of assuming that things must be right, or must come right, when probably the fact is that, so far as we are concerned, they are entirely wrong, and going wrong: and also on its weak and false way of looking on what these religious persons call "the bright side of things," that is to say, on one side of them only, when God has given them two sides and intended us to see both.'

(Modern Painters, vol. v. p. 229, small edition; Pt IX. c. ii. § 11.)

'Now, as far as I have watched the main powers of human mind, they have risen first from the resolution to see fearlessly, pitifully and to its very worst, what those deep colours mean, wheresoever they fall; not by any means to pass on the other side, looking pleasantly up to the sky, but to stoop to the horror, and let the sky, for the present, take care of its own clouds. However this may be in moral matters, with which I have nothing here to do, in my own field of inquiry the fact is so; and all great and beautiful work has come of first gazing without shrinking into the darkness. If, having done so, the human spirit can by its courage and faith conquer the evil, it rises into conceptions of victorious and consummated beauty.'

(id. ib. v. p. 232; Pt IX. c. ii. § 13.)

The world, the flesh and the devil.

[The question raised by Dr Westcott, after quoting Ruskin, in his notes on vi. 12, 'When does "the world, the flesh and the devil" first appear?' remains unanswered.

There can indeed be little doubt that the actual co-ordination in English, and in this unqualified form, of the three familiar terms, as well as the introduction into the Baptismal Office of the same threefold classification, though in a different and more ancient order, of ultimate sources of evil, is due to Cranmer.

But on the other hand it is to be noted :—

(a) That although in the earlier English, as in the Roman, Offices ‘the devil’ or ‘Satan’ with ‘his works’ (operibus eius) and ‘his pomps’ (pompis eius) stood alone as the object of baptismal renunciation,—in the Gallican Office, as also (with slight variants) in Luther’s Taufbüchlein and Hermann’s Consultation, the ‘pomps of the world’ (pompis seculi) and ‘its pleasures’ (voluptatibus eius) are co-ordinated with ‘Satan’—a collocation which, there is evidence, had very early authority, both Eastern and Western (cf. Cyprian, ad Rogatianum, Ambros. de Initiatis, c. 2, Macarius, Hom. 49).

(b) That in several ancient Litanies, Greek and Latin, ‘deceits of the world’ or ‘desires of the flesh,’ or the like, had been co-ordinated in deprecation with ‘snares of the devil.’

(c) That S. Thomas Aquinas had explicitly (Summa II. 114, 3), discussed the question ‘Utrum omnia peccata procedunt ex tentatione diaboli?’ and had concluded that not all sins were committed at his instigation, but some ‘ex libertate arbitrii et carnis corruptione’; and had also (I. 65, 1) explained that ‘the devil’ is said by St Paul to be ‘the god of this world’ (deus huius seculi) because ‘seculariter viventes ei serviunt.’

(d) That in the Imitatio Christi (II. 12, 9) occurs the sentence : ‘Si ad te ipsum respicis, nihil huiusmodi ex te poteris; sed si in domino confidis, dabitur tibi fortitudo de caelo, et subicietur ditioni tue mundus et caro; sed nec inimicum diabolum timebis, si fueris fide armatus et cruce Jesu signatus.’

Rightly to examine and interpret these and other data involves argument which, if presented here, would constitute a material departure from the rule, adopted in the editing of this volume, that beyond statistics and matter of common knowledge no conclusions should be advanced other than such as have the authority of Bishop Westcott himself.
